In the HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES of Indiana, March 4, 1865:

Mr. BRANHAM offered the following resolution :

"Resolved, That the Adjutant General be required to make up a full and complete report of his office, which shall embrace the names, residences, date of enlistment and muster, and date of discharge or death, of every officer, soldier and marine, enlisted in the military or naval service of the United States, during the present war, with such information relating to the State or United States service as may be of public interest, and in similar style to those published by other States. Two thousand copies of which report shall be printed and bound under the direction of the Adjutant General as other public documents are printed and bound."

Which was agreed to.

In the SENATE of Indiana, March 6, 1865 :

On motion of Mr. CASON, it was

"Resolved, That twenty-five hundred copies of the Report of the Adjutant General of Indiana be printed for the use of the members of the Senate."

ADJUTANT GENERAL'S REPORT.

INDIANA HAS SENT TO THE FIELD more than two hundred thousand troops, the majority being for three years' service. In addition, fifty thousand State Militia have been called into active service, for brief periods, during the war, to protect our southern border from invasion and rebel raids. Seventeen thousand one hundred and fourteen military commissions have been issued since the outbreaking of the rebellion. These statistics are referred to merely by way of apology for any inaccuracies that may have unavoidably, found their way into this volume. Officers who have been misrepresented in any way, or whose names have been misspelled, will confer a favor by reporting the facts, so that proper corrections may be made in the succeeding volume.

THE HISTORICAL SKETCHES, inserted after the regimental and company Rosters, in many cases fall far short of doing full justice to the officers and men concerned; yet they are quite as complete as the data at hand enabled them to be made. In preparing these sketches a brief outline has only been attempted, as the materials at command, and the limited space allotted would permit nothing more.

THE FIRST VOLUME will contain the report, proper, of the Adjutant General, with such documents and orders as it may be important to preserve, and full statistics of troops raised, deaths, discharges, transfers, promotions, and desertions, and such other matter relating to the GREAT STRUGGLE as may be worthy of a permanent record. The manuscript for this volume is mostly prepared, but its publication will, necessarily, have to be deferred until the regiments remaining in service are mustered out.

THE THIRD VOLUME, completing the rosters of officers, is now being printed, in a style uniform with this.

SUBSEQUENT VOLUMES, containing the names of all non-commissioned officers and privates, their regiments and companies, residences, dates of enlistment, dates of muster, deaths, discharges transfers, promotions, etc., as shown by the official rolls, are in active preparation, and will be published as soon as possible.

W. H. H. TERRELL,
Adjutant General, Indiana.

SIXTH REGIMENT--THREE MONTHS' SERVICE.

The Sixth Regiment was organized and mustered into service, for three months, at Indianapolis, April 24th, 1861, with THOMAS T. CURTIS, of Madison, as Colonel. It was one of the six regiments of three months' men organized under the call of President Lincoln for 75,000 men. On the 30th of May the Regiment left Indianapolis, via Cincinnati and Parkersburgh, for the scene of conflict in Western Virginia being first fully armed, equipped and clothed. Arriving at Webster on the 2d of June, it was marched, with other troops, the same night, through a drenching rain, a distance of fourteen miles, and on the morning of the 3d of June took part in the first battle of the war, at Philippi. Returning to Grant, it was made part of General THOMAS A. MORRIS' Brigade, and participated in the march to Laurel Hill and the engagement with Garnett's rebel command at Carrick's Ford on the 12th of July. The latter part of the same month the Regiment returned to Indianapolis, where it was finally discharged August 2, 1861.

SEVENTH REGIMENT—THREE MONTHS' SERVICE.

The Seventh Regiment was organized and mustered into service, entered the town at double-quick, driving the rebels before them out for three months, at Indianapolis, April 25th, 1861, with EBERNEZER of the town and two miles beyond. The regiment remained in camp DUMONT (who had served with distinction in the Mexican War) as at this place for six weeks, and then marched to Bealington, as part Colonel. On the 29th of May it was ordered to Western Virginia, of Gen. Morris' command. Here some skirmishing was had with the enemy's pickets, and a reconnaissance to the right and rear of their line made by a force of five hundred men of the Seventh and Ninth Indiana, under Col. Dumont. On the night of the 11th of July the rebels retreated from the front of our troops, and in the morning the pursuit commenced—the Seventh being in the rear—and was continued until two o'clock in the afternoon, our forces halting at Leeds-ville. While here Capt. Blair and Lieut. Tucker captured three rebel prisoners. The next morning the march was resumed to St. George—Cheat River being forded on the way. At Carrick's Ford the crossing was resisted by Gen. Garnett, which was promptly met by the fire of the Fourteenth Ohio, Col. Steadman, stationed on the bank of the river opposite the enemy. The Seventh Indiana then advanced and charged down the banks of the river, crossed over, captured the enemy's baggage, and hurried on in pursuit of the retreating rebels. At the next ford—three-quarters of a mile from Carriek's Ford—the enemy made another stand, under the personal command of Gen. Garnett. The resistance was brief, the rebels flying and leaving their commander dead on the field. Col. Dumont continued the pursuit for two miles and then halted for the night. The next day the Seventh took up the line of march to St. George, and from thence to Bealington. After a few days' rest it was ordered to Indianapolis, where it was mustered out of service.

EIGHTH REGIMENT—THREE MONTHS' SERVICE.

The Eighth Regiment was organized and mustered into service, for three months, at Indianapolis, April 25, 1861, with WILLIAM P. BENTON as Colonel. On the 19th of June, in company with the Tenth Regiment, it marched, by rail, to Clarksburg, in Western Virginia, via Cincinnati, Marietta and Parkersburg. Remaining here two days, it marched to Buckhannon, thirty miles distant, where it was reported the enemy were encamped. Arriving at this place, it was found the rebels had abandoned their position and moved on to Rich Mountain. Here the Eighth and Tenth Regiments were assigned to the Brigade commanded by General Rosecrans. After remaining in camp at Buckhannon for a brief period, the command was, on the 10th of July, marched toward Rich Mountain, and during that night ascended the mountain and took part in the Battle of Rich Mountain on the morning of the 11th of July. After this battle the Eighth went into camp at Beverly, where it remained some two weeks. On the 24th of July it marched for Indianapolis, where it was soon after mustered out of service.

NINTH REGIMENT—THREE MONTHS' SERVICE.

The Ninth Regiment was organized and mustered into service, for three months, at Indianapolis, on the 25th of April, 1861, with ROBERT H. MILROY as Colonel. This Regiment was the first that left the State for Western Virginia, departing from Indianapolis on the 29th of May and arriving at Grafton on the 1st of June. From thence it marched toward Philippi, in the column commanded by Col. Kelly, and took part in the surprise of the rebel camp at that place on the morning of the 3d of June. Returning to Grafton, the Ninth was assigned to General Morris' Brigade and participated in all the marches and skirmishes of that command during its brief campaign, and in the engagements at Laurel Hill and Carrick's Ford. The Regiment returned home in the latter part of July, and was finally discharged at Indianapolis soon after.

TENTH REGIMENT—THREE MONTHS' SERVICE.

The Tenth Regiment was organized and mustered into service, for three months, at Indianapolis, on the 25th of April, 1861, with JOSEPH J. REYNOLDS, formerly of the regular army, as Colonel. This officer being commissioned a Brigadier General of Volunteers on the 10th of May following, Major MAHLON D. MANSON was promoted Colonel.

On the 19th of June the Tenth, accompanied by the Eighth Regiment, left Indianapolis for Parkersburg, Western Virginia, by the way of Cincinnati and Marietta. From Parkersburg the Tenth marched to Clarksburg, and from thence to Buckhannon. After a few days rest, it took up its line of march, as part of Gen. Rosecrans' command, toward Rich Mountain, camping at its foot on the night of the 10th of July. Early the next morning the Regiment marched, by a narrow bridle-path, a distance of nearly nine miles, when they were brought to a halt by the enemy's pickets, who fired and ran. It was here that Capt. Chris. Miller, of Company "A," received a dangerous wound, from the effects of which he did not recover for many months. The Tenth then took a position behind a hill, until ordered to charge the enemy's works, which was done in gallant style, resulting in the rout of the enemy and the loss of his guns. After this the enemy were driven from their chosen position upon the mountain by the combined Union forces. After the battle the Tenth camped on the ground, and the next day marched for Beverly, where it remained in camp until the 24th of July, when it was ordered to Indiana. Reaching Indianapolis on the 28th of July, it was, in a few days afterward, mustered out of service.

SIXTH REGIMENT—THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

The Sixth Regiment was re-organized for the three years' service, tucky, then invaded by the rebel forces under Buckner. Without at Madison, on the 20th of September, 1861. On the same day Col. waiting for uniforms, this portion of the Sixth Regiment took steamer THOMAS T. CRITTENDEN, its commanding officer, obtained permission for Louisville, reaching there the same evening, and was the first to take what men were then in camp (about five hundred,) to Kentucky body of troops to enter Kentucky from a Northern State. Immedi-the Sixth again in Tennessee, when it participated in Rosecrans' march upon Murfreesboro, and in the battle of Stone River, December 31st, 1862, and January 1st and 2d, 1863.

During the spring and summer of 1863, the Sixth Regiment was engaged in campaigning in the district of country lying between Murfreesboro and Chattanooga, Tennessee. On the 10th and 20th of September it participated in the battle of Chickamauga. The commanding officer, Col. P. P. Baldwin, was killed on the first day of the engagement. It was, also, engaged in a severe skirmish with the enemy at Brown's Ferry, Tennessee, on the 27th of October, and in the successful engagement at Mission Ridge on the 25th of November. The Regiment was then marched into East Tennessee, and remained in that locality until the following spring.

In the march upon Atlanta, Georgia, and the severe fighting that ensued, from day to day, the Sixth bore an honorable part. It was engaged in the battles at Tunnel Hill, Rocky Face Ridge, Resaca, Buzzard Roost, Dallas, New Hope, Allatoona Ridge, Kennesaw Mountain, Marietta, and before Atlanta. The latter part of August, 1864, it returned to Chattanooga, Tenn., where the non-veterans were mustered out of service on the 22d of September, 1864. The veterans (of whom there was but a small number,) and the remaining recruits, whose term of service had not expired, were transferred to the 68th Regiment Indiana Volunteers. On the final muster out of the last named Regiment, nineteen men of the old Sixth were found to be still in service, and these were again transferred to the 44th Regiment Indiana Volunteers, and were finally mustered out with that organization on the 14th day of September, 1865.

Immediately on its arrival it was dispatched, by way of the Nashville Railroad, to Muldraugh's Hill, forty miles from Louisville, and camped at a point a few miles north of Elizabethtown, on the 22d of September. On the arrival of the Louisville Legion, and the 38th and 39th Indiana Regiments, the Sixth was moved beyond Elizabethtown and posted in the advance near Nolin creek. Here it was joined by three hundred recruits, which had left Madison on the 9th of October, in charge of Lieut. Col. Hiram Prather. A large force of Union troops was then concentrated in this vicinity, where Brigade and Division organizations were perfected. The Sixth was assigned to Rousseau's Brigade of McCook's Division, and marched with this portion of Buell's army to Munfordsville, Woodsonville, and Bowling Green, remaining at the latter place until March, 1862, when it marched to Nashville, and went into camp near that city. On the 29th of March, it left for the Tennessee river, reaching Savannah, Tennessee, after a march of one hundred and forty miles in seven days, on the morning of the 7th of April, in time to take a steamer and reach the Field of Shiloh early in the morning of the second day of that great battle. Rousseau's Brigade was assigned a position near the centre of the line of battle. The Sixth fought gallantly, and at a critical period saved one of our batteries from capture, following this up with a charge that aided in turning the tide of victory in favor of our arms. After the battle, it encamped upon the field, remaining there until the march upon and siege of Corinth was commenced, in which it participated. The Regiment then marched, with Buell's army, to Nashville, by way of Tusculum, Florence, Huntsville, Stevenson, and Cowan's Station, and from thence to Louisville, Kentucky, reaching the latter place on the 2d of October, 1862. November found

SEVENTH REGIMENT—THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

The Seventh Regiment was re-organized at Indianapolis and was mustered in, for the three years' service, on the 13th of September, 1861, with EBERNEZER DUMONT as Colonel. It moved at once into Western Virginia and joined Gen. Reynolds' command at Cheat Mountain. On the 3d of October, it participated in the battle of Green Briar, and soon after moved up the Shenandoah Valley campaign near Green Spring Run. At Winchester it was engaged in the battle of Winchester Heights on the 23d of March, 1862, and, also, in the engagements at Port Republic on the 9th of June, and at Front Royal on the 12th of the same month. It then marched to Frederickburgh and back again to the Shenandoah, under Gen. Shields, after which it was assigned to Gen. McDowell's command. The regiment was with Gen. Pope's forces in the campaign of the Army of Virginia, participating in the fight at Slaughter Mountain on the 9th of August, 1862, and the second battle of Bull Run on the 30th of August. The Regiment was engaged in the pursuit of Lee, during his invasion of Maryland, and took part in the battle of Antietam, on the 17th of September, losing two killed and eight wounded. It was next engaged at Ashby's Gap, or Union, on the 2d of November, suffering a loss of four killed and six wounded. It participated in the battle of Fredericksburgh, under Gen. Burnside, on the 13th of December. During the next year's campaign the Seventh was engaged in the great battles at Chancellorsville, on the 2d, 3d, 4th and 5th of May, and at Gettysburgh on the 1st, 2d, 3d and 4th of July, losing heavily in both engagements. At the close of the campaign of 1863, it participated in the battle of Mine Run on the 30th of November. The spring of 1864 found the Seventh in camp at Culpeper, from whence it moved with the Army of the Potomac in Grant's last great campaign, participating in the following battles: in the Wilderness, on the 5th and 6th of May, at Laurel Hill, on the 6th of May, at Spotsylvania, on the 7th and 8th of May, at Po River, at North Anna River on the 25th of May, at Bethesda Church, on the 30th and 31st of May, and 1st of June, and at Cold Harbor on the 3d of June. In these engagements the Regiment was under fire for eighteen days and suffered severely. On the 16th of June it crossed the James River to join the assault on Petersburg and was engaged the day following in the desperate but unsuccessful attempt to carry the rebel works at that place. Here the Regiment remained participating in the siege of Petersburg until the 18th of August, when it moved with that portion of the Army selected for the purpose, on the Weldon Railroad with the view of cutting the same, and was engaged in the battle near Yellow House, on the 19th of August. On the 23d of September, in pursuance of orders from the General commanding the Corps to which it was attached, the Seventh Regiment was consolidated with the Nineteenth Regiment of Indiana Volunteers, and afterward on the 18th of October, this new organization was again consolidated with the Twentieth Regiment Indiana Volunteers. Upon the final discharge of the Twentieth on the 12th of July, 1865, the Veterans and recruits that had been transferred to it from the Seventh Regiment were also mustered out, and on the same day returned to Indianapolis, with it, for final payment.

EIGHTH REGIMENT—THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

The Eighth Regiment was re-organized, for the three years service, at Indianapolis on the 20th of August, 1861, and mustered in on the 5th of September, 1861, with WILLIAM P. BENTON as Colonel. It marched from Indianapolis, by rail, on the 10th of September, and arrived at St. Louis, Missouri, on the day following, joining the Army then being formed by Gen. Fremont. In a few days after the Regiment marched toward the State Capital reaching Jefferson City on the 14th of September, where it remained in camp a week, during which time it was placed in the Brigade commanded by Col. Jeff C. Davis. It then moved in the direction of Forsythe, Missouri, over the Ozark Mountains, and then proceeded down the valley of White River and across the country to Batesville, Arkansas, halting at Sulphur Rock for nearly two months. Leaving the latter place June 22d, it reached Helena, on the Mississippi river on the 13th of July. The command suffered severely on this arduous march by reason of the scarcity of provisions, there being but a scanty supply with the command and but little in the country; very often the daily rations consisted of four ears of corn with a small allowance of meat. During this march some skirmishing was had with the enemy in the cane-brakes of White River and an engagement fought at Cotton Plant. In August, while on an expedition from Helena a skirmish was had at Austin, Mississippi. On the 6th of October, the Eighth was placed in the command of Gen. Steele and proceeded, by steamer, to Sulphur Hill near St. Louis, Missouri, from which place it marched to Ironton on the 11th of October, and from thence marched and counter-marched through the south eastern portion of the State, until March 5th, 1863, when the Regiment embarked on a steamer at St. Genevieve to join Gen. Grant's Army then organizing at Milliken's Bend, Louisiana. Here it was assigned to Benton's Brigade, Carr's Division of the 13th Corps, McClelland commanding. On the 29th of April, the Regiment crossed the Mississippi river and participated in the engagements at Port Gibson, on the 1st of May, losing in killed and wounded thirty-two; at Jackson on the 14th; at Champion Hills on the 16th; at Black River Bridge on the 17th; and from the 19th of May till the 4th of July, was engaged in the siege of Vicksburg. In the assault on the enemy's works on the 22d of June, the Eighth lost one hundred and seventeen in killed and wounded. On the 5th of July, it marched to Jackson, which, being evacuated by the rebels, the Eighth returned to Vicksburg on the 24th of July, where it remained till the 20th of August, when it embarked on a steamer for Carrollton, Louisiana. From this point a campaign was made through the Teche Country, under Gen. Banks. On the 12th of November the Regiment embarked from Berwick City for Texas, and on the 17th, took part in the attack and capture of a fort on Mustang Island, near Aransas Pass. On the 27th, it was engaged in the attack and capture of Fort Esperanza, after which it marched to Indianola. Here, on the 1st of January, 1864, the Regiment re-enlisted, 417 out of 515 being re-mustered as Veterans. Prior to re-enlistment the Eighth sustained the following losses by death: killed in action 48, died of wounds 32, died of disease 127, total 217.

On the 22d of April the Regiment arrived at Indianapolis on Veteran furlough and remained in the State a month. Returning to New Orleans it embarked on the 27th of July for Morganza Bend, and the next day marched to Atchafalaya where it engaged the rebels and returned to Morganza Bend, from which place it embarked on steamer for Washington City, arriving there on the 12th of August. From thence it marched to Berryville, Virginia, where it was assigned to the 19th Corps, participating in the campaign of the Shenandoah Valley, under Gen. Sheridan. The Regiment was in the engagement at Opequan on the 19th of September, and in the battles of Fisher's Hill, on the 23d of September, and of Cedar Creek on the 19th of October. It left the Valley on the 6th of January, 1865, and arrived at Savannah, Georgia, by steamer from Baltimore, on the 16th of the same month. It remained on duty in Georgia until the 28th of August, 1865, when it was mustered out of service. On the 17th of September, the Eighth arrived at Indianapolis, in command of Lieut. Col. Jno. R. Polk, with 14 officers and 245 men, where it was finally discharged from service, after being publicly received in the Capitol grounds by Gov. Morton, on behalf of the State.

NINTH REGIMENT—THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

The Ninth Regiment was re-organized for the three years' service, at Laporte, on the 27th of August, 1861, and was mustered in at the same place on the 5th of September, 1861. Soon after it was moved, in Command of Col. ROBERT H. MILROY, to Western Virginia, proceeding by rail to Webster, where it disembarked and marched to Elkwater Valley, and from thence to Cheat Mountain Summit, where winter quarters were built, the Regiment remaining there until the 9th of January, 1862. During this time the Regiment participated in the battles of Green Brier, October 3d and of Allegheny on the 13th of December, 1861. It then marched to Fetterman, Virginia, where it remained till the 19th of February, when it was transferred to Gen. Buell's Army, being transported by rail to Cincinnati and from thence to Nashville by steamer. Here it was assigned to Gen. Nelson's division, and marched on the 29th of March for the Tennessee River, reaching there in time to participate in the second day's engagement at Shiloh. From there it marched to Corinth, Mississippi, and after the evacuation pursued the rebels to Boonville. It then marched to Nashville by way of Athens, Alabama, and Franklin and Murfreesboro, Tennessee. From thence it moved to Bowling Green, Kentucky, and back again to Nashville. From the latter place the Ninth marched to Louisville, Kentucky, and from there, in the pursuit of Bragg, through Bardstown, Perryville, Danville, Camp Dick Robinson, Crab Orchard and London to the Wild Cat Mountains, and returned to Nashville through Crab Orchard Somerset, Columbia and

Glasgow. During this march the Regiment was engaged in the battles of Perryville, Dunville and Wild Cat Mountain. The Ninth then marched to Murfreesboro, where it participated in the Battle of Stone River, December 31, 1862, and 1st and 2d of January, 1863; after which it marched across the Cumberland Mountains and the Tennessee River to Chattanooga. On the 19th and 20th of September it was engaged in the battle of Chickamauga. After its return to Chattanooga it participated in the battles of Lookout Mountain November 24th, and Mission Ridge on the 25th of November, after which it marched over the Cumberland Mountains to Bridgeport, Alabama, and from there to Whiteside Tennessee. At the latter place the Ninth re-enlisted as a Veteran organization, on the 12th of December, 1863. The Regiment returned to the State on Veteran furlough, and on the 21st of February 1864, left Valparaiso, Indiana, for the front, passing through Indianapolis, Madison, Louisville, Nashville and Chattanooga to Cleveland, Tennessee. In the spring of 1864, the Atlanta campaign was commenced, the Ninth participating in all the marching of that campaign, through Ringold, Dalton, Resaca, Kingston, Culloun, Cassville, around the Allatoona Mountains, through Ackworth, Big Shanty, Marietta, the investment of Atlanta, in the flank movement around Atlanta, through Jonesboro and Lovejoy, and back again to Atlanta, taking part in the skirmishing on the route and in the engagements at Taylors Ridge, Buzzard's Roost, Dalton, Resaca, Cassville, Dallas, New Hope Church, Kenesaw Mountain, Marietta, Peach Tree Creek, Atlanta, Jonesboro and Lovejoy. It then participated in the retrograde movement in the pursuit of Hood's Army, to Dalton, and thence through Summerville, Ga., Galesville, Bridgeport, Stevenson and Huntsville to Athens, Ala. From thence it marched to Pulaski, Tenn., arriving there on the 1st of November, 1864. Falling back before Hood's advance, on the 26th of November, it was engaged in the fight at Columbia, in the heavy skirmishing that followed on the route to Franklin and in the severe engagement at that place. On the 1st of December, the Ninth entered Nashville, and on the 15th of December participated in the battle of Nashville; after which it set out with the Army in pursuit of Hood's retreating rebels, following them to Huntsville, Alabama, when the pursuit was abandoned. It remained at the latter place from the 6th of January to the 13th of March, 1865, when it marched into East Tennessee beyond Bull's Gap, and back again, reaching Nashville on the 25th of May. Soon after it was transferred to the vicinity of New Orleans and afterwards to Texas, where it remained as part of Gen. Sheridan's Army of occupation until September, 1865, when it was mustered out of service and returned to Indiana.

TENTH REGIMENT—THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

The Tenth Regiment was re-organized at Indianapolis, for the three years' service, on the 18th of September, 1861, and mustered in the same day, with MAITLON D. MAXSON as Colonel. On the 22d of September it left Indianapolis for Kentucky, and after remaining a few days at Louisville, was moved to Bardstown where it went into camp. Remaining here for about a month it was marched to New Haven and Lebanon, in which vicinity it remained until the advance to meet Zollicoffer's forces in January, 1862. On the 19th of January it participated in the battle of Mills Springs, or Logan's Fields, and there achieved an enviable reputation for gallantry, the Regiment at one time saving the day, by its firm resistance of a desperate charge of Zollicoffer's forces. After the battle it remained in that vicinity until the march of Buell's Army to the Tennessee River, in March, in which it took part. The Regiment reached the Field of Shiloh after the battle, and remained encamped there until the siege of Corinth was commenced. It then marched with the Army and participated in the investment of that place and the marches which followed the evacuation.

Returning to Nashville it joined in the pursuit of Bragg through Kentucky, engaging in the battle of Chaplin Hills, at Perryville. It was then stationed in the district of country south of the Cumberland River and east of Nashville and, afterward joined in the march of the Army of the Cumberland across the Cumberland Mountains to Chattanooga and participated in the battle of Chancellorsville on the 19th and 20th of Sept., 1863, in which engagement its commanding officer, Col. Wm. B. Carroll, was killed. On the 14th of January, 1864, a portion of the Regiment re-enlisted at Chattanooga, Tennessee, and in the spring following participated in Sherman's march upon Atlanta, taking part in the many engagements of that campaign. On the 8th of September, 1864, the Veterans and recruits were by order of Gen. Thomas transferred to the 58th Regiment, and on the 19th of September the Non-Veterans were mustered out of service. The transferred men served with the 58th Regiment in Sherman's march through Georgia to Savannah, and through South Carolina and North Carolina, and were finally mustered out with that organization at Louisville, Kentucky, on the 25th day of July, 1865.

ELEVENTH REGIMENT—THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

The Eleventh Regiment was re-organized and mustered in, for the three years' service, on the 31st of August, 1861, with LEWIS WALLACE as Colonel, and left Indianapolis for St. Louis, on the 6th of September, arriving there on the 8th, and leaving the day following for Paducah, Kentucky. Here Lieut. Col. George F. McGinnis was promoted Colonel, in place of Lewis Wallace appointed Brigadier General. The Regiment remained at this post from September 11th till February 5th, 1862, during which time a march of 125 miles was made to Calloway's Landing, on the Tennessee river, and back again. On the 5th of February, it embarked on a steamer, which landed six miles from Fort Henry, on the opposite side of the river, from whence the Regiment marched, the next day, to Fort Heiman, where a slight skirmish occurred. On the 14th it marched, to Fort Donelson, and on the 15th was engaged in the battle at that place, being in Col. Smith's brigade of Gen. Lew. Wallace's division, and sustaining a loss of 4 killed and 29 wounded. On the 17th the Eleventh returned to Fort Heiman, from whence it marched to Paris Landing, on the 6th of March, and there took steamer for Crump's Landing. From here it marched, on the 6th of April, to Shiloh Battle-Field, and, on the day following, participated in the battle, fighting the enemy from half past five in the morning till half past four in the afternoon, losing 11 killed and 52 wounded. On the 19th of April it moved toward Corinth, and during the last of that month made two marches to Purdy and back again. Corinth being evacuated on the 30th of May, Wallace's division was ordered to Memphis which place the Eleventh reached on the 20th of June, after a march of 120 miles across the country. In July it was sent by steamer to Helena,

Arkansas, from which place, on the 4th of August, it marched to Clarendon returning on the 19th, after a march of 130 miles and the loss, by guerrillas, of one man killed, and two wounded. During the fall and winter the Eleventh engaged in expeditions from Helena to White River, to Tallahatchie River, to Duvall's Bluff and to Yazoo Pass. Colonel McGinnis being appointed Brigadier General in March, 1863, Lieut. Col. Dan Macauley was promoted Colonel. The Eleventh embarked from Helena on a steamer, on the 11th of April and reached Milliken's Bend on the 14th, where it joined Grant's Army, being in McGinnis' Brigade and Hovey's division of McClelland's Corps, the 13th. Upon its arrival, the Regiment marched with its Corps to Carthage, and thence to Perkins' Plantation near Grand Gulf. Here the Army remained on transports to await the result of the attempt of the gunboats to silence the rebel batteries. The bombardment proving unsuccessful, the troops were disembarked and marched around to a point opposite Bruinsburg, and on the 30th of April were crossed over the river and marched to Port Gibson, where, on the 1st of May, an engagement was fought, the Eleventh capturing a battery and sustaining a loss of one man killed and 24 wounded. The next day the town was entered, and on the 3d of May the march was resumed. On the 16th the regiment was engaged in the battle of Champion Hills, losing 167 in killed, wounded and missing. On the 19th it moved to Black River, and on the 21st marched to the vicinity of Vicksburg, where it remained in the trenches of our works until the 4th of July, when the surrender took place. The casualties to the regiment during the siege were 3 killed and 10 wounded. On the 5th of July it marched with an expedition to Jackson, with constant skirmishing on the route, the Regiment having 3 men wounded. Returning to Vicksburg it remained in camp until August when it was transported to New Orleans, and, on the 13th of that month, was sent to Brashear City and through the Teche County to Opelousas, near which place, on the 21st of October a heavy skirmish was had with the enemy. Returning from this expedition, the Regiment, on the 20th of November, marched, with Cameron's Brigade, to the banks of Lake Tasse, where a rebel camp was captured. On the 22d of December, it arrived at Algiers, and on the 19th of January, 1864, marched to Madisonville, where on the 1st of February, the Regiment re-enlisted, as Veterans. Returning to New Orleans, it embarked, on the 4th of March, on a steamer for New York City, from whence it moved, by rail, to Indianapolis, reaching there on the 21st, when it was publicly received by the citizens and addressed by Gov. Morton. Upon the expiration of its Veteran furlough, the Eleventh left Indianapolis, reaching New Orleans on the 8th of May, in the vicinity of which place it remained until July. On the 11th of that month it was assigned to the 2d Brigade, 2d Division of the 19th Army Corps, and on the 19th, embarked on a steamer, under sealed orders. Reaching Fortress Monroe on the 28th, the Eleventh proceeded to Washington, D. C., and from thence to Harper's Ferry, Virginia. Moving to Cedar Creek it skirmished with the enemy all three years service the Eleventh Regiment marched 9,318 miles.

day of the 13th of August, and on the 15th reached Winchester, from which place it made sundry marches, and, on the 22d had a skirmish near Hallsboro. On the 24th, in a reconnaissance, it lost 2 men killed and 8 wounded and on the 6th of September had a skirmish at Berryville. On the 19th it participated in the battle of Opequan, losing 81 in killed and wounded. On the 20th it pursued the enemy to Fisher's Hill, and on the 22d was engaged in the battle at that place, skirmishing all night and following the enemy to Woodstock, losing 2 men killed and 4 wounded. On the 25th it pursued the enemy to New Market, where they made a stand, but being flanked, were forced to retreat to Harrisonburg, which place was reached by our forces on the 26th, skirmishing occurring all the way. Leaving this place on the 6th of October, the Regiment returned to Cedar Creek on the 10th, and on the 19th was engaged in the battle of Cedar Creek, losing 52 men, killed, wounded and missing. Upon the conclusion of Sheridan's campaign in the Shenandoah Valley, the Regiment marched to Baltimore, arriving there on the 7th of January, 1865, where it remained on duty until its muster out on the 26th of July, 1865. On the 3d of August it returned to Indianapolis, was publicly received by the Governor in behalf of the people of the State on the 4th, and in a few days after was finally discharged from service. During its

K	Captain. JOSEPH F. DRAPER	Vernon	April 23, 1861	July 24, 1861	Mustered out May 19, '62; term expired; re-entered service as Captain in 132d Regiment.
	First Lieutenant. BENJAMIN F. AYRES	Vernon	April 23, 1861	July 24, 1861	Mustered out May 19, '62; term expired.
	Second Lieutenant. JOHN M. DIXON	Vernon	April 23, 1861	July 24, 1861	Mustered out May 19, '62; term expired.

The Twelfth Regiment was organized from the surplus of companies that had reached Indianapolis in answer to the call for six Regiments of three months troops, and was accepted for State service for one year, on the 11th of May, 1861, with JOHN M. WALLACE as Colonel. On the 11th of June the Regiment left Indianapolis for Evansville, where it occupied the camp lately vacated by the Eleventh Regiment. On the 18th of July, orders were received from the War Department for its transfer to the United States service for the remaining portion of its term of service, and on the 23d, the Regiment left Evansville for Baltimore, passing through Indianapolis, Columbus, Pittsburg and Harrisburgh. Reaching Baltimore on the 27th, the Regiment went next day to Sandy Hook, Maryland, near Harpers Ferry, where it was assigned to Abercrombie's Brigade of Gen. Banks' Army of the Shenandoah. While here Col. Wallace resigned and Lieut. Col. William H. Link was promoted to the Colonelcy. The Twelfth remained in camp in Pleasant Valley near Maryland Heights, until the 16th of August, when it moved with the Army to Hyattstown, where it encamped sometime. Gen. Joe Johnston was reported to be on the opposite side of the Potomac, near Leesburgh with a large force, and this march was made with a view to prevent his crossing the river. The following month marches were made to Darnestown, Nolans Ferry, Seneca Creek and Tuscarora Creek, and in October to Point of Rocks, Hyattstown, Urbana and Frederick. On the 11th, the Regiment left the latter place and marched through Boonsboro, and Middletown to Williamsport, Maryland. On the 13th, the different companies were stationed at Williamsport, Dam No. 4, Dam No. 5, Sharpsburgh, and other points on the Maryland side of the Potomac, where they engaged in picket and outpost duty until March, 1862, during which time skirmishes and picket firing across the river were frequent. On the 11th of December, the rebels captured Capt. Keuben Williams and seven men, who had crossed over to the Virginia side from Dam No. 4, to see if the rebels were really over there. On the 1st of March, 1862, the Twelfth crossed the Potomac at Williamsport, and marched to Winchester, through Martinsburgh and Bunker Hill. On the 11th it had a skirmish with the enemy near Winchester, and on the following morning was the first Regiment to enter the town, which had been evacuated by the rebels the night before. On the 21st the Regiment moved to Berryville, and thence across the Shenandoah and over the Blue Ridge, through Snickers Gap, to Aldie. Hearing of our victory at Winchester Heights on the 23d, it marched back again to the Shenandoah where it was met with orders to retrace its steps southward, toward Warrenton Junction, which place was reached on the 3d of April, via Aldie, Centerville, the Battle Field of Bull Run and Catlett's Station. The Regiment remained here until the 5th of May, when it marched to Washington, where on the 14th of that month it was mustered out of service, and immediately returned to Indiana.

TWELFTH REGIMENT—THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

In pursuance of an order of the War Department, dated May 17th, 1862, the Twelfth Regiment was re-organized, for the three years' service, at Indianapolis, on the 17th of August, following, with WILLIAM H. LINK, its old Commanding Officer, as Colonel. Soon after, it left the State for Kentucky to resist the threatened invasion of Kirby Smith. On the 30th of August it participated in the battle of Richmond, Kentucky, losing 173 killed and wounded, including the gallant Col. Link, who died of his wounds on the 20th of September. The most of the Regiment were taken prisoners and afterward paroled. Lieut. Col. Reuben Williams was, on the 17th of November, promoted Colonel, and upon being exchanged as prisoners of war, the Regiment was ordered to report to Gen. Grant. Leaving Indianapolis on the 23d of November, it reached Memphis on the 25th, and on the day following marched for Holly Springs. In December, the Regiment marched to the Tallabatchie River, was stationed at Grand Junction in January, 1863, and in the spring was placed on duty at Collierville, Tennessee. In June it marched for Vicksburg, being assigned to Logan's 15th, Corps of the Army of the Tennessee, in which it served for more than two years, participating in all of its marches, skirmishes and battles. Upon reaching our works in the rear of Vicksburg, it went into the trenches and remained there during the siege, and after the capitulation, marched to Jackson and Big Black River, remaining at the latter place until the 28th of September, when it was moved to Memphis. The Regiment then participated in Sherman's long march from Memphis to Chattanooga.

On the 25th of November it took part in the battle of Mission Ridge, losing, in killed and wounded 110 men and officers, and immediately followed in the pursuit of Bragg to Graysville, Georgia, and from thence to the relief of Burnside at Knoxville. Returning, the Regiment reached Scottsboro, Alabama, on the 26th of December, where it remained until the 1st of May, 1864, when it marched to take part in the Atlanta campaign, participating in the battles at Dallas, Resaca, New Hope Church, Kennesaw Mountain, (from the 22d to the 28th of July,) Jonesboro, and many skirmishes, losing 240 men in killed and wounded, between Dalton and Atlanta. The Regiment then took part in the chase of Hood through northern Georgia and Alabama. Returning to Atlanta, it moved with Sherman's Army on the 14th of November, and arrived at Savannah on the 10th of December, from whence it marched through South Carolina to Goldsboro, North Carolina. During these marches it engaged the enemy at Griswoldville, Savannah, Columbia, and Bentonville. Upon the surrender of Johnson's Army, the Regiment marched to Raleigh, thence to Richmond, Virginia, and thence to Washington, where it was mustered out of service on the 8th of June, 1865, and returned to Indianapolis on the 14th of June, 270 strong, and was publicly received by Gov. Morton the same day. A number of recruits and drafted men were, however, transferred to the 48th and 59th Regiments, and kept in service a month longer, when they were mustered out with those organizations at Louisville, Kentucky, on the 15th and 17th of July, 1865.

THIRTIETH REGIMENT—THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

The Thirteenth Regiment was originally accepted for State service, for one year, and was subsequently organized at Indianapolis for United States service, by volunteering from the companies of the State troops then in Camp Sullivan. It was one of the four Regiments that first entered service from Indiana for the term of three years, and was mustered in, at Indianapolis, on the 19th of June, 1861, with JERF. C. SULLIVAN as Colonel. On the 4th of July it left Indianapolis for the field and on the morning of the 10th joined Gen. McClellan's forces, at the foot of Rich Mountain, Western Virginia. On the next day it participated in the battle of Rich Mountain, under Gen. Rosecrans, losing 8 killed and 9 wounded. On the 13th it moved to Beverly, and from thence to Cheat Mountain Pass, where, under Gen. Jos. J. Reynolds, it took part in numerous skirmishes and, on the 12th and 13th of September, in the engagement which resulted in the defeat of Gen. Lee's forces on Cheat Mountain Summit and Elkwater. The Regiment marched with Gen. Reynolds's Command in the reconnaissance in force at Greenbrier, on the 3d of October, and during the engagement supported Howe's Battery, 4th U. S. Artillery.

From the 29th of October till the 7th of November it was engaged in a scouting expedition through the country bordering the Holly and Kanawha Rivers. After this it marched to Allegheny, under Gen. Milroy, and on the 13th of December participated in the battle at that place. On the 18th the Regiment left Beverly and joined Gen. Lander's forces at Green Spring Run, where it remained till spring, during which time it took part in two expeditions of minor importance. On the 5th of March, 1862, it marched towards Martinsburgh, where Gen. Shields took command of the division. It then moved to Winchester, from whence it marched on a scout up the valley to Strausburgh. Returning to Winchester it participated in the battle of Winchester Heights on the 22d of March, losing six killed and thirty-three wounded. It then followed in the pursuit of Stonewall Jackson's Army, as far as New Market and Columbia Bridge. Col. Sullivan being appointed a Brigadier General on the 2d of May, Lieut. Col. Robert S. Foster was promoted Colonel. At Summerville on the 7th of May, while on a reconnaissance, the Regiment sustained a loss of four wounded and twenty-four prisoners. On the 13th it moved down the valley, crossed the Blue Ridge and reported to Gen. McDowell, who ordered the Regiment to return to the valley to aid in driving the rebels out again. On reaching Port Republic it was found the rebels had gone in the direction of Staunton, when the Regiment was marched to Laray and from thence to Alexandria, where, on the 28th of June, it embarked on a steamer and proceeded to Harrison's Landing, on the James River, arriving there on the 2d of July. Here it remained until the evacuation on the 15th of August, when it marched down the Peninsula to Fortress Monroe. On the 30th it went to Suffolk on the Nansemond River, in which locality it remained nine months, engaging in numerous operations in that region of country, the most important of which were reconnoissances to Black Water on the 3d of October, 17th of November and 15th of December; the battle of the Deserted Farm on the 30th of January, 1863; the defeat of Gen. Longstreet in his attempt to sieze Suffolk, from April 10th to May 3d, 1864; and the tearing up and bringing off of nearly forty miles of track from two Railroads, from the 13th to the 19th of May. In all of these operations the Regiment marched over four hundred miles and sustained a loss of two killed, nineteen wounded and seven prisoners. Col. Robert S. Foster being all the operations in the vicinity of the Chickahominy, until the 12th, when it returned to the White House, and from thence to Bermuda Hundred. On the 15th it crossed the Appomattox River and was engaged in the assaults on the rebel works in front of Petersburg, returning to Bermuda Hundred on the 17th. The non-veterans left the regiment on the 19th, and reached Indianapolis on the 24th of June, when they were mustered out. On the 30th of July the regiment engaged in the charge on Petersburg, after the explosion of the mine, after which it remained in the trenches of our works until September. On the 15th of that month, it participated in the battle of Strawberry Plains and operations against Richmond, on the north side of the James River, engaging in the battle of Chapin's Bluff, and the assault on Fort Gilmore on the 19th, and the attack on the rebel fortifications in front of Richmond on the 10th of October. In November it was sent, with other troops, to New York City to preserve order during the election excitement, and on returning sailed with the first expedition to Fort Fisher, on the 3d of December, and returned to Chapin's Bluff on the 31st.

Upon the muster-out of the non-veterans, the veterans and recruits were, by order of Maj. General Butler, on the 6th of December, 1864, re-organized into a battalion of five companies. This battalion was, subsequently, made a full regiment by the addition of five companies of drafted men. On the 3d of January, 1865, it sailed with the second expedition to, and engaged in the assault on Fort Fisher, on the 15th, and also participated in the capture of Fort Anderson, on the 19th of February, and the occupation, on the 22d, of Wilmington. After remaining here some weeks it marched to Raleigh, where it remained from the 14th of April till the 20th of July, when it was assigned to duty at Goldsboro. On the 5th of September it was mustered out and started for home on the 7th, arriving at Indianapolis on the 15th, with 29 officers and 550 enlisted men, where it was finally discharged.

appointed Brigadier General on the 16th of June, Lieut. Col. Cyrus J. Dobbs was promoted Colonel. On the 27th the Regiment left Suffolk and joined Gen. Keyes at the White House, on the Pamunkey River, from whence it marched, on the 1st of July, on an expedition to destroy the Railroads north of Richmond. Returning, it sailed from Portsmouth on the 28th, for Charleston Harbor, reaching Folly Island on the 3d of August. Here the Regiment was stationed for several months, participating in the operations on Morris Island during the siege of Forts Wagner and Gregg, and was the first Regiment to enter the Fort in the assault on Fort Wagner on the 7th of September. In December a portion of the Regiment re-enlisted as Veterans, at Folly Island, and reached Indianapolis, on Veteran furlough, on the 1st of January, 1864, where they were received by Gov. Morton in the Hall of the House of Representatives.

Leaving Folly Island on the 23d of February, the regiment joined Gen. Seymour at Jacksonville, Florida, where it remained until the 17th of April. It was then transferred, on transports, to Gloucester Point Virginia, and assigned to the 2d Brigade, 3d Division of the 10th Army Corps, which ascended the James River in transports, and landed at Bermuda Hundred on the 5th of May. The Thirteenth participated in nearly all of the operations of Gen. Butler's army south of Richmond, and was conspicuous in the engagement at Wat-hal Junction on the 7th of May, Chester Station on the 10th, and a charge on the rebel rifle pits, near Foster's Farm, on the 20th; in all of which the loss was about two hundred. On the 26th it was withdrawn from the front and attached to the 18th Army Corps, 3d Division, 3d Brigade, and proceeded with it to the White House, and marching from thence joined the Army of the Potomac at New Castle on the 1st of June. Marching with this army to Cold Harbor, it was actively engaged on the 3d, in the battle at that place, and in

FOURTEENTH REGIMENT—THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

The Fourteenth Regiment was originally organized at Camp Vigo, near Terre Haute, in May, 1861, as one of the six regiments of State troops accepted for one year. Upon the call for three years' troops, the regiment volunteered, almost unanimously, for that service. The new organization was mustered into United States' service at Terre Haute, on the 7th of June, 1861, being the first three years' regiment mustered in from Indiana. With 1134 men and officers, and NATHAN KIMBALL as its Colonel, the Fourteenth arrived at Indianapolis on the 24th of June, where it remained until the 5th of July, when it left for the seat of war in Western Virginia, fully armed and equipped. On the 11th, after a forced march from Clarksburgh, the regiment reached Rich Mountain, where it was held in reserve in line of battle, but did not participate in the engagement. After the victory, the column moved on, through Beverly, to Cheat Mountain, where the Fourteenth was stationed on outpost duty, from the 16th of July to the 8th of October, during which time it bore a conspicuous part in the engagement with Lee's army, on Cheat Mountain, on the 12th of September, losing three killed, eleven wounded, and two prisoners; and, also, in the battle of Green Brier, on the 3d of October, losing five killed and eleven wounded. On the 15th of December it moved from Huttonsville to Philippi, and marching from there on the 30th, via Green Spring Run, went into quarters at Romney. Remaining at that place until the 10th of January, 1862, it then moved to Paw Paw Tunnel, where the remainder of the winter was spent, the regiment, during the time, engaging in several expeditions in search of the enemy. On the 4th of March, it marched to Martinsburg, where Gen. Shields assumed the command of the division, and ordered it immediately to Winchester. On the evening of the 22d of March, the regiment was engaged in some severe skirmishing with Stonewall Jackson's army in its advance on Winchester from Strasburg, and on the day following, participated in the decisive battle of Winchester Heights, losing four killed and fifty wounded. Gen. Shields having received a wound on the 22d, the command of the army devolved on Col. Kimball, which left the Fourteenth in command of Lieut. Col. Harrow. The regiment took part in the pursuit of the enemy that followed this battle, and on the 15th of May, commenced its march to Fredericksburgh, reporting to Gen. McDowell at that place on the 22d, and on the 24th marched back again, by way of Manassas Gap, to Front Royal, arriving there on the 1st of June, in time to aid in driving the enemy out of the place. It was then marched and counter-marched, between Front Royal and Luray, until the 19th of June, when it was marched to Bristow Station, on the Orange and Alexandria railroad, and from thence by rail to Alexandria. The whole distance marched from May 12th till June 23d, was 339 miles, a part of which time, most of the men were without shoes, and very short of rations. Moving to Alexandria, by rail, and thence by water, the regiment reached Turkey Bend, on the James river, on the 2d of July. The army of the Potomac was then retreating, and the enemy following closely. The Fourteenth was at once sent out to meet the enemy, and assisted in checking his advance, after some severe fighting. Being assigned to the 2d Army Corps, then commanded by Sumner, it was kept on the extreme outpost, without tents or covering of any kind, for some twenty days, coming in contact with the enemy almost night and day. On the 15th of August it marched with the army from Harrison's Landing to Newport News, where transports were taken to Alexandria, from which place it was hurriedly marched to Centreville on the 30th, where it assisted in covering the retreat of the army of the Potomac. Then followed the Maryland campaign, during which the regiment marched to Frederick City, and thence to South Mountain, where it was held in reserve during the battle on the 12th of September. Following the rebels over the mountain, it participated in the great battle of Antietam on the 17th, serving in Kimball's brigade of French's division, it being the only portion of the line of battle that did not, at some time during the engagement, give way.

For its behavior on this occasion Gen. French gave the Brigade the title of the "Gibraltar Brigade"—it having maintained its position, repelling the terrible onslaught of the enemy, filling the ditch in front with killed and wounded, and, finally advancing and driving the enemy from the field, taking many prisoners. The Fourteenth was engaged for four hours within sixty yards of the enemy's line, and after exhausting sixty rounds of cartridges the men supplied themselves with others from the boxes of their dead and wounded companions. It went into the fight with 320 men and lost 31 killed and 150 wounded, including three officers killed and seven wounded. After the battle the Brigade marched to Harper's Ferry, arriving there on the 22d, from whence, on the 29th of October, it moved to Warrenton. Here Burnside assumed the command of the army. The Fourteenth then marched to Falmouth and remained inactive until the 11th of December, when the movement on Fredericksburgh commenced. After crossing the Rappahannock on the 12th and occupying Fredericksburgh, the battle was commenced on the morning of the 13th, by the "Gibraltar Brigade" leading the attack upon the enemy's works, just outside the city. Such was the strength of the enemy's works, and so great was his advantage of position, that it was found impossible to advance beyond a certain point, where some little protection was given by a depression in the ground. Here the brigade lay until sundown, when the army was withdrawn, with a loss to the Fourteenth regiment of four killed, seventeen wounded, and eight missing. On the 15th, the regiment recrossed the river, and remained at Falmouth until the 28th of April, 1863, when it marched to the United States Ford, and crossed over to Chancellorsville. On the first two days of the battle—1st and 2d of May—the "Gibraltar Brigade" was held in reserve, but on the third it was moved to the front (the Fourteenth Indiana being on the right), and charging the enemy, drove him some distance, re-occupying the ground lost the day before by the retreat of the 11th Corps. The rebels, however, soon rallied, and, massing an overwhelming force, compelled the brigade to fall back to a point where it was supported and relieved by Col. Caldwell's brigade, after being engaged for three hours. The loss to the Fourteenth was seven killed, fifty wounded, and two missing. After the battle, and the retreat across the Rappahannock, the regiment went into its old camp at Falmouth, remaining there from the 6th of May till the 14th of June, when it marched northward, crossing the Potomac at Edwards' Ferry. Going by way of Frederick City, the Fourteenth reached Gettysburg on the evening of the 1st of July, and the next morning was placed in position, but did not participate in the fighting until about dusk, when it was moved to the front of the cemetery, on the right, to the relief of Gen. Howard's Corps. Here, in a charge made upon the advancing rebels, the Fourteenth saved from capture the guns of Rickett's battery, crowded the rebels down the hill in front, and captured all of the Field officers, the colors; and most of the men, of the 21st North Carolina. After silencing the rebels in its immediate front, the regiment also succeeded in resisting a flank fire, made on the left of its rear, during the night.

In the bloody contest that took place the following afternoon for

the possession of the hill, the Fourteenth bore a conspicuous part, the Division (Gen. Harrow's), of the 2d Corps, to which it was attached, bearing the brunt of the desperate attack immediately on the left of the Cemetery. The Regiment lost one hundred and twenty-three men and officers in killed and wounded. After the victory, the Fourteenth followed the retreating rebels to Williamsburg, on the Potomac, and from thence marched, by the way of Harper's Ferry, to Elk Run, near Warrenton. On the 16th of August, it was sent to New York to aid in quelling the riots there. In October, the Regiment rejoined the Army of the Potomac, at Wilson's Creek, Va., and took its old place in the 2d Corps. On the 10th of that month, during Gen. Meade's retreat from Culpepper, the 2d Corps halted at Bristow Station, and, giving the enemy battle, defeated him handsomely. Advancing again, and crossing the Rappahannock, the Regiment participated in the attack on the enemy's entrenchments at Mine Run, on the 27th of November. Returning to Stevensburgh, the Regiment went into winter quarters, and while here a portion of the Regiment re-enlisted, on the 24th of December, 1863. On the 6th of February, 1864, it moved to Morton's Ford, on the Rapidan, where a severe action was had with the enemy, the Fourteenth losing two killed and thirteen wounded. After this the Regiment remained in its old quarters until the 4th of May, when the whole army moved southward, with Gen. Grant in command. In all of the engagements that followed this forward movement, the Fourteenth took an active part, Hancock's 2d Corps being, on all occasions, selected to bear the brunt of the severest fighting. At Spottsylvania, Col. Coons was killed, while bravely leading the Fourteenth to a victorious charge upon the enemy's works. The battle of Cold Harbor was the last one in which the old Fourteenth was engaged, the non-veterans being, on the 6th of June, ordered to report to Indianapolis for muster out, on account of the expiration of their term of service. Reaching Indianapolis on the 12th of June, they were finally discharged on the 20th, to date back to the 16th of June, 1865. The detachment of veterans and recruits remained on duty with the 2d Corps, and was, on the 1st of August, transferred to the 20th Regiment, with which organization it served until its final muster out of service, at Louisville, Ky., on the 12th of July, 1865.

FIFTEENTH REGIMENT—THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

The Fifteenth Regiment was originally organized as one of the six regiments of State troops, at Lafayette, in May, 1861, and was re-organized and mustered into the United States service, for three years, at the same place, on the 14th of June, 1861, with GEORGE D. WAGNER as Colonel. Soon after, it moved to Indianapolis, which place it left on the 1st of July, for Western Virginia, stopping at Cincinnati until the 4th of July. Proceeding by rail to Clarksburg, it marched from thence to Rich Mountain, where it arrived on the 11th, while the battle was in progress, and next day formed part of the pursuing force, assisting in the capture of many prisoners. The regiment was afterward stationed in Elkwater Valley, where it remained until November 19th, taking an active part in the operations of Gen. Reynolds that season, among which were the repulse of Gen. Lee and battle of Green Brier. The Fifteenth left Huttonsville on the 19th of November, and reported to Gen. Buell, at Louisville, the last of the same month. It took an active part in the Campaign under General Buell, arriving at Shiloh during the battle, in time to render excellent service—was constantly on duty during the siege of Corinth, and took part in the closing scenes of the battle of Perryville. In the pursuit of Bragg towards Cumberland Gap, the duty was arduous, forced marches and skirmishes being the daily routine for some time. In November, 1862, in connection with other troops, the Regiment marched to Nashville, where the Army of the Cumberland was re-organized, under Gen. Rosecrans. Col. Wagner being appointed a Brigadier General on the 29th of November, Lieut. Colonel Gustavus A. Wood was commissioned his successor. In the march toward Murfreesboro it participated, and in the battle of Stone River, on December 31st, 1862, and January 1st and 2d, 1863, it bore a conspicuous part, losing 197 officers and men killed and wounded, out of 440 engaged. After this the Regiment remained at Murfreesboro until June 24th, taking part in the various expeditions sent out from that place. It then marched to Tullahoma, where, as part of Crittenden's Corps, it aided in turning the rebel position on the left, compelling the evacuation of Tullahoma. The Regiment then remained in camp at Pelham, Tennessee, until August 17th, when the army advanced on Chattanooga, Gen. Wagner's brigade, of which the Fifteenth was a portion, being the first to enter Chattanooga. Here the Regiment performed post duty from September 9th until shortly before the battle of Mission Ridge, in which engagement it participated, suffering heavily. Its loss was 202, out of 334 engaged, being over sixty per cent. The day after the battle it marched, with other troops, to the relief of Gen. Burnside, at Knoxville, marching the whole distance—over one hundred miles—in six days; a great many of the men without shoes, and all on very short rations. The Regiment remained in the vicinity of Knoxville, on very severe duty, without baggage or tents, and with very little to eat, until February 1864, when it was ordered to Chattanooga to do garrison duty. While there a portion of the Regiment re-enlisted on the 15th of February, 1864. It remained at that place, under Gen. Steadman, until the 16th of June, 1864, when, in obedience to orders from Gen. Thomas, it left for Indianapolis, to be mustered out of the service, its time having expired on the 14th of June. A detachment of veterans and recruits were left behind, and these were transferred to the 17th Regiment of Indiana Volunteers, (mounted infantry,) in the month of June, 1864, and served with that organization until the 8th of August, 1865, when it was finally discharged.

SIXTEENTH REGIMENT—ONE YEAR'S SERVICE.

The organization of the Sixteenth Regiment was completed at Richmond, in the month of May, 1861, with PLEASANT A. HACKLEMAN as Colonel. It was intended to serve within the limits of the State for one year, but its services were offered and accepted by the General Government the same day that the North was startled with the news of the disaster at Bull Run. The transfer to the U. S. service for the unexpired portion of its twelve months' enlistment was made on the 23d of July, on which day the Regiment left Richmond. It was the first Regiment that marched through Baltimore after the firing upon the Sixth Massachusetts Regiment, in April. Reaching Harper's Ferry, it was assigned to Gen. Banks' Army, and was stationed in Pleasant Valley, near Solomon's Gap. About the middle of August, the Sixteenth moved, with Gen. Abercrombie's Brigade and Banks' Army, through the valley of the Monocacy, to Hyattstown, passing Carroll Manor on the route. In the latter part of August, it marched to Darnestown, near which place it encamped on the 1st of September. Remaining here until October 21st—the fatal day of Ball's Bluff—the regiment received marching orders, and all day long, during its march, the sound of cannon was heard. Reaching Edward's Ferry that night, the Regiment crossed over the Potomac in canal boats and joined Gorman's Brigade early next morning, which lay in the mud along the bank. In the afternoon of the 22d, an attack was made upon the pickets, in which two men of the Sixteenth were killed. Immediately after, the Regiment was hurried forward, in line of battle, on the Bluff's, and here, in the evening, participated in a brisk engagement with the enemy, which was ended by the rebels retiring during the night. Orders being given for an evacuation, the Sixteenth was detailed, on the 23d, as a picket line, to cover the retreat of our forces, and was the last regiment to recross the Potomac, reaching the Maryland shore at daylight on the morning of the 24th. Two men were drowned during this expedition. On the 26th, it moved to Seneca Creek, where it encamped until the 2d of December, when it again took up its line of march, reaching Frederick City on the 6th, near which place it went into winter quarters, called "Cantonment Hicks."

Towards the latter part of February, 1862, the long expected movement of the armies commenced. The Sixteenth took cars for Harpers Ferry on the 27th reaching there the same evening. On the 1st of March it moved to Charlestown, where it remained until the 10th, and then marched to Berryville, where a halt was made for two days. Resuming the march on the night of the 12th, they arrived at Winchester

the next morning to find it already occupied by another division of the army. In a few days after the Sixteenth, with a detachment of other troops from the Brigade marched back, to Snicker's Ferry, where it built a bridge across the Shenandoah, accomplishing the work in forty-eight hours. Here six men of Stonewall Jackson's army were captured by Lieut. Copeland of the Sixteenth. On the 23d of March the army crossed the Blue Ridge and marched to near Aldie, where word being received of the battle of Winchester, the command was marched back and encamped on the ground before occupied on the other side of the mountain. Crossing the Shenandoah on the 25th, the Sixteenth was ordered to retrace its steps, and on the next day crossed the Blue Ridge, (for the third time), and encamped near Goose Creek. From here the Regiment marched to Aldie, and from thence, through Centerville to Warrenton, arriving there on the 2d of April. While in camp at that place, the Sixteenth was on active duty, though not in active service. On the 12th of May, it left Warrenton for Washington, D. C., where on the 14th of May, 1862, it was mustered out of service and soon after returned to Indiana. On the 30th of April it is commanding officer, Col. Hackleman was commissioned a Brigadier General and on the 13th of May, in presence of the regiment, an elegant sword was presented by the enlisted men of the Sixteenth Indiana. This gallant officer was killed in battle at Iuka, Mississippi. Lieut. Col. Thomas J. Lucas succeeded him as Colonel, a few days before the final discharge of the Regiment.

SIXTEENTH REGIMENT—THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

In pursuance of instructions of the War Department, dated May 17th, 1862, the Sixteenth Regiment was re-organized for three years' service at Indianapolis, on the 27th of May, 1862, but was not mustered in until the 19th of August, at which date the last Company was reported full. With Thomas J. Lucas as Colonel, the regiment left the same day for Kentucky, to aid in repelling the invasion of that State by Kirby Smith. On the 30th of August it took part in the battle of Richmond, Kentucky, losing 200 men killed and wounded, and 600 prisoners. Lieutenant Colonel Joel Wolfe was killed in this action while the regiment was endeavoring to cut its way through the rebel lines. After the defeat the prisoners were paroled and sent to Indianapolis, where they remained in parole camp until November 1st, when they were exchanged. On the 20th of that month the regiment marched to Cairo, and from thence to Memphis, where it remained until the 1st of December, and then moved down the river to participate in the Vicksburg campaign. On the 25th the brigade of which the Sixteenth was a part, was sent to cut the Texas and Shreveport railroad at Dallas. In this expedition it marched sixty-five miles in thirty-six hours, swam two bayous, destroyed ten miles of railroad track, and burned one million dollars worth of cotton belonging to the rebel Government. On the 1st of January, 1863, it engaged the enemy in the attempt to storm his works at Chickasaw Bayou, near Vicksburg, and was driven back, the brigade to which it was attached losing 500 men. Re-embarking on the 3d, the Sixteenth reached Arkansas Post on the 10th of January, and attacked the enemy in the fort, skirmishing until nightfall. On the 11th it participated in the general engagement that ensued, and was the first regiment to plant its colors within the fort; its loss was 77 men killed and wounded. The surrender was made by the same officer (General Churchill) to whom the Sixteenth surrendered at Richmond, and among the captured wagons were some that the regiment had lost in its retreat at that time. On the 17th of January it proceeded to Young's Point, and assisted in digging the canal which was afterward abandoned. On the 14th of April, General Burbridge's brigade, to which the Sixteenth was attached, marched from Milliken's Bend to Smith's plantation, where transports were taken on the 26th. Following the course of Roundaway Bayou, the transports finally entered the Mississippi river opposite Carthage, and from thence they proceeded down the river to Perkins' plantation. Proceeding to Hard Times Landing, opposite and above Grand Gulf, the Sixteenth remained there during the unsuccessful attempt of the gunboats to reduce Grand Gulf, after which failure it disembarked and marched across the bend to a point below Grand Gulf, and encamped. On the 30th it re-embarked and proceeded to Bruinsburgh, Mississippi; landing here, the regiment marched all night toward Port Gibson, and the next morning formed part of the reserve to General Hovey's division. Later in the day it was marched forward and engaged the enemy, driving him from the hill in front. On the 2d of May it marched with the advance into Port Gibson, and remained there until next day, when it moved on with the army. When near Edwards' Station on the 16th, a severe skirmish was had with the enemy, after which the regiment marched to Black River Bridge, where it participated in the engagement at that point. It then proceeded to the rear of Vicksburg, and went into the trenches on the 19th of May, and participated in all of the operations of the siege until the capitulation on the 4th of July. In the assault on the enemy's works on the 22d of May, the Sixteenth bore a conspicuous part, holding an important position for nearly ten hours' continuous fighting, and part of the time was within twenty-five feet of the rebel fort, in its front. During the siege, the regiment lost sixty men killed and wounded. After the surrender the regiment marched to Jackson, where it took part in the skirmishing on the march and at that place.

Returning to Vicksburg it was transported to New Orleans where it was mounted and attached to the Cavalry Corps, Department of the Gulf, and was distributed along the eastern shore of the Mississippi, to protect transportation between New Orleans and points up the coast. In October the Cavalry Corps was ordered on an expedition up the Bayou Teche, in which section the Sixteenth remained, continually skirmishing with the enemy, until the 2d of January, 1864, when it returned to New Orleans. After being re-fitted and remounted, it marched as part of the Cavalry of Banks' expedition up Red River, during which campaign, it had sixteen engagements with the enemy. On the return of this expedition, the Regiment reported to General Cameron, commanding the Lafourche District of Louisiana, and was the only Cavalry organization on that frontier doing active outpost duty. The Sixteenth remained on this duty until ordered to report to New Orleans for muster out. Col. Lucas being appointed Brigadier General on the 20th of February, 1865, Lieut. Col. Robert Conover was commissioned his successor. The regiment was reviewed in that city by Gen. Grierson, who complimented it on having turned over to the Quartermaster the best horses that had ever been in that Department, and as a compliment to the men whose terms of service had not then expired, it was ordered by Gen. Canby that they be transferred to the Thirteenth Indiana Cavalry, thus putting together Infantry and Cavalry, an unknown precedent during this war. The Sixteenth was mustered out at New Orleans on the 30th of June, 1865, and on the 1st of July, left the city for Indianapolis, where it arrived on the 10th of July with 365 men and officers. On the next day it had a public reception in the Capitol grounds, at which the regiment was addressed by Governor Morton, General Hovey and others. Soon after it was finally discharged.

SEVENTEENTH REGIMENT--THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

The Seventeenth Regiment was organized at Camp Morton, Indianapolis, during May, 1861, and was mustered into the United States service on the 12th of June, 1861, for three years. On the 1st of July it left Indianapolis for Parkersburgh, Virginia, which place it reached on the 5th, after stopping three days at Cincinnati. Remaining in this vicinity until the 23d, it took the cars and moved to Oakland, Maryland. Marching sixteen miles to the north branch of the Potomac, it was engaged until the 7th of August in constructing the fortifications known as Camp Pendleton. Proceeding by railroad from Oakland to Webster, and thence on foot up Tygart's Valley to Huttonsville, the regiment reached Cheat Mountain Pass on the 12th, and afterward went into camp at Elkwater. While in this vicinity the Seventeenth participated in the operations of General Reynold's army, including the battle of Green Brier on the 3d of October, in which its loss was one killed. On the 19th of November it proceeded to Louisville, Kentucky, where it reported to General Buell on the 30th, and there lay in camp on Oakland Race Course until the 10th of December. Being assigned to General Nelson's division, the regiment

Gap, where the enemy was strongly posted. The rebel force of five regiments of infantry, three companies of sharpshooters and a battery, made several charges upon the Seventeenth, which were repulsed gallantly. The regiment held the rebels at bay until out of ammunition, when reinforcements from the other regiments of the brigade coming up, the enemy were driven from the field. The Seventeenth captured seventy-five prisoners and one hundred and twenty-five stands of arms, and sustained a loss of forty-eight killed and wounded. After this engagement it marched to Manchester, driving the enemy, and capturing many prisoners. It then marched on a raid to Cowan, after which it scouted the country in various directions, and on the 21st of August skirmished with the enemy across the Tennessee River, near Chattanooga. After the evacuation of that place, the Seventeenth moved towards the North Chickamauga and Dalton, frequently skirmishing with the enemy. On the 11th of September it marched to near Ringgold, where it met Scott's brigade of rebel cavalry and two pieces of artillery, when a sharp fight ensued, resulting in the driving of the enemy to Tunnel Hill with severe loss. The regiment lost one killed and two wounded. Between this and the 18th frequent skirmishes occurred with the enemy, and on that day the division to which the Seventeenth was attached was attacked in force, and compelled to fall back. The next day the regiment fought nearly all day in the battle of Chickamauga, breaking the enemy's lines every time he charged. On the 20th it repulsed a severe charge of the enemy, and then charged in return, driving the rebels and killing, wounding and capturing a great number; the regiment fought till 3 o'clock in the afternoon, when it was ordered back toward Chattanooga. On the 1st of October it started, as part of General Crook's command, in pursuit of General Wheeler, then in the Sequatchie Valley. On the marched to Camp Wickliffe, near New Haven, where it remained until February 10th, 1862, when it moved toward Green River. Crossing Green River it marched southward, arriving at Nashville on the 12th of March, and there remained until the march to the Tennessee River was begun. Colonel Hascall being appointed Brigadier General on the 25th of March, he was succeeded by Lieut. Colonel John T. Wilder. Leaving Nashville on the 29th of March, the regiment reached the field of Shiloh on the 8th of April. It then participated in the march to and siege of Corinth, and after its evacuation moved with Buell's army through Northern Alabama to McMinnville, Tennessee, where, on the 30th of August, it overtook Forrest and attacked and routed him. On the 3d of September the Seventeenth left McMinnville and marched via Murfreesboro, Nashville, Bowling Green, Elizabethtown and West Point, to Louisville, Kentucky, arriving there on the 25th of September, after marching 270 miles and having a skirmish with Bragg's rear guard on the 21st, near Moundsville. Leaving Louisville on the 1st of October, it moved to Bardstown, where it remained in camp until the 18th, and then marched to Nashville, by the way of Lebanon, Columbia, Glasgow and Gallatin, reaching there on the 26th of November. Between this and the 1st of February, 1863, the regiment was engaged in numerous expeditions in different directions from Nashville, and then moved its camp to Murfreesboro. On the 12th of February orders were received for the regiment to mount itself, and the following month was occupied in foraging and pressing horses, until the regiment was fully mounted, after which it was kept constantly moving on scouting expeditions. On the 18th of May the men were armed with Spencer rifles, with which effective weapons each man became the equal of sixteen rebels. On the 24th of June it moved to Hoover's night of the 3d, the regiment attacked Crew's rebel brigade at Thompson's Cove and routed them, capturing a number of arms, and the battle flag of the Second Kentucky Cavalry, presented to them by the ladies of Elizabethtown, Kentucky; the regiment lost but one wounded. The next day it marched to McMinnville, where it skirmished with the enemy, and drove him out of and beyond the town, losing two killed and four wounded. On the 7th of October, when beyond Shelbyville, the regiment struck the enemy and attacked him, driving him from the field and into Farmington, where he made a stand; here the Seventeenth charged the rebels, capturing three of Wheeler's guns, a great number of small arms and three hundred prisoners; the regiment lost forty-eight killed and wounded, including three commissioned officers. Crossing the Tennessee River at Lamb's Ferry on the 9th, further pursuit was abandoned, and the regiment moved to Huntsville, Alabama, from whence it started, on the 13th, in pursuit of the enemy under Forrest, Roddy, Wharton and others. On the 27th it went into winter quarters at Maysville, from whence, on the 18th of November, in pursuance of the orders of General Thomas, two hundred and fifty of the best mounted men marched to near Chattanooga, and crossed the Tennessee on Sherman's pontoon on the night of the 23d. Moving in the direction of Cleveland, they went round by Tynes's Station, whilst the battle was raging at Mission Ridge, to within seven miles of Ringgold, and destroyed rebel wagon trains and stores. They returned to Cleveland on the 26th, after destroying, altogether, seventy-seven wagons. Being attacked the next day by Kelly's brigade, they were forced to destroy the foundry at Cleveland and fall back to near Chattanooga, losing one man killed. On the 30th they marched toward Knoxville, running through the rebel lines to get into the town. Leaving there on the 5th of December, they crossed the Chilhowee Mountain into North Carolina, and then into Tennessee, camping at Charleston on the 14th of December. The majority of the regiment, then dismounted and in camp at Pulaski, having re-enlisted on the 4th of January, 1864, left the next day for Nashville, where they were joined on the 18th by the part of the regiment at Charleston. Two hundred and eighty six having been re-mustered as veterans, the regiment left Nashville on the 22d of January for Indianapolis, on veteran furlough. Arriving there on the 25th, it was publicly received in the Capitol Grounds, and was addressed by Governor Morton, Colonel Wilder and others. While in Indiana the veterans were allowed to purchase horses, and being remounted, left Indianapolis by rail on the 2d of April, and on arriving at Louisville went into camp until the 18th, when it proceeded to march to Nashville, reaching there on the 25th, after riding one hundred and eighty-six miles. Leaving there next day, the regiment reached Sherman's army, then on the march to Atlanta, on the 10th of May. From this time until the 31st of October it was actively and constantly engaged in the cavalry and scouting operations incident to the march upon and capture of Atlanta, and the pursuit of Hood's retreating army northward. It participated in the numerous skirmishes, the raids to cut the enemy's communications, and was conspicuously engaged at Pumpkin Vine Church, Big Shanty, Belle Plain Road, Kenesaw Mountain, Marietta, Chattahoochee River, (being the first troops to cross this stream,) Stone Mountain, Flat Rock, New Hope Church, Rome, Coosaville, the city, saving two important bridges which the rebels were in the act of firing. By a ruse the enemy were led to believe that our force was but the advance of two divisions of cavalry, and the city was surrendered, and with it Generals Howell Cobb, Mackall, Mercer and Gustavus W. Smith, three thousand prisoners, including officers of all grades, five stands of colors, sixty pieces of artillery and three thousand small arms. The Seventeenth had in the action during the day 451 officers and men, of whom one was killed and two wounded. Camping near the city for a month, it moved into Macon on the 22d of May, where it did post duty until the 8th of August, 1865, when it was mustered out of service. Leaving Macon soon after, the regiment arrived at Indianapolis on the 16th of August with 675 men and 25 officers, and was the day following publicly received in the Capitol Grounds and addressed by Lieutenant Governor Conrad Baker, General Vail, General White, General Wilder and others; in a few days afterwards it was finally discharged from service. During its term of service, the Seventeenth Regiment marched over four thousand miles, and captured over five thousand prisoners, more than six thousand stand of arms, seventy pieces of artillery, eleven stand of colors and more than three thousand horses and mules. All this was done with a loss of three officers and sixty-six men killed, and thirteen officers and one hundred and seventy-six men wounded—a total of killed and wounded of two hundred and fifty-eight.

Leesburgh and Goshen. On the 1st of November, 1863, after turning over its horses to Kilpatrick's cavalry, the regiment left Rome, Georgia, for Louisville, Kentucky, where, on the 24th, it was re-mounted. Moving from Louisville on the 28th of December, it reached Nashville on the 8th of January, 1865, from whence it marched to Gravelly Springs, Alabama, arriving there on the 25th. Here it remained until the 12th of March, when it marched with General Wilson's cavalry command into the interior of Alabama. On the 1st of April the commands of Roddy and Forrest were overtaken and attacked at Ebenezer Church, on Bogue's Creek, twenty-nine miles from Selma; the Seventeenth participated and charged the rebels gallantly, capturing one hundred prisoners and one gun, and losing eight killed, eleven wounded and five missing. On the 2d it participated in the engagement at Selma, and in the taking of the rebel works surrounding the town; the Seventeenth first drove the rebels into their forts and then out of them, and afterward drove them from the interior works and their position behind the railroad embankment into the town, taking all the forts from number eighteen to the river on the west side of the town. Four pieces of artillery, and about three hundred prisoners were captured. Out of 421 officers and men engaged, the Seventeenth lost 12 killed and 80 wounded. After the battle the regiment moved to Montgomery, and from thence to Columbus, Georgia, from which point it marched to Macon, near which place it engaged the enemy on the 20th of April, and drove him into

	JOSEPH W. HIGGINS-----		July 20, 1865--		Mustered out as Sergeant with Regiment.

EIGHTEENTH REGIMENT—THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

The Eighteenth Regiment was organized and mustered into service at Indianapolis, on the 16th of August, 1861, with Thomas Pattison as Colonel, and left the State for St. Louis on the 17th of August. From that place it proceeded into the interior of Missouri, and participated in Fremont's march to Springfield, and in the return march to Otterville, under General Hunter, after which it moved with Pope's army to the Black Water, and there took part in the capture of a large number of prisoners. In February, 1862, the regiment marched with General Curtis's forces to Cross Hollows, and thence to the battle-field of Pea Ridge, where, in the engagement near Leetown on the 6th of March, the brigade to which it was attached saved from capture another brigade, and the Eighteenth Regiment recaptured the guns of the Peoria Artillery. On the next day, in the battle near Elkhorn Tavern, the regiment participated in the advance, which resulted in turning the enemy's left, compelling him to abandon the field. On the 6th of April it marched for Helena, Arkansas, reaching that place on the 13th of July, taking part in the engagement at Cotton Plant, while on the march. Embarking from Helena on transports, on the 11th of October, the regiment reached Sulphur Springs, Missouri, a few days after, and remained on duty in Southeast Missouri during the winter. In the spring of 1863 the Eighteenth was transferred to Grant's army, and, as part of the division commanded by General Carr, participated in the flanking of the enemy's position at Grand Gulf, and in the battle at Port Gibson on the 1st of May, (capturing a stand of colors and some artillery,) and in the engagements at Champion Hills, on the 15th, and Black River Bridge on the 17th of May. From the 19th of May until the capitulation, it was engaged in our works in the rear of Vicksburg. During the assault it was the first regiment to plant its colors on the enemy's works, where they were kept for eight hours. Leaving Vicksburg, the regiment moved to New Orleans, and during the fall participated in a campaign up the Teche River, and in the operations in that part of Louisiana. On the 12th of November it embarked for Texas, where, on the 17th, it was engaged in the capture of a fort on Mustang Island, and also in the successful attack on Fort Esparanza on the 27th of November. On the 1st of January, 1864, the regiment re-enlisted at Indianola and started home on veteran furlough; it was stopped at Baton Rouge, and formed part of a column that defeated a rebel force organizing for an attack on the garrison at that place.

Reaching Indianapolis on the 4th of June, it remained in the State until the 16th of July, when it proceeded to Virginia, joining General Butler's forces at Bermuda Hundred, where it had several severe skirmishes with the enemy near Deep Bottom. On the 5th of August it was transferred to Washington, D. C., and assigned to the Second Division of the Nineteenth Army Corps, and marching to Berryville, Virginia, via Snicker's Gap, joined Sheridan's army in the Valley on the 19th of August. In the campaign that followed, the regiment participated in the battle of Opequan on the 19th of September, losing 54 killed and wounded; in the pursuit and defeat of Early at Fisher's Hill on the 22d of September, losing 7 killed and wounded, and in the battle of Cedar Creek on the 19th of October, losing 51 killed and wounded, and 35 prisoners. On the 6th of January, 1865, it left for Savannah, Georgia, reaching there, on transports, on the 16th, where it was occupied for three months in building fortifications. On the 3d of May it was detached from General Grover's division and sent to Augusta, Georgia, and was the first to raise the stars and stripes on the U. S. Arsenal, and over the city. Returning to Savannah on the 7th of June, it was subsequently transported to the southern portion of the State, where it remained until ordered to be mustered out. On the 28th of August, 1865, it was mustered out and left for Indianapolis, arriving there on the 17th of September, and on the day following was publicly welcomed by the citizens in the Capitol Grounds, where addresses were made by Governor Morton, Gen. H. D. Washburn, (its former Colonel) and others. In a few days after it was finally discharged from service.

NINETEENTH REGIMENT—THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

The Nineteenth Regiment was organized and mustered into service for three years, at Indianapolis, on the 29th of July, 1861, with Solomon Meredith as Colonel. Leaving Indianapolis on the 5th of August, it joined the Army of the Potomac at Washington, on the 9th of August. On the 11th of September it was engaged in the affair at Lewinsville, losing three killed and wounded, and three prisoners. It participated in the advance upon and occupation of Falls Church on the 28th of September, and then went into quarters at Fort Craig, on Arlington Heights. On the 10th of March, 1862, it moved with the 1st Corps, under General McDowell, to Fredericksburg, from whence it marched in May towards the Shenandoah Valley, and then to Warrenton. Remaining here until the 5th of August it moved to Fredericksburg, and from thence on a reconnaissance to Spottsylvania C. H. On the 10th it reached Cedar Mountain, in which vicinity it remained until the army fell back before the advancing rebels. While on the retreat the brigade to which the Nineteenth was attached had a severe engagement with Ewell's command at Gainesville, on the night of the 28th of August, the regiment losing 187 killed and wounded, and 33 missing. It was in this action that Major Isaac M. May lost his life. At Manassas Junction, on the 30th, it was again engaged with but slight loss, after which it marched with the army to Washington, and thence to Frederick City. On the 14th of September the regiment participated in the battle of South Mountain, serving in the 1st Corps, commanded by General Hooker, and losing 40 killed and wounded, and 7 missing. In the battle of Antietam, on the 17th, it was conspicuously engaged, going into the battle with about 200 officers and men, and coming out with but 37 officers and men; among the killed was Lieutenant Colonel Alois O. Bachman. After the battle the regiment lay encamped near Sharpsburg, where it remained until the middle of October. Colonel Meredith being appointed a Brigadier General on the 6th of October, Lieut. Colonel Samuel J. Williams was promoted Colonel. Crossing the Potomac on the 30th of October, the regiment moved to Warrenton, from whence it moved to the Rappahannock near Fredericksburg, and participated in Burnside's attempt to assault the rebel works in the rear of that place, on the 12th and 13th of December. After this it went into winter quarters at Belle Plain. On the 28th of April, 1863, the Nineteenth marched to Fitzhugh's Crossing, below Fredericksburg, where it crossed the Rappahannock on the next morning, and immediately engaged the enemy, losing four killed and wounded. The movement at this point being a feint to enable the main army to cross the river above, on the 2d of May General Reynolds re-crossed the Rappahannock with the 1st Corps and marched to United States Ford, crossing over before day on the 3d and taking position in the line of battle near Chancellorsville, but was not engaged. After the return of the corps to the north side of the river, the Nineteenth went into camp near Fitzhugh's Crossing. On the 21st of May it marched to Westmoreland C. H., and assisted the return of a cavalry force sent in that direction, and on the 12th of June it commenced its march northward, crossing into Maryland at Edward's Ferry, and marching through Frederick City, reached the battle-field of Gettysburg just as the engagement was opening on the morning of the 1st of July. It was the first infantry force to engage the enemy, and in a charge made by the 1st Division of the 1st Corps, assisted in decommissioned his successor. In the siege of Petersburg the Nineteenth was almost constantly on duty, and in the assault made on the enemy's works on the 18th of June, it bore a conspicuous part. The losses sustained by the regiment from the crossing of the Rapidan to the 30th of July, are reported as follows:—killed, 36; severely wounded, 94; slightly wounded, 74; missing, 16—total, 220. The non-veterans left the regiment early in August, and on reaching Indianapolis were mustered out of service. The detachment of veterans and recruits remaining in the field moved with the "Iron Brigade" to cut the Weldon railroad below Petersburg, and took part in the engagements had with the enemy on the 19th and 21st of August. On the 23d of September, 1864, the remaining portion of the Seventh Regiment was transferred to and consolidated with the Nineteenth, the new organization bearing the designation of the Nineteenth Regiment. It still continued on duty in our entrenched works near Petersburg, and on the 18th of October, 1864, it was consolidated with the Twentieth Regiment, of which organized Lieut. Col. William Orr, of the Nineteenth, was commissioned Colonel. The men of the old Nineteenth, after the consolidation, served with the new organization until its final muster out at Louisville, Kentucky, on the 12th of July, 1865.

feating the enemy, and capturing Archer's rebel brigade. In the afternoon the regiment was engaged in the resistance made to the desperate charge made by the rebel army upon the 1st and 11th Corps, and was forced to fall back to Cemetery Hill; during the day the regiment lost 210 out of 288 that went into the battle. On the 2d and 3d of July the Nineteenth occupied a position on Cemetery Hill, but was not actively engaged, though somewhat exposed to the enemy's fire; its loss after the first day was but two wounded.

On the 18th of July the regiment crossed the Potomac at Berlin, and proceeded to Rappahannock Station, where it arrived on the 1st of August. It then moved to Culpepper, in which vicinity it remained until the battle of Mine Run in November, in which it participated. Going into winter quarters at the close of the campaign of 1863, the regiment was not engaged in active duty until spring. During the winter of 1864, a portion of the regiment re-enlisted at Culpepper, Virginia, and these soon after visited Indiana on veteran furlough. Moving with Grant's army across the Rapidan on the 4th of May, the Nineteenth participated in the series of battles that followed, including those in the Wilderness, at Laurel Hill, North Anna and Cold Harbor. At the Wilderness battle on the 5th of May, Col. Williams was killed, and soon after Lieut. Col. John M. Lindley was

TWENTIEETH REGIMENT—THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

The Twentieth Regiment was organized at Lafayette, in the month of July, 1864, after which it rendezvoused at Indianapolis, where it was mustered into service for three years, on the 22d of July, 1864. Leaving the Capital on the 2d of August, it reached Cockeysville, near Baltimore, Maryland, and was placed on duty guarding the Northern Central Railroad to the Pennsylvania line. On the 24th of September the regiment took steamer for Baltimore, and sailed for Hatteras Inlet, North Carolina, which place was reached on the 27th of September. Soon after landing it was sent to the north end of Hatteras Bank, forty miles from the fortifications, without transportation or artillery, and on the 4th of October was attacked by the enemy's fleet, gunboats and transports loaded with infantry, and forced to retreat to the lighthouse, twenty-eight miles distant, and on the next day returned to the fortifications. Remaining here until the 9th of November, the regiment that day embarked for Fortress Monroe, arriving there the following day. Here it lay in camp until March, 1862, when it moved its quarters to Newport News, where it participated in the engagement between the Merrimac, Cumberland and Congress, on the 8th of March, the regiment while deployed on shore, prevented the captors from taking possession of the ship Congress, which had struck her colors to the enemy, wounding the rebel commander Buchanan, and killing and wounding several more. On the 10th of May it moved to Norfolk, and participated in the capture of that city, after which it joined the Army of the Potomac on the Peninsula. Reporting for duty on the 8th of June, it was assigned to Jamieson's Brigade, Kearney's Division, Heintzelman's Corps, and took position on the Fair Oaks battle-ground. On the 25th of June the regiment was severely engaged with the enemy at the battle of the "Orchards," sustaining a loss of 144 men and officers in killed, wounded and missing. It covered the retreat of the 3d Corps in the celebrated Seven Days' Fight, participating in all of the battles, especially that of "Glendale," or "Frazier's Farm," in which the regiment lost heavily.

The Twentieth formed a portion of the flank guard of the Army of the Potomac during its march across the Peninsula to Yorktown. Taking steamer there it proceeded to Alexandria, and from thence moved to the Rappahannock, and again to Manassas Plains, where, on the 29th of August, it took part in the battle, the brave Col. Brown falling early in the action. On the 1st of September it was engaged in the battle of Chantilly, after which it proceeded to Alexandria, and from thence to Arlington Heights. The division to which it belonged being so completely decimated by loss of officers and men it was ordered to rest, and for this reason did not participate in the Maryland campaign that followed. On the 11th of October the Twentieth crossed the Potomac at Georgetown, and moved forward to intercept Stuart's cavalry raiders near Conrad's Ford, but reached there ten hours after they had crossed. It then went into camp near Poolesville, where it remained until the 29th of October, when it re-crossed the Potomac at Conrad's Ford and marched to Leesburg, and from thence to Warrenton. Proceeding to Falmouth in November, it crossed the Rappahannock below Fredericksburg on the 11th of December, and took part in the battle on the left of that city with Franklin's Corps. In this engagement the regiment aided in saving from capture three Union batteries. During its stay over the river its loss was but small.

On the 30th of April, 1863, the Twentieth crossed the Rappahannock with the 3d Corps and took a position, and was actively engaged from the first in the battle of Chancellorsville, capturing at one time the whole of the Twenty-Third Georgia, numbering more than its own men. When the 11th Corps broke, enabling the enemy to turn our right and cut off the 3d Corps from the main army, rendering a midnight attack necessary, the regiment was withdrawn from the front, and facing to the rear, made a charge with the bayonet, driving the enemy back and establishing communication. After resting for nearly a month, the Twentieth moved with the Army of the Potomac in the pursuit of Lee through Maryland and into Pennsylvania, reaching Gettysburg in time to participate in the second day's battle, on the 2d of July. Attached to the 2d Brigade of the 1st Division of Sickles's Corps, it occupied a position on the extreme left of the army, where for some time it was exposed to a galling fire from the enemy, who were concealed behind a stone wall. Here it lost its commanding officer, Col. John Wheeler, and 152 men and officers killed and wounded. On the 3d the regiment was again engaged, and contributed largely to prevent the rebel forces from breaking through our lines, and in securing the great victory that followed. On the 4th of July it was again thrown forward as skirmishers, and had a severe fight, losing one officer and several men. After this it joined in the pursuit, crossing the Potomac at Harper's Ferry, and, overtaking the rear guard of Lee's army at Manassas Gap, attacked and defeated the enemy. Subsequently the regiment was sent to New York, for the purpose of suppressing threatened riots in that city on account of the draft. It rejoined the Army of the Potomac in time to join in the engagements at Locust Grove and Mine Run, in November. It then went into winter quarters, and on the 1st of January, 1864, a portion of the regiment re-enlisted at Culpepper, Virginia, and soon after visited Indiana on veteran furlough.

The Twentieth crossed the Rapidan, with Grant's army, in May, 1864, and participated in the battles of the Wilderness, Todd's Tavern, Po River, Spottsylvania, Tollopotanni and Cold Harbor. At the latter place the veterans and recruits of the Fourteenth Regiment were consolidated with the Twentieth. The regiment then crossed the James river, and was engaged in the battles of Deep Bottom and Strawberry Plains, after which it was placed in the trenches in front of Petersburg, where it was under fire every day, losing many officers and men. Lieut. Col. George W. Meikel was killed while the regiment was engaged in this arduous and perilous duty. On the 18th of October, 1864, the recruits and veterans of the Seventh and Nineteenth Regiments were transferred to and consolidated with the Twentieth—the Colonel of the new Twentieth being William Orr, formerly Lieutenant Colonel of the Nineteenth. After the consolidation, the regiment remained in the works near Petersburg until the advance made by the army the following spring. The only respite from this duty was when the regiment was sent out, with other troops, to cut the enemy's communications. In the advance on the Weldon Railroad, it went as far as Stony Creek, and afterwards participated in the battles on the left of Petersburg, at Preble's

House and Hatcher's Run. In all of the engagements on the left, from Hatcher's Run to the fall of Richmond, the Twentieth took an active part, and was in the advance division of the 2d corps, which was the directing corps of the army in the pursuit of Lee, participating in all the battles up to the surrender of the Army of Virginia—its last engagement with the enemy being at Clover Hill, on the 9th of April, 1865. Soon after, the regiment marched to Washington City, from whence it moved to Louisville, Kentucky, on the 14th of June, where it arrived on the 21st of the same month. On the 12th of July, 1865, it was mustered out at that place, with 390 men and 23 officers present for duty. Returning to Indianapolis on the same day, in command of Col. Albert S. Andrews, (originally of the Fourteenth Regiment), it was welcomed home by Gov. Morton in an address delivered at a public reception given the regiment in the State House Grove, at which speeches were also made by General Hovey, Dr. Opheus Everts and Chaplain Wm. C. Porter. A few days after the regiment was finally discharged from service.

TWENTY-FIRST REGIMENT INDIANA VOLUNTEERS.

The Twenty-First Regiment was organized and mustered into service as an infantry organization, for three years, at Indianapolis, on the 24th of July, 1861, with James W. McMillan as Colonel. The following week it was ordered East, reaching Baltimore on the 3d of August, where it remained until February 19, 1863, during which time it participated in Gen. Lockwood's expedition to the eastern shore of Virginia. The regiment sailed from Baltimore to Newport News, from which place it embarked, on the 4th of March, on the steamship Constitution, and sailed with Butler's expedition. On the 15th of April it left Ship Island on the ship Great Republic, which laid off the mouth of the Southwest Pass during the bombardment of Forts St. Phillip and Jackson, after which, on the 29th of April, a portion of the regiment landed in the rear of St. Phillip and waded across to the Quarantine, while the balance went through Pass L'Outre up the Mississippi to New Orleans. This portion of the regiment was the first of Butler's army to touch the New Orleans wharf on the 1st of two companies, was transported up the Mississippi, and took part in the siege of Port Hudson, in which it distinguished itself for the remarkable accuracy of its firing. The loss to the regiment during the siege of forty-two days and nights was 28 in killed, wounded and missing. On the 21st of June part of one company manned a light battery in a desperately contested little fight at Lafourche Crossing, and on the 23d of June, most of Company "F" were captured at Brashear City. In August three companies, under Major Roy, accompanied the expedition to Sabine Pass, and engaged the enemy at that place. During the winter of 1863 and 1864 a large majority of the regiment re-enlisted, and were re-mustered as veterans at New Orleans. Soon after, the veterans visited Indiana, when a grand reception was given them at Metropolitan Hall, Indianapolis, on the 19th of February, 1864, at which addresses were made by Gov. Morton, Mayor Caven, Gen. Hovey, and Cols. James R. Slack and John A. Keith.

In the disastrous expedition of Gen. Banks up the Red River in March, 1864, companies "G" and "H" bore an active part, after which the different companies were stationed at different points in the Department of the Gulf. In April, 1865, six batteries of the First Heavy Artillery, under command of Major Roy, participated in the investment of Mobile, the reduction of Forts Morgan and Gaines and Spanish Fort, and the capture of Mobile. At the close of active operations, the different batteries were assigned to duty at Forts Morgan, Pickens and Barrancas, and in the works at Baton Rouge and other points of river defense, with regimental headquarters at Mobile. At the time of closing this sketch (October, 1865,) the First Heavy Artillery—Twenty-First Regiment—is still in service, and performing the duty above mentioned, under the command of Col. Benjamin F. Hays.

14 May, and immediately marched up into the city, the regimental band playing, "Picayune Butler's coming, coming." The Twenty-First then went into camp at Algiers, where it remained until the 30th of May, making frequent forays into the interior; it also captured many steamers in Red River, and the sea-going blockade-runner Fox, at the mouth of Grand Caillou on the Gulf coast.

On the 1st of June the regiment was landed at Baton Rouge, where it remained until the post was evacuated. On the 5th of August it participated in the battle of Baton Rouge, fighting for over three and a half hours against an entire brigade without faltering, and sustaining a loss of 126 killed and wounded. Adjutant Latham, and Lieuts. Seeley, Grinstead and Bryant, were killed in this engagement. After this the regiment went into camp near Carrollton, and on the 8th of September it surprised Waller's Texas Rangers at Des Allemands, killing twelve and capturing thirty or forty prisoners. The Twenty-First went to Berwick's Bay in October, where it remained until the latter part of February, 1863. During its stay in this section a portion of the regiment was temporarily transferred to gunboats, and participated in daily fights with the iron-clad "Cotton;" and accompanied Weitzel's advance up the Bayou Teche, taking part in the fight at Corner's Bridge, and the destruction of the "Cotton." Col. McMillan being promoted Brigadier General on the 29th of November, 1862, Lieut. Col. John A. Keith was commissioned his successor.

In February, 1863, the regiment was, by order of Gen. Banks, changed to heavy artillery service, and designated the First Heavy Artillery, and in July and October, under orders from the War Department, two additional companies—"L" and "M"—were organized and added to the regiment. A portion of the regiment accompanied Gen. Banks up the Teche, and participated in the second battle of Camp Bisland. Subsequently the regiment, with the exception of

The Twenty-Second Regiment was organized at Madison on the 15th of July, 1861, and mustered in for three years at Indianapolis, on the 15th of August, 1861, with Jeff. C. Davis, (then a Captain of the regular army,) as Colonel. On the 17th of August it moved to St. Louis, where it joined the army of Gen. Fremont, and was soon after sent up the Missouri River to the relief of Col. Mulligan at Lexington. While on the route near Glasgow, on the 19th of September, its Major, Gordon Tanner, received a severe gun-shot wound, from which he afterwards died at Jefferson City. Before reaching Lexington news reached the regiment of the surrender of Mulligan's forces, when the expedition was abandoned. The Twenty-Second then marched with Fremont's army to Springfield, and back again to Ottumville, from whence it moved in December, with other troops, and participated in the capture of about 1,300 prisoners at Blackwater. Col. Davis was appointed a Brigadier General on the 18th of December, 1861, and, being attached to his division, the Twenty-Second, under command of Lieut. Col. Hendricks, marched on the 24th of January, 1862, with Gen. Curtis's expedition against Price at Springfield, which resulted in the retreat of the latter from that place, and, eventually, in the great battle of Pea Ridge, on the 6th and 7th of March. In this battle the Twenty-Second bore a conspicuous part, losing 9 killed and 32 wounded, including Lieut. Col. John A. Hendricks, who fell mortally wounded on the first day's engagement.

The regiment then crossed the State of Arkansas to Batesville, and thence, on the 10th of May, to Cape Girardeau on the Mississippi, where it embarked on transports and joined the besieging army at Corinth, Mississippi, two days previous to the evacuation of that place. It then joined in the pursuit, under Pope, going as far as Boonville, and afterwards was stationed at different points in Northern Mississippi until the 17th of August, when it joined Buell's army, and marched with it through Tennessee and Kentucky to Louisville, reaching that city on the 27th of September. Leaving there on the 1st of October, it marched in pursuit of Bragg's army, and on the 8th had a bloody engagement with the enemy at Perryville, losing fifty per cent. of the men engaged. Fifty-six men were killed in this battle, and among the number was Lieut. Col. S. I. Kieth. On the 13th the regiment had a severe skirmish near Lancaster, and marched as far as Crab Orchard in the pursuit. Moving into Tennessee the Twenty-Second reached Nashville on the 28th of November, in which vicinity it remained until the forward movement was commenced by Rosecrans in December. On the march to Murfreesboro it had a skirmish with the enemy at Nolensville on the 26th of December, losing four wounded. On the 31st of December, 1862, and 1st and 2d of January, 1863, the regiment was actively engaged in the battle of Stone River, losing 12 killed, 36 wounded and 30 missing. After the battle the Twenty-Second encamped near Murfreesboro until the march toward Chattanooga was commenced, during which, on the 24th of June, it skirmished with the enemy at Liberty Gap. The Twenty-Second was not engaged in the battle of Chickamauga, having been left to guard the right at Valley Head, and only reached the battle-field on the evening of the 20th of September. It participated in the grand charge up Mission Ridge on the 25th of November, after which it moved into East Tennessee. While encamped at Blain's Cross Roads, on the 23d of December, a sufficient number of men re-enlisted to retain a veteran organization. In February, 1864, the veterans visited Indiana, and were cordially received at Indianapolis on the 13th, and welcomed home in an address by Governor Morton, and by speeches from others.

In the campaign of 1864 the Twenty-Second bore a distinguished part, marching with Sherman's army from Chattanooga in May, and engaging in all of the following named battles and skirmishes: Skirmish at Tunnel Hill, May 7th; skirmish at Rocky Face Ridge, May 9th; battle of Resaca, May 15th; battle of Rome, May 17th; battle of Dallas, May 27th; skirmish at Big Shanty, June 14th; skirmish in front of Kennesaw Mountain, June 19th; skirmish at Chattahooche River, July 7th; battle of Peach Tree Creek, July 19th; battles in front of Atlanta, July 28th, and August 7th; skirmish at Red Oak Station, August 20th; battle of Jonesboro, September 1st, and the skirmishing during the siege of Savannah, from the 16th to the 21st of December. In the forward movement through South and North Carolina, it was engaged in the battle of Averysboro, on the 16th of March, 1865, and in the last engagement of Sherman's army at Bentonville, on the 19th of March, 1865. After the surrender of Johnston's army, the regiment moved with its corps—the Fourteenth—through Virginia to Washington, D. C., where, early in the month of June, 1865, it was mustered out of service, and returning to Indiana, was publicly received by the citizens of Indianapolis on the 16th of June, and addressed by Gov. Morton, Gen. Hovey and others, after which it was finally discharged the service.

TWENTY-THIRD REGIMENT—THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

The Twenty-Third Regiment was organized and mustered into service for three years, at New Albany, on the 29th of July, 1861, with William L. Sanderson as Colonel. Early in August it moved to St. Louis, and from thence to Paducah, Kentucky. In the attack on Fort Henry the regiment was placed on gunboats, and several of the men of Company "B" were lost by the explosion of the boilers of the gunboat Essex on that occasion. On the second day of the battle of Shiloh the Twenty-Third was engaged as part of Gen. Lew. Wallace's division, losing one officer and fifty men in killed, wounded and missing. During the siege of Corinth it formed part of the reserve stationed at Pea Ridge. After the siege was raised the regiment moved to Bolivar, and remained there during the summer of 1862. In September it marched to Iuka, and participated in the recapture of that place, after which it was ordered to proceed to Hatchie Bridge, but arrived there too late to take part in the engagement at that place. In November it marched down the Mississippi Central Railroad, and after the capture of Holly Springs by Van Dorn, moved to Memphis. On the 21st of February, 1863, it proceeded down the river to participate in the Vicksburg campaign, landing at Lake Providence. In the various movements made by Grant's army prior to the march to the rear of Vicksburg, the regiment was engaged, and on the 21st of April volunteers were selected from the different companies and placed on board the steamer J. W. Cheesman to run by the Vicksburg batteries. The boat, in accomplishing this, was badly damaged, but no lives were lost.

During the march in the rear of Vicksburg the Twenty-Third was engaged in the battle of Thompson's Hill, losing one officer and nine men; and again in a skirmish on the 3d of May, having one officer and three men wounded. On the 12th of May it participated in the battle of Raymond, charging the enemy and capturing many prisoners, and losing one-third of the number engaged. It was the first regiment to arrive to the assistance of Hovey's division at Champion Hill, soon after the battle opened, losing 4 officers and 14 men wounded in the engagement. On the 24th of May it took part in the attack on and capture of Jackson. It was in the front line at the siege of Vicksburg, and lost, during the investment, 5 officers and 50 men killed and wounded. During the fall and most of the winter following, it was not actively engaged with the enemy, but on the 3d of Feb. 1864, it marched through Mississippi with Sherman's great raiding army as far as Meridian, and aided in destroying the railroads on the line of march. During the winter the regiment re-enlisted at Hebron, Mississippi, and soon after its return from the Meridian raid came home on veteran furlough, on the expiration of which it was ordered to Bird's Point, Missouri, and from thence it proceeded to Clifton, Tennessee. Moving from that place, it joined the 17th Corps at Acworth, Georgia.

In the campaign against Atlanta it was, from the time of joining Sherman's army at Acworth, every day engaged in battle or skirmish until the capture of Atlanta. On the 3d of October it marched, in pursuit of Hood, through Northern Georgia and Alabama, and on returning to Atlanta proceeded with Sherman's army in its march to Savannah. During this latter campaign it was engaged in several skirmishes. From Savannah, the 17th Corps, to which the regiment belonged, marched to Beaufort, South Carolina, and in January, 1865, started from that point on the campaign through the Carolinas, arriving at Goldsboro, North Carolina, on the 4th of March, losing four wounded in the battle of Bentonville. Upon the surrender of Johnson's army it marched to Washington, D. C., and from thence to Louisville, Kentucky, where, on the 23d of July, 1865, it was mustered out of service. Reaching Indianapolis on the 24th of July, it was present at the reception given the 23d, 33d, 42d and 53d regiments in the Capital grounds, on the 25th of July, on which occasion addresses were made by Maj. Gen. W. T. Sherman—their old commander—and Gov. Morton and others. In a few days after the regiment was finally discharged. During its term of service the regiment has suffered losses, by death, as follows: Killed in battle and died of wounds received, 345; died of disease, 179; making a total loss by death of 524.

TWENTY-FOURTH REGIMENT—THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

The Twenty-Fourth Regiment was organized and mustered into service at Vincennes on the 31st of July, 1861, with Alvin P. Hovey as Colonel, and on the 19th of August marched to St. Louis. Joining Fremont's army at that place, it moved into the interior of Missouri, where it remained until February, 1862, when it was ordered to re-inforce the army then investing Fort Donelson. Reaching Paducah, Ky, the day after the surrender of Fort Donelson, it proceeded to Fort Henry, where it remained until the march of Grant's army to Pittsburg Landing. In the battle of Shiloh it was conspicuously engaged, losing many men and officers, including Major John Gerber. Col. Hovey being promoted a Brigadier General on the 28th of April, Major William T. Spieceley was commissioned his successor. In May movement against Mobile was made, in April, when it moved to the vicinity of that city, and participated in the investment, taking part in the battles near Blakely, Alabama, and assaults made upon the enemy's works, and was the first to place its colors thereon.

After the defeat of the rebels at that point, the Regiment was first sent to Selma, Alabama, and afterward transferred to Galveston, Texas. On the 16th of July, 1865, the Twenty-Fourth was, in pursuance of the orders of Gen. Canby, re-organized as a Battalion of five companies. The other five companies being mainly composed of men who had originally enlisted in the Twenty-Fourth and Sixty-seventh Regiments prior to the 1st of October, 1862, were, under the orders of the War Department, mustered out of service on the 19th of July, 1865, and at once proceeded home. Arriving at Indianapolis they were welcomed by the citizens on the 4th of August, at a public reception given in the State House Park, at which addresses were delivered by Lieutenant Governor Conrad Baker, General Hovey, and others. The returning men and officer numbered 310. The Battalion still remaining in service is composed of the veterans of the Twenty-Fourth, and such recruits for that and the Sixty-Seventh Regiment as were retained in service because of the non-expiration of their term of service. This Battalion is still (October, 1865,) stationed at Galveston, Texas.

and June following it participated in the siege of Corinth, and after the evacuation proceeded across the country to Memphis. In July the regiment was transferred to Helena, Arkansas, at which place it remained during the winter, engaged in sundry expeditions sent out from that post. In the spring of 1863 it joined Grant's army, and moved with Hovey's Division of the Thirteenth Corps during the campaign against Vicksburg, engaging in all the battles and skirmishes, including the battles of Port Gibson and Champion Hill. In the latter battle it was distinguished for its gallantry, charging and defeating the enemy handsomely. During the siege of Vicksburg it was actively engaged in the trenches from the 19th of May until the 4th of July, and after the capitulation sailed for New Orleans, reaching that city in the month of August.

In the fall of 1863 the regiment was on duty at New Iberia, Louisiana, and subsequently at Algiers, near New Orleans, where, on the 1st of January, 1864, it re-enlisted as a veteran organization, and soon after visited Indiana on furlough. During the year 1864 the Twenty-Fourth was stationed at different points in Louisiana, and while at Morganza on the 10th of December, the Sixty-Seventh Regiment was consolidated with it, the new organization retaining the designation of the Twenty-Fourth Regiment. In January, 1865, it was transferred to Barrancas, Florida, where it remained until the

TWENTY-FIFTH REGIMENT—THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

The Twenty-Fifth Regiment was organized at Evansville on the town. In October it participated in the march of Fremont's army to 17th of July, 1861, and mustered into service, for three years, at the Springfield and back again to Otterville, marching two hundred and same place, on the 19th of August, 1861. On the 26th of August it forty miles in sixteen days, with but two days rest. The regiment moved to St. Louis, and there remained in camp until September then remained in the vicinity of Otterville and Lamine river bridge 14th, when it proceeded to Jefferson City, and from thence to George- until December, when it marched with Pope's Division south of Warrensburg, forming part of the auxiliary force that captured thirteen hundred rebels on the Black Water on the 19th of December. On the following day the Twenty-Fifth took charge of the prisoners and marched them to Sedalia, and from thence, by rail, to St. Louis. It was then quartered in Benton Barracks until the 2d of February, 1862, when it left on transports to re-inforce the expedition up the Tennessee river against Fort Donelson. Reaching Fort Henry on the 11th, the regiment marched to Fort Donelson on the 12th, and formed a part of the attacking force on that place on the 13th, but was compelled to fall back that day, with a loss of sixteen killed and eighty wounded. On the 15th it formed a part of the storming party that went into and held the outer works, sustaining a loss of four wounded. After the surrender, the regiment occupied the Fort.

On the 5th of March it left Fort Donelson, and marching to Fort Henry, there embarked on transports and moved up the river on the 11th. Disembarking at Pittsburg Landing on the 18th, the regiment went into camp until the 6th of April, when it participated in the battle of Shiloh, engaging the enemy on both days, and losing twenty-seven killed and one hundred and twenty-two wounded. Colonel Veatch being appointed a Brigadier General on the 28th of April, Lieut. Col. Wm. H. Morgan was promoted Colonel. After the battle the Twenty-Fifth took part in the siege of Corinth until the evacuation, and then marched to and occupied Grand Junction on the 10th of June. It remained in this vicinity until July 17th, when it moved toward Memphis, arriving there on the 21st, and going into camp. Here it remained—chasing guerrillas and scouting—until the 6th of September, when it moved towards Bolivar. Leaving that place on the 4th of October, with Hurlbut's division, to cut off Price and Van Dorn's forces, then retreating from their repulse at Corinth, it met them at Hatchie River, where a brief but fierce battle was fought on the 5th of October. The enemy was defeated and compelled to retreat by another route. The loss to the regiment was three killed and seventy-six wounded. Returning to Bolivar, it then marched into Northern Mississippi, and during this campaign six companies were stationed at Davis' Mills, on Wolf river, and the remaining companies were distributed along the line of the railroad from Grand Junction to Holly Springs, guarding our communication. Col. Morgan, with the six companies, was attacked on the 21st of December by the rebel General Van Dorn, with a large force of mounted infantry. The little band bravely resisted the attack and fought so gallantly that the enemy was driven off the field, leaving behind twenty-three of his dead, and many wounded and prisoners. Col. Morgan's loss was but three slightly wounded.

From Davis' Mills the regiment moved to Memphis on the 14th of January, 1863, and was there placed on provost duty until November, when it marched to Grand Junction, and guarded the railroad from that place to Moscow. Returning to Memphis on the 28th of January, it moved down the river and joining Sherman's army marched with it on the raid through Mississippi to Meridian and return, participating in a skirmish at Marion Station. During this march the regiment re-enlisted at Canton, Mississippi, on the 29th of February, 1864, and on returning to Vicksburg proceeded to Indianapolis, reaching there on the 21st of March. On the expiration of its veteran furlough, it left Evansville on the 24th of April, and pro-

one captured; in a skirmish at Binaka's Bridge on the South Edisto River, on the 9th; in a skirmish at Fayetteville, North Carolina, on the 11th of March, killing five rebels, with no loss to the regiment; and in the battle at Bentonville, on the 19th, with a loss of two killed, twelve wounded and two missing. On the 24th of March it arrived at Goldsboro, having marched five hundred miles in fifty-four days. Marching thence to Raleigh, it remained there until the surrender of Johnson's army, and then started for Washington via Petersburg, Richmond and Fredericksburg, arriving at Washington on the 17th of May. Here the regiment remained until the 5th of June, when it was transferred to Louisville, Kentucky, where it arrived on the 10th, and went into camp. On the 17th of July it was mustered out of service with 26 officers and 460 men, and proceeded to Indianapolis, arriving there on the 18th, where it was publicly received in the Capitol grounds, on the 21st, and addressed by Lieut. Gov. Conrad Baker, Gen. Hovey and others. In a few days afterwards the regiment was finally discharged.

During its term of service the Twenty-Fifth has been engaged in eighteen battles and skirmishes, sustaining an aggregate loss of 76 killed, 255 wounded, 4 missing and 17 captured, making a total of 352. It has marched on foot 3,200 miles, has traveled by rail 1,350 miles, and on transports 2,430 miles—making, in all, 6,980 miles. At the original organization it mustered 1,046 men and officers, and received subsequently 686 recruits. Of these 391 have died of disease or of wounds, 695 have been discharged on account of wounds, disability and other causes, 37 have been transferred and 123 have deserted.

ceeded to Decatur, Alabama, where it remained until the 4th of August, participating in several skirmishes with Roddy's rebel cavalry. Moving by rail, it joined the 4th Division of the 16th Army Corps before Atlanta, and was actively engaged in the siege of that stronghold from the 8th until the 26th of August, with a loss of three killed, six wounded and four prisoners. It then marched around Atlanta with the army to Jonesboro, participating in the engagement there, with a loss of two wounded. After the occupation of Atlanta the regiment rested until October 3d, when it formed part of the pursuing force sent northward after Hood's army. While in the advance on the 15th of October, it attacked the rebels at Snake Creek Gap, driving them off, with a loss to the regiment of nine killed and fourteen wounded. Going as far as Gaylesville, Alabama, the regiment then started on its return, reaching Atlanta in time to take part in Sherman's "March to the Sea."

Leaving Atlanta on the 15th of November, the regiment arrived in front of Savannah on the 9th of December, and participated in the investment of that city till the 14th, with a loss of nine wounded. It then marched with its division, and assisted in destroying the railroad from the Altamaha River to the Ogeechee River, (forty miles,) near Fort McAllister. Returning to Savannah on the 22d of December, it remained in camp till the 4th of January, 1865, when it moved with the 17th Army Corps, on transports, to Beaufort, South Carolina, from whence it moved to Pocotaligo. On the 30th the regiment commenced its march from that place to Goldsboro, North Carolina, during which it was engaged as follows:—In the battle at Rivers' Bridge, on the 2d and 3d of February, with a loss of ten wounded and

TWENTY-SIXTH REGIMENT INDIANA VOLUNTEERS.

The Twenty-Sixth Regiment was mustered into service, for three years, at Indianapolis, on the 31st of August, 1861, with William M. Wheatley as Colonel. On the 7th of September it left Indianapolis for the field, and on arriving at St. Louis was sent into the interior of the State, and participated in the Fremont campaign to Springfield. Returning to Sedalia, it was placed on duty guarding the Pacific Railroad, and was kept on this duty until July, 1862. From that time until the 1st of May, 1863, it was engaged in active field duty, moving with the army into Southern Missouri, and thence into Arkansas. During this campaign it participated in the battles of Newtonia, Missouri, Prairie Grove and Van Buren, Arkansas. At the battle of Prairie Grove, on the 7th of December, 1862, the regiment was conspicuously engaged, and suffered severely in killed and wounded. After the engagement at Van Buren, the Twenty-Sixth did guard duty until the 1st of June, 1863, when it was ordered to join Gen. Grant's army in the rear of Vicksburg, and was actively engaged in the trenches until the surrender on the 4th of July. It then went up the Yazoo River and retook Yazoo City. After the surrender of Port Hudson, the regiment was transferred to that place, and was subsequently stationed at Carrollton, Louisiana. On the 29th of September, the regiment engaged the enemy at Camp Sterling, near Morganza, and was defeated, losing nearly one-half of its officers and men, mostly by capture. The prisoners were taken to Tyler, Texas, where they were held for many months.

During the month of October the regiment proceeded to Texas with Gen. Herron's expedition, landing at Brazos Santiago, and then moved to Brownsville, on the Mexican frontier, where, on the 1st of February, 1864, it was re-enlisted. Arriving in Indiana in April, it remained there a month on veteran furlough, returning to the field in Louisiana on the 1st of June. On reaching Donaldsonville it was assigned to the garrison of Fort Butler, where it remained until the spring of 1865. On the 18th of February, 1865, in pursuance of the orders of Gen. Canby, the retained recruits of the Sixtieth Regiment, whose term of service did not expire with that of the organization, were transferred to the Twenty-Sixth, the new organization retaining the designation of the Twenty-Sixth Regiment.

When the campaign opened against Mobile, in the latter part of March, 1865, the Twenty-Sixth, as part of Gen. A. J. Smith's 16th Corps, was transferred to that vicinity, and was actively engaged for several days, participating in the siege and in the assault on Spanish Fort. Upon the occupation of the city, it was assigned to duty there, but was subsequently marched via Montgomery and Selma, Alabama, to Meridian, Mississippi. At the latter place it did post duty for some time, and was then transferred to Macon, Mississippi, where it still remains at the closing of this sketch, (October, 1865,) in command of Col. John G. Clark, the veterans and retained recruits numbering 375 men.

In September, 1865, a detachment of non-veterans and recruits, whose term of service had expired, arrived at Indianapolis in charge of Major Alden H. Jumper for final discharge. These were present at a public reception given them and other troops in the Capitol grounds, on the 18th of September, and were addressed by Governor Morton and others.

TWENTY-SEVENTH REGIMENT—THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

The Twenty-Seventh Regiment was organized at Indianapolis on the 30th of August, 1861, and was mustered into service for three years, at the same place, on the 12th of September, 1861. Leaving the Capital of Indiana on the 15th of September, it moved to Washington City, and in the following month was transferred to Banks' Army of the Shenandoah. During the winter the Regiment was quartered in huts at Camp Halleek, near Frederick City, Maryland, from whence it moved early in March, 1862, across the Potomac into the Shenandoah Valley. It marched into Winchester upon the evacuation of that place on the 9th of March, and, just after the battle of Winchester Heights, joined in the pursuit of Jackson's defeated army. On the 23d of May, it was engaged in the battle of Front Royal and formed part of the column that made the famous retreat on the Strasburg road the following day towards Winchester. Reaching Winchester that night, a furious battle was fought on the morning of the 25th, in which the Twenty-Seventh participated. The brigade to which it was attached—Gordon's—withstood the assault of twenty-eight rebel regiments for three and a half hours and repulsed them. An attempt to check a flank movement on the right was gallantly seconded by the Twenty-Seventh, but the rebels had massed such a force that our army could not resist it longer, and was forced to fall back into the town, engaging the enemy in the public streets. The retreat beyond Winchester was safely conducted, and the regiment crossed the Potomac at Williamsport on the 26th of May.

Soon after the regiment again marched into the Valley, and from thence to Culpepper C. H. via Front Royal, where it became part of Banks' Division of Pope's Army of Virginia. On the 9th of August the regiment marched from Culpepper C. H. to Cedar Mountain, eight miles distant, and participated on that day in the battle of Cedar Mountain. After this battle it was withdrawn to the north side of the Rappahannock, and after the rebel army had forced its way through Thoroughfare Gap and across the Potomac, the regiment, as part of the 12th Corps, joined in the Maryland campaign. At the battle of Antietam, on the 17th of September, it was actively engaged, sustaining a heavy loss. After this engagement the regiment was placed on picket duty, the companies being stationed along the east bank of the Potomac, from Harper's Ferry to the mouth of Opequan Creek. During the winter it moved to the vicinity of Fairfax Station and Stafford C. H., and was not actively engaged with the enemy until the campaign of 1863.

Marching with the army of the Potomac across the Rappahannock, it participated in the great battle of Chancellorsville. On the 3d of May it was conspicuously engaged as part of the 12th Corps, suffering a severe loss in killed and wounded. It next proceeded northward in pursuit of the invading army of Lee, marching with the 12th Corps through Maryland and part of Pennsylvania to Gettysburg. In the decisive battle at this place it bore a distinguished part, participating in the resistance to the grand assault of the rebels on the 3d of July;

The regiment participated in the marching, and in all the skirmishes, battles and assaults of Sherman's army in its Atlanta campaign, and upon its conclusion moved with the army to Atlanta. On the 4th of November, 1864, the non-veterans were mustered out of service, and the veterans and remaining recruits were transferred to the Seventieth Regiment. After the consolidation the men of the old Twenty-Seventh served with the Seventieth Regiment in the campaign through Georgia and the Carolinas, and on the muster out of that organization, were transferred to the Thirty-Third Regiment, in which they continued to serve until the 21st of July, 1865, when the Thirty-Third was mustered out of service at Louisville, Kentucky. Returning home with that organization, the veterans and recruits of the Twenty-Seventh were soon after finally discharged.

the regiment, in this engagement, sustained heavy losses. After the battle it followed the retreating enemy to the Potomac, after which it rested until September, when it was transferred to the West with the 12th Corps. Here it became a part of the 20th Corps, and was stationed at Tullahoma, Tennessee, during the fall and winter following. A portion of the regiment re-enlisted at Tullahoma, Tennessee, on the 24th of January, 1864, and soon after proceeded to Indiana on veteran furlough. Returning to the field it joined Sherman's army in time to participate in the battle of Resacca, on the 15th of May. In a fair open field fight in this engagement, the Twenty-Seventh defeated the Thirty-Second and Thirty-eighth Alabama regiments, killing and wounding a large number, and taking about 100 prisoners, including the Colonel of the Thirty-Eighth Alabama; it also captured the battle-flag of that regiment. The loss to the Twenty-Seventh was 68 killed and wounded.

FIRST CAVALRY (28TH) REGIMENT—THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

In pursuance of instructions from the War Department, orders were issued on the 10th of June, 1861, for the organization of a regiment of cavalry in the counties bordering on the Ohio river, and camps of rendezvous were established at Evansville and Madison. The organization of eight companies was completed at Evansville, and mustered in on the 20th of August, 1861, with Conrad Baker as Colonel. The companies raised at Madison were assigned to the Third Cavalry, and not to the First Cavalry, as first intended. Subsequently two independent cavalry companies—those of Captains Robert R. Stewart and James R. Bracken—were assigned to the First Cavalry as Companies "I" and "K." The eight companies, under command of Col. Baker, left Evansville on the 21st of August, 1861, and proceeded to St. Louis. On arriving at that place the regiment was sent to Ironton, and on the 12th of September three companies in command of Major Gavitt, had a sharp skirmish with a party of rebels on Black river, twelve miles from Ironton, in which five rebels were killed and four captured.

The following month the regiment was placed on duty in the vicinity of Pilot Knob, where it remained during the fall and winter. While campaigning in this region the First Cavalry participated in the battle of Fredericksburg, on the 21st of October, and, in a charge that decided the fate of the battle, captured a piece of artillery and drove the enemy from the field; among the killed of the regiment in this engagement were Major Gavitt and Captain Highman. In the spring of 1862 the First Cavalry moved into Arkansas, and on the 7th of July fought the battle of Round Hill. On reaching Helena it was assigned to the 1st Brigade, 2d Cavalry Division of the 13th Corps, and, with the exception of Company "C," remained on duty in Arkansas during the remainder of its term of service. For over a year it was stationed at Helena, engaging in various expeditions in every direction from that point, and during the last year of its service it was stationed at Pine Bluff. The regiment, with the exception of the recruits whose terms of service had not yet expired, were, in the latter part of August, 1864, ordered to report at Indianapolis for muster out. They reached that place on the 6th of September, and were at once discharged from service.

Company "C," which had been detached as escort to Gen. Hovey, did not rejoin the regiment until just before its departure home. This company marched with Grant's army to the rear of Vicksburg, and participated in that campaign; afterwards it joined Gen. Franklin's command in Western Louisiana, and returned to New Orleans in December, 1863, where it remained until July 7th, and then proceeded to Arkansas.

The remaining recruits of the First Cavalry left behind in Arkansas, were, on the 31st of August, organized into a detachment of two companies—"A" and "B"—and the whole placed in command of Captain James A. Pine, of Company "A." This detachment was stationed at Pine Bluff, and while on a scout on the 15th of September, had a severe engagement with the enemy, and was compelled to fall back, losing eight men wounded and prisoners. On the 1st of January, 1865, it reported to Gen. McGinnis at the mouth of White river, Arkansas, where it remained until the 20th of March, when it was ordered to St. Charles. A party of ten while out repairing the telegraph line, were ambushed by the enemy, and one man killed, three wounded and six captured. On the 24th of June the detachment left Arkansas for Indianapolis, where it was finally discharged, numbering 125 men and 3 officers.

Company "I" was originally organized as an independent company at Terre Haute, and accepted for State service, for one year, on the 25th of April, 1861. On the 4th of July, 1861, it was mustered into the United States service for three years, at Indianapolis, and left immediately for Western Virginia, in command of Captain Robert R. Stewart. During its term of service it acted as cavalry escort to Gen. Rosecrans while he commanded in Western Virginia, to Gen. Fremont while in command of the Mountain Department, and to Gen. Sigel during his connection with the Army of Virginia and the Army of the Potomac. During the several campaigns in Virginia it was actively engaged. This company, with the exception of a few recruits, was mustered out in August, 1864.

Company "K" was also an independent company, organized and mustered into service at Indianapolis, on the 20th of June, 1861, with James R. Bracken as Captain. It moved to Western Virginia in July, and was assigned to duty under Gen. Reynolds. It was present at the battle of Green Brier and Alleghany, and charged the rebel cavalry at the taking of Huntersville. Formed into a squadron with Stewart's Company, ("I") it was chosen by Gen. Fremont as his body-guard, and was with him in his Valley campaign. It was engaged in the fight at Strasburg, and skirmished twelve days with the rebel cavalry—the skirmish terminating in the battle of Cross Keys. On being transferred to Gen. Sigel as his body-guard, it re-enforced Banks, and participated in the battle of Cedar Mountain. It was afterwards with Pope's army in the battles on Manassas Plains. On the 9th of November, 1862, the famous cavalry charge of Captain Dahlgren into Fredericksburg, was made by companies "I" and "K," First Indiana Cavalry, who alone crossed the river, and alone made the charge. After this the squadron was assigned to escort duty with Gen. Howard, of the 11th Corps, and participated in the battle of Chancellorsville, and subsequently in the battle of Gettysburg. When the 11th Corps was ordered West the squadron was sent to Glymont, on the lower Potomac, and continued there doing provost duty until after the battles in the Wilderness. It joined the Army of the Potomac at White House, and remained on duty at the headquarters of General Meade until the 23d of June, 1864, when (with the exception of some recruits,) it started for Indianapolis, where the men were finally discharged. Forty-three recruits of Company "K" remained in service, under command of First Lieutenant W. O. Hedrick, at the headquarters of the Army of the Potomac until the summer of 1865, when they were ordered to Indianapolis, where they were mustered out of service. Companies "L" and "M," were composed of drafted men who served but nine months from November 1, 1862.

TWENTY-NINTH REGIMENT—THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

The Twenty-Ninth Regiment was organized at Laporte, and mustered into service for three years, on the 27th of August, 1861, with John F. Miller as Colonel. On the 9th of October it joined General Rousseau's command at Camp Nexin, Kentucky, and moved with the army to the vicinity of Munfordsville, remaining there until the movement upon Bowling Green was commenced in February, 1862. Reaching Nashville in March, it moved with McCook's Division to the Tennessee River, and participated in the battle of Shiloh on the 7th of April. In this engagement the Regiment was under fire for more than five hours, suffering severely in killed and wounded.

In the siege of Corinth it took an active part, and upon the evacuation moved with Buell's army, through Northern Alabama and Tennessee into Kentucky, and followed in the pursuit of Bragg through the latter State, returning to Nashville in December. Marching with Rosecrans' army towards Murfreesboro, it participated in the battle of Store River on the 31st of December, 1862, and the 1st and 2d of January, 1863, losing many men and officers. After the occupation of Murfreesboro, the Regiment remained at that place until May, when it moved forward with Rosecrans' army to Tullahoma, and, afterwards, to Chattanooga. In addition to the engagements before mentioned, the Twenty-Ninth after joining Rosecrans' army, participated in the skirmishes had with the enemy at Lavergne, Triune and Liberty Gap.

In the great battle of Chickamauga the regiment was engaged both days, and sustained heavy losses. After this battle the regiment was stationed at Bridgeport, Alabama, where the regiment re-enlisted as a Veteran organization, on the 1st of January, 1864, and the same month proceeded to Indianapolis on Veteran furlough.

On returning to the field the regiment was stationed at Chattanooga, where it remained until December, when it moved to Decatur, Alabama, and was engaged in a skirmish at that place on the 27th of December, 1864. Returning to Chattanooga it remained at that place until May, 1865, when it moved to Dalton, Georgia, where it participated in a skirmish with the enemy. Subsequently the Twenty-Ninth marched to Marietta, Georgia, where it was stationed at the closing of this sketch, (October, 1865,) doing post duty.

On the 5th of January, 1864, Col. Miller (who, since the month of February, 1862, had been serving as Post and Brigade Commander at Nashville and elsewhere) was promoted Brigadier General, whereupon Lieut. Col. David M. Dunn was commissioned Colonel.

THIRTIETH REGIMENT—THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

The Thirtieth Regiment was organized at Fort Wayne, and mustered into service on the 24th of September, 1861, with STON S. BASS as Colonel. Moving to Indianapolis, it proceeded thence to Camp Nevin, Kentucky, reporting to Gen. Rousseau on the 9th of October. Joining the brigade of Gen. McCook, soon after, it moved with Buell's army to Munfordsville and Bowling Green, and in March, 1862, marched to Nashville. From this point it moved to the battle field of Shiloh, and participated in the engagement there on the 7th of April. The Regiment lost its commanding officer, Colonel Bass, who fell severely wounded, and died at Paducah, in a few days afterward. Lieut. Col. Joseph B. Dodge, succeeded Col. Bass as Colonel. Besides the loss of its Colonel, the Regiment suffered severely in killed and wounded.

Marching with the army to Corinth, it participated in the siege of that place, and then moved with Buell's command through Northern Alabama and Tennessee to Kentucky. In the fall of 1862, it engaged in the pursuit of Bragg beyond Crab Orchard, Kentucky, and then moved to Nashville, where it rested until the forward movement of Rosecrans' army commenced.

Proceeding with that army to the vicinity of Murfreesboro, it took part in the three days battle at Stone River, on the last day of 1862 and the two first days of 1863, losing heavily. In the campaign that followed the Regiment was actively engaged, and after the occupation of Chattanooga, marched out with the army and participated in the battle of Chickamauga, where it again suffered severely. After this battle it moved to Whiteside and Tyner's Station, Tennessee, where a small portion of the Regiment re-enlisted in December. Marching to Blue Springs, Tennessee, these were re-mustered as veterans in January, 1864, and soon after proceeded to Indiana on veteran furlough. The regiment remained at Blue Springs until April, and then moved forward with Thomas' army in the campaign against Atlanta, participating in all the battles and skirmishes that transpired up to the occupation of that city. After the muster out of the non-veterans, while the regiment was at Atlanta, the veterans and recruits were consolidated into a Residuary Battalion of seven companies, on the 3d of December, 1864, by order of Gen. Thomas J. Wood. The Battalion was then placed in command of Lieut. Col. Henry W. Lawton, and moved northward with the 4th Corps to Nashville, and there participated in the battle fought against Hood's forces on the 15th of December. Subsequently it moved in the pursuit of the enemy to Huntsville, Alabama, and then proceeded with the 4th Corps into East Tennessee. Returning to Nashville, the Battalion remained there until June, 1865, when it was transferred to Texas with the 4th Corps. On the 12th of July the company of the Residuary Battalion of the Thirty-Sixth Regiment commanded by Captain John P. Swisher was transferred to the Residuary Battalion of the Thirtieth Regiment, and made Company "H" thereof, in pursuance of the orders of Gen. Sheridan.

The Battalion, since its arrival in Texas, has made many long marches, but has not been otherwise engaged, and at the closing of this sketch (October, 1865,) was still on duty in that State as part of Gen. Sheridan's army of occupation.

THIRTY-FIRST REGIMENT INDIANA VOLUNTEERS.

The Thirty-First Regiment was organized and mustered into service, for three years, at Terre Haute, on the 15th of September, 1861, with Charles Cruft as Colonel. Soon after it moved into Kentucky, and went into camp at Calhoun, on Green river, where it remained until a few days before the siege of Fort Donelson was commenced. Moving from Calhoun on the 11th of February, 1862, it reached the battle-field of Fort Donelson in time to participate in the engagement on the 13th and 14th, and was present at the surrender on the 15th of February; in this engagement it lost in killed twelve, wounded fifty-two, and missing four. Subsequently it marched to Fort Henry, and in the latter part of March was transported to Pittsburg Landing.

In the battle of Shiloh it was actively engaged on both days, losing twenty-two killed; one hundred and ten wounded and ten missing. After this engagement it was assigned to the 4th Division of the Army of the Ohio, commanded by General Nelson, and marching toward Corinth, participated in the siege of that place. After the siege was raised it moved with Buell's army through Northern Mississippi and Alabama into Tennessee, and until Buell's retreat to Louisville, Kentucky, it was stationed at various places in Middle Tennessee. Col. Cruft being appointed a Brigadier General on the 16th of July, 1862, Lieut. Col. John Osborn was commissioned his successor. In September the regiment fell back to Louisville with Buell's army, and after Bragg was driven out of Kentucky it returned to Nashville. Moving from that place in December, with Crittenden's Corps of Rosecrank's army, it marched toward Murfreesboro and there participated in the battle of Stone River on the 31st of December, 1862, and 1st and 2d of January, 1863. In this engagement the Thirty-First lost five killed and forty-six wounded.

After the battle the regiment encamped at Cripple Creek, a short distance from Murfreesboro, where it remained guarding a mountain pass until June. It then moved forward with the army to Chattanooga, and on the 19th and 20th of September, was engaged in the battle of Chicanawga, losing four killed and sixty-six wounded. After the retreat to Chattanooga, the regiment crossed the Tennessee and encamped at Bridgeport, Alabama. While here the regiment re-enlisted as a veteran organization on the 1st of January, 1864, and in February proceeded to Indianapolis on veteran furlough. On returning to the field in March, it was stationed at Ooltawah, Tennessee, and when the Atlanta campaign was commenced it moved forward with the 4th Corps, participating in the many skirmishes and battles that followed. After the capture of Atlanta, the regiment moved northward with its corps in pursuit of Hood's army to Pulaski, Tennessee, and then fell back upon Nashville. On the 15th of December, 1864, it participated in the battle at Nashville, after which it went as far as Huntsville, Alabama, in pursuit of the defeated army of Hood. Subsequently it moved into East Tennessee, and after a brief campaign in that section returned to Nashville, where it remained from the latter part of April until the middle of June, 1865. When the 4th Corps was transferred to New Orleans it moved with it, reaching that city early in July. Joining Gen. Sheridan's army at New Orleans it was transported to Texas, and marched into the interior of that State, forming part of the Army of Occupation. When this sketch was concluded (October, 1865,) the Thirty-First was still in service, and stationed at Green Lake, Texas,

THIRTY-SECOND REGIMENT INDIANA VOLUNTEERS.

The Thirty-Second (or First German) Regiment was organized at Indianapolis, through the exertions of August Willich, (a distinguished officer of the German Revolution of 1848,) who was mustered in with the regiment as its Colonel on the 24th of August, 1861. In the latter part of September it proceeded to Madison, Indiana, and from thence to Louisville, Kentucky. Early in October it marched to New Haven, Kentucky, where it remained in camp a short time and then moved to Camp Nevin, where it remained until the 9th of December. As part of Gen. R. W. Johnson's brigade of McCook's division, the regiment moved forward to Munfordsville, and there encamped. The duty of picketing the south side of Green river and protecting the working parties engaged in repairing the railroad bridge, was assigned to the Thirty-Second. While engaged in this duty on the 17th of December, four companies were attacked near Rowlett's Station by Gen. Hindman, with a force of eleven hundred infantry, four pieces of artillery and a battalion of Texan rangers, under Col. Terry. One company advanced and drove back the attacking party until the infantry supports were discovered, when it fell back slowly, the enemy's lines advancing upon it. Another company to the left was attacked at the same time, but more feebly.

In the meantime the two other companies hastened up, and the remainder of the regiment crossed to the south side of the river on a bridge constructed the day before by the pontoniers of the Thirty-Second. Lieut. Col. Von Trebra assuming the command, advanced this portion of the regiment on the run to the scene of conflict, and soon joined the other companies. Forming the regiment in line of battle, he advanced it steadily and drove the enemy back. The cavalry then charged first the skirmish line and next the protecting companies, and again on the right wing. At this juncture the regiment formed a hollow square, upon which the Rangers threw themselves, to be driven back severely punished, losing their leader. An infantry charge was then made against the invincible square, which was also repulsed. After this the whole force of the enemy retired, leaving the regiment in possession of the field. The enemy's loss was thirty-three killed and fifty wounded, while that of the regiment was ten killed, twenty-two wounded and eight missing. For its gallantry on this occasion the regiment was highly complimented in special orders by Gen. Buell and Gov. Morton, and the name "Rowlett's Station," directed to be placed on the regimental colors.

In February, 1862, the regiment moved forward to Bowling Green, and thence to Nashville, where it rested a brief period, and then marched to the field of Shiloh, where it participated in the battle on the 7th of April. In this engagement its loss was six killed, ninety-three wounded and four missing. In the siege of Corinth which followed, the regiment was engaged for many days, and had eight wounded. The Thirty-Second, after the evacuation of Corinth, moved eastward with Buell's army as far as Stevenson, Alabama, and then proceeded to Nashville, Tennessee. On the 17th of July, Col. Willich was appointed a Brigadier General, and soon after Lieut. Col. Henry Von Trebra was commissioned Colonel. In September the regiment marched with Buell's army in its retreat to Louisville, and took part in the pursuit of Bragg through Kentucky. Returning to Nashville in November, it went into camp for over a month, and then proceeded with the army toward Murfreesboro. On the 21st of December, 1862, and 1st and 2d of January, 1863, it was engaged in the battle of Stone River, losing twelve killed, forty wounded and one hundred and fifteen missing. After this engagement the Thirty-Second remained at Murfreesboro until June, when it moved forward with Rosecrans' army toward Chattanooga, engaging on the march, in a severe skirmish at Liberty Gap, on the 24th of June. On the 19th and 20th of September it participated in the battle of Chickamauga, losing twenty-one killed, seventy-eight wounded and seventeen missing. After the battle it fell back to Chattanooga, where it remained until the battle of Mission Ridge was fought, on the 25th of November, in which it bore an honorable part.

The Thirty-Second then marched to the relief of Burnside at Knoxville, and remained in East Tennessee until just before the commencement of the Atlanta campaign. It then joined Sherman's army and marched with it to Atlanta, engaging in the following battles and skirmishes: At Resacca, May 15th; Allatoona Hills and Dallas, May 27th; Peach Tree Creek, June 19th; Paid Springs, June 22d; before Atlanta, June 21st, and many other minor skirmishes on the route. The non-veterans, immediately after the capture of Atlanta, proceeded to Indianapolis, where they were mustered out on the 7th of September, 1864. On the 6th of October, 1864, in pursuance of the orders of Gen. Thomas, the remaining recruits were organized into a residuary battalion of four companies, and placed in command of Lieut. Col. Hans Blume. Upon the return of the 4th Corps to Tennessee the battalion was left at Chattanooga, where it remained on duty until early in June, 1865. It was then transferred to New Orleans, joining the 4th Corps at that place, and soon after moved with Sheridan's Army of Observation into Texas, where it was still on duty (at Salado Creek) at the close of this sketch—October, 1865.

THIRTY-THIRD REGIMENT—INDIANA VOLUNTEERS.

The Thirty-Third Regiment was organized and mustered into service, for three years, at Indianapolis, on the 16th of September, 1861, with John Coburn as Colonel. On the 28th of September it proceeded to Louisville, and reported to Gen. Robert Anderson, who ordered it to Camp Dick Robinson. Marching by way of Lexington, the regiment arrived there on the 2d of October, and reported to Gen. Thomas. On the 13th of October it marched to Crab Orchard, and from thence to Camp Wildcat, to reinforce Col. Garrard's regiment, and, on the 21st, engaged the enemy at Wildcat, defeating Zollicoffer's forces. After this, it marched to London, Kentucky, and thence back to Crab Orchard, reaching the latter place on the 15th of November, and remaining there until the 3d of January, 1862. Moving to Lexington, it garrisoned that place till April 11, 1862, when it proceeded to Cumberland Ford, joining Gen. George W. Morgan's forces at that place. The regiment then engaged in the battle of Franklin, and on the 4th of March it marched toward Columbus, and fought Van Dorn's forces, and on the 5th again engaged the enemy at Thompson's Station. In the last named engagement about four hundred of the regiment were captured, and about one hundred killed and wounded. The prisoners were paroled and exchanged in about two months, and returned to the field. The other portion of the regiment remained at Franklin, and engaged in the fights at that place. About the first of July the regiment moved with Rosecrans' army toward Tullahoma, and was in the advance on Shelbyville. From thence it moved to Guy's Gap and Marfreesboro, remaining there till the 5th of September. During September and October the regiment was stationed at Manchester, Estill Springs, Cowan, Decherd, and Tracey City. From the latter place it moved to Christiana, Tennessee, on the 5th of November, and while there the regiment re-enlisted as a veteran organization in January and February, 1864. On the 25th of February, four hundred and fifty veterans returned home on veteran furlough, and on the return of these to Tennessee, the whole regiment joined Sherman's army, and marched from Chattanooga to Buzzard's Roost on the 1st of May, with the 26th Corps.

In the Atlanta campaign that followed, the Thirty-Third was almost constantly engaged in marching and fighting, participating in the following engagements: at Resaca, on the 15th of May; at Cassville, May 19; at New Hope Church, May 25; at Golgotha Church, June 15; at Culp's Farm and Kenesaw, June 22; at Marietta, July 3; at Peach Tree Creek, July 20; and in front of Atlanta in July and August. It marched to Turner's Ferry, on the Chattahoochee, on the 26th of August, and fought there on the 28th. On the 2d of September it advanced on Atlanta, driving out a brigade of rebel cavalry, when the city was surrendered, by Mayor Calhoun, to Col. Coburn, of the Thirty-Third, in command of the troops. The regiment lost, in this campaign, more than three hundred killed and wounded, and many of the best men in it. After the surrender, the regiment remained in camp at Atlanta, until the 15th of November, when it marched with the left wing (Slocum's) of Sherman's army in the memorable "march to the sea."

The following narrative of the diurnal marchings of the Thirty-Third has been furnished by an officer of the Regiment, and, as it gives some information, in detail, not heretofore published concerning the march of the left wing of Sherman's army, it is thought proper to embody it in this sketch:—

Left Atlanta November 15th. Marched all night, and on the evening of the 16th encamped twenty-two miles from the city.

November 17th. Crossed Yellow Stone River and encamped about ten miles from Social Circle.

November 18th. Marched through Social Circle, on the Atlanta and Augusta Railroad, destroying the track, and encamped five miles south of the town.

November 19th. Marched along the railroad, through Rutledge, (tearing up the track,) to Madison, at which place the railroad buildings and market house were burned.

November 20th. Marched to Eatonton, during a hard rain and on very muddy roads.

November 21st. Marched fourteen miles and camped within eight miles of Milledgeville—still raining.

November 22d. Laid by until evening, waiting for trains to pass. Then crossed Little River and marched all night, reaching Milledgeville at five o'clock A. M. on the 23d.

November 23d. Rested at Milledgeville and destroyed arsenal and magazine.

November 24th. Crossed the Oconee River and marched twelve miles.

November 25th. Marched twelve miles, crossing Buffalo River and swamp.

November 26th. Marched eighteen miles and camped at Sandersville, skirmishing with Wheeler's troops all day.

November 27th. Marched fifteen miles to Davisboro, destroying the railroad.

November 28th. Reached the Ogeechee River and swamp, and remained there until the night of the 30th, guarding the pontoon bridge. Crossed the river and swamp that evening, and marched all night, passing through Louisville and encamping about five miles beyond.

December 1st. Marched fifteen miles on the Millen road.

December 2d and 3d. Marched twelve miles on each day, and on the 4th marched five miles, through swamps.

December 5th. Marched fifteen miles, and encamped ten miles from the Savannah River, and sixty miles from Savannah.

December 6th. Marched six miles; the roads bad and blockaded.

December 7th, 8th and 9th. Continued skirmishing, and roads blockaded.

December 10th. Struck the Charleston Railroad ten miles from Savannah, destroyed it and marched to within one mile of the rebel works surrounding Savannah, when the Regiment went into position and fortified. Remained here until the morning of the 21st, when the rebels evacuated the city and our army moved in. The health of the command during the march was excellent, only four or five men requiring hospital treatment, and no deaths occurring. Three men were lost by capture, but none by battle or skirmish. In this march the whole 20th Corps marched together to Savannah.

The Regiment remained in camp at Savannah until the 2d of January, 1865, when it crossed the Savannah River into South Carolina and went into camp about nine miles from Savannah, where it remained until the 17th. It then moved to Perrysburg, and remained there until February 1st, when it marched fifteen miles. On the 2d it passed through Robertsville and marched twenty-four miles, encamping near Lawtonville, and on the 3d passed through Lawtonville and marched twelve miles.

On the 4th it marched ten miles, with occasional skirmishing and roads blockaded, and on the 5th marched fourteen miles to Buford's Bridge, on the Salkahatchie—the roads bad and barricaded.

On the 6th it crossed the river and swamp, and on the 8th struck the Charleston and Augusta Railroad at Graham's Station, sixteen miles west of Branchville. Two days were spent in destroying this road east as far as Williston.

From there the regiment moved in the direction of Columbia, crossing the South and North Edisto rivers, and the Saluda and Catawba rivers north-west of Columbia. It then marched to Winsboro, on the railroad from Columbia to Yorkville, destroying this road and crossing the Wateree river. From there it moved, through Liberty Hill and Chesterfield Court House, to Cheraw, at which place it crossed the Great Pedee river and moved on to Fayetteville, North Carolina, which place was reached on the 11th of March. Resting here two days the army crossed Cape Fear river, and moved on in the direction of Goldsboro. On the 16th the regiment was engaged in the battle of Averysboro, two men receiving slight wounds. It also participated in the battle of Bentonville, suffering no loss. On the 23d it reached Goldsboro, where the command remained until the Third, and were mustered out with it, at Louisville, the numbers on the rolls being about fifteen hundred men. The regiment was at all times during its term of service, one of the most powerful regiments in the army, being kept well recruited and well together.

The Regiment was commanded by Colonel Coburn during most of the first year's service, (who after that time, was in command of a Brigade,) and then by Lieut. Col. Henderson, till the Atlanta campaign, when it was commanded by Major Miller till after the surrender of Atlanta. When these Field Officers were mustered out of the service, Colonel Burton commanded it until the end of the war.

10th of April, when it marched to Raleigh, which place was occupied by our troops on the 13th.

On the 1st of May the Thirty-Third started from Raleigh homeward bound, reaching Richmond, Va., on the 10th. Resting here two days, the march was resumed and Washington City reached on the 21st. It remained here until the latter part of June, when the command was ordered to Louisville, Kentucky, where it was mustered out on the 21st day of July, 1865. While at Washington a part of the Twenty-Seventh (previously consolidated with the Seventieth,) Seventieth and Eighty-Fifth regiments, were assigned to the Thirty-

THIRTY-FOURTH REGIMENT INDIANA VOLUNTEERS.

The Thirty-Fourth Regiment was organized at Anderson on the 16th of September, 1861, with Asbury Steele as Colonel, and started for the field on the 10th of October, going by way of Indianapolis to Jeffersonville, where it went into camp and remained until the 15th of November. It was then ordered to New Haven, Kentucky, where it remained until the 14th of December, and then marched to Camp Wickliffe, Kentucky, remaining there until February 7, 1862, and then moved to Green river. On the 14th it was ordered back to the Ohio river, going by way of Elizabethtown, and striking the river twenty miles below Louisville. Here the regiment embarked on transports, with Gen. Nelson's division, and started down the river on the 17th, arriving at Cairo on the 20th, where it was detached from the division and sent to New Madrid, Missouri, arriving there on the 3d of March. The regiment was engaged in the siege of that place until the evacuation on the 14th of March, and then marched to St. Merriweather's landing, fourteen miles below, drawing with it two thirty-two pounder siege guns, which they placed in position on the night of the 15th. On the next morning it was attacked by seven rebel gunboats, and after a spirited engagement of two hours, the enemy was obliged to withdraw, with the loss of one boat, which was disabled. This battery cut off the rebel retreat from Island No. 10, and was the means of the subsequent capture of the whole garrison. Returning to New Madrid on the 7th of April, it remained there as a garrison until June 14, during which time it assisted in the capture of Fort Pillow.

Embarking for Memphis, it reached that city on the 15th of June, and on the 26th it took transports for the mouth of White river, where it joined Col. Fitch's command, and proceeded up White river as far as Aberdeen, Arkansas. Here the command disembarked on the 8th of July, and on the night of the 9th the regiment engaged the enemy ten miles from Aberdeen, and drove him back to Duvall's Bluff. It then marched to Clarendon, and re-embarking, started for Helena, where it arrived on the 14th. At this post it remained during the fall and winter of 1862, making frequent expeditions against the enemy, one of the most important of which was the clearing of Yazoo pass, in which operation the regiment was engaged for two weeks, in removing the heavy timber which the rebels had felled into the stream, to obstruct navigation. During this expedition the regiment had four men wounded, in a skirmish.

The regiment was then assigned to Hovey's division, and on the 10th of April started on the Vicksburg campaign, and was engaged during that month in constructing bridges to facilitate the marching of the army from Milliken's Bend to a point below Vicksburg. Crossing the Mississippi at Bruinsburg, on the 30th of April, it marched all night and engaged the enemy at daylight on the 1st of May at Port Gibson, making a charge during the battle and capturing two field pieces and forty-nine prisoners. The regiment lost forty-nine killed and wounded. On the 16th it participated in the battle of Champion Hills, and, while advancing in line of battle, captured the Forty-Sixth Alabama regiment, its colors, field officers and one hundred and twenty-seven men. The Thirty-Fourth lost seventy-nine men killed and wounded. Among the latter was Lieut. Col. Swain, who died from his wounds on the 17th of June, 1863. Moving forward with the army, it participated in the siege of Vicksburg

Texas. This regiment fought the last battle of the war, on the 13th of May, 1865, at Palmetto Ranche, adjoining the old battle-field of Palo Alto. Two hundred and fifty of the regiment fought five hundred of the enemy mounted, with a battery of six field pieces, driving them a distance of three miles in the space of three hours. By this time the rebels got their battery in position, and pouring a destructive fire into their ranks, compelled the main body of the regiment to fall back, leaving Companies "B" and "E" behind as skirmishers to cover the movement. These companies being unsupported, were furiously attacked, and finally surrounded and forced to surrender. The loss to the regiment was eighty-two in killed, wounded and prisoners. After this engagement the regiment fell back to Brazos Island, from whence it moved to Brownsville, where it remained until the 16th of June, when it marched to Ringold Barracks, two hundred and sixty miles up the Rio Grande, and were the first Union troops to re-occupy that place. Remaining there till the 24th of July, 1865, it returned to Brownsville, where it was stationed at the closing of this sketch (October, 1865.)

until its final surrender, losing, in all, thirteen men in killed and wounded. It then marched to Jackson, and was engaged nine days in besieging that place, losing eight men killed and wounded.

Returning to Vicksburg it embarked for New Orleans on the 4th of August, remained there until the 12th of September, and then moved to Brashear City. While in this section it took part in Banks' expedition up the Teche as far as Opelousas. On the return march it engaged the enemy at Carrion Crow Bayou, on the 3d of November, after which it proceeded to New Iberia, where it remained until the 19th of December. While here four hundred and sixty of the regiment re-enlisted on the 15th of December, 1863. On the 23d of December it embarked on steamship for Pass Cavallo, Texas, reaching there January 8th, 1864, where it remained until the 21st of February. Returning to New Orleans it remained there until the 20th of March, when it left for Indianapolis on Veteran furlough, reaching there on the 1st of April.

Returning to the field it was placed on duty at New Orleans until the 18th of December, 1864, when it embarked for Brazos Santiago,

THIRTY-FIFTH REGIMENT INDIANA VOLUNTEERS.

The Thirty-Fifth (or First Irish) Regiment was organized at Indianapolis, and mustered in on the 11th of December, 1861, with John C. Walker as Colonel. On the 13th it left for Kentucky, where it remained in a camp of instruction at Bardstown for six weeks, and then moved with Buell's army to Bowling Green, and thence to Nashville. On the 22d of May, 1862, the organized portion of the Sixty-First (Second Irish) Regiment and the unassigned recruits for the same were ordered to proceed to Tennessee, in charge of Col. Bernard F. Mullen, of the Sixty-First, and there join the Thirty-Fifth, with which regiment they were to be consolidated. These transferred men joined the Thirty-Fifth at Nashville, where the consolidation was perfected, Col. Mullen becoming Lieut. Colonel, and subsequently Colonel of the regiment. From Nashville the Thirty-Fifth moved into the interior of Tennessee as far as McMinnville, from which place it marched, during September, 1862, with Buell's army to Louisville, as part of Stanley Matthew's Brigade, Van Cleve's Division of Crittenden's Corps.

From Louisville the regiment marched in the pursuit of Bragg through Kentucky, participating in the battle of Perryville, October 8th, and in the skirmishes of the march. Returning to Nashville, it remained inactive until December, when it proceeded on a foraging expedition, during which it had a severe skirmish with the enemy, on the 9th of December, at Dobbins' Ford, near Lavergne, losing five killed and thirty-five wounded. After this it marched with Rosecrans' army toward Murfreesboro, where it participated in the battle of Stone River, on the 31st of December, 1862, and 1st and 2d of January, 1863. In this engagement the regiment fought on the extreme left, and sustained a loss of one-third of the number engaged, having 29 killed, 72 wounded and 33 missing—making a total loss of 134. The Thirty-Fifth remained in the vicinity of Murfreesboro until the march upon Chattanooga was commenced, in which it took part. In the engagement at Chicamauga on the 19th and 20th of September, it participated, sustaining heavy losses.

While encamped at Shell Mound, Tennessee, the regiment re-enlisted as a veteran organization, on the 16th of December, 1863, and soon after started for home on veteran furlough, reaching Indianapolis on the 2d of January, 1864. Returning to Tennessee in February, it went into camp at Blue Springs, Tennessee, until the Atlanta campaign opened. On the 3d of May, as part of the 2d Brigade of the 1st Division of the 4th Corps, it moved from camp and participated in all the marches, battles, skirmishes and scouts of that historical campaign. At Kennesaw Mountain, on the night of the 20th of June, while the regiment was in the front line, it was fiercely and unexpectedly attacked and thrown into momentary confusion. The regiment rallied, and for half an hour fought a desperate hand to hand conflict with the enemy, the men using their muskets as clubs, and bayoneting the enemy whenever opportunity offered, and finally, with the aid of a portion of another regiment of the brigade, drove the enemy back. The Thirty-Fifth lost in this affair 11 killed (including its commanding officer, Major Duffiey,) and 54 wounded. On the 4th of July, when near Marietta, the regiment, while on duty as part of the skirmish line, advanced and captured the enemy's rifle pits and twenty-eight prisoners. This was accomplished, notwithstanding the Thirty-Fifth exposed to a severe flank fire. Its losses were four killed and seven wounded.

After the passage of the Chattahoochie river the regiment, being very much decimated, was ordered to guard the supply train of the corps, and continued on this duty until the 31st of August, when it rejoined its command and marched with the army around Atlanta, participating in the battle of Jonesboro. On the 9th of September the regiment entered Atlanta, where it remained until the enemy commenced his retrograde movement in the rear of Sherman's army, when it marched with the 4th Corps in pursuit. At Franklin, Tennessee, the regiment having received 400 drafted men and substitutes, was placed in the front line, on the 30th of November, and gallantly repulsed a charge which the enemy made upon the works. In the two days' fight at Nashville it took a conspicuous part, but fortunately lost but few men. After the rout and complete demoralization of the enemy, the regiment participated in the pursuit as far as Duck river, when it was detached and assigned to the charge of the pontoon train.

In the movements of the 4th Corps to Huntsville and Knoxville, the regiment took part, returning to Nashville in the spring of 1865. In June it was transferred with the 4th Corps to Texas, where it remained on duty with Sheridan's army until the month of September, when it was mustered out of service and returned home. Reaching Indianapolis on the 20th of October, it was present at a public reception given to returned troops in the Capital grounds, on the 21st, at which addresses were made by Governor Morton and others.

The losses to the regiment from the commencement of the Atlanta campaign up to and including the battle of Nashville, are officially reported as follows: Killed, one officer and 20 men; wounded, two officers and 116 men—total killed and wounded, 139.

THIRTY-SIXTH REGIMENT INDIANA VOLUNTEERS.

The Thirty-Sixth Regiment was organized at Richmond, and mustered into service, for three years, on the 16th of September, 1861, with William Grose as Colonel, and soon after left for the field. During the fall and winter of 1861 it encamped and marched with the Army of the Ohio until it reached Nashville, in the latter part of February, 1862. In March it moved to the Tennessee river, and reached the field of Shiloh in time to take an active part in that great battle, losing nine killed, thirty-eight wounded and one missing—total forty-eight.

Encamping on the battle-field after the engagement, it remained there until the army moved against Corinth, when it marched with it, participating in the siege of Corinth until the evacuation. It then moved eastward into Northern Alabama and accompanied Buell's army to Nashville. When that army fell back to Louisville, the regiment marched with it, and took part in the pursuit of Bragg through the interior of Kentucky. Returning to Nashville it went into camp and remained inactive until Rosecrans' army moved toward Murfreesboro. Marching with this army, it participated in the battle of Stone River on the 31st of December, 1862, and 1st and 2d of January, 1863. The Thirty-Sixth lost, in this engagement, as follows: Killed, twenty-four; wounded, ninety; missing, eighteen—total one hundred and thirty-two.

The regiment then went into camp near Murfreesboro until May, and then moved to a beautiful camp on Cripple Creek, where it remained until the campaign against Chattanooga was commenced. In this campaign it marched with Gen. Palmer's division, and, after reaching Chattanooga, was engaged in the battle of Chicamauga, in which it lost fourteen killed, one hundred and ten wounded and thirteen missing—making a total of one hundred and thirty-seven. After the battle it returned to Chattanooga, and from thence moved to Whiteside and Tynor's Station, Tennessee, and while at the last named places a small portion of the regiment re-enlisted in December, 1863, and February, 1864, and soon after visited Indiana on Veteran furlough. In March it went into camp at Blue Springs, Tennessee, where it remained until the opening of the Atlanta campaign.

Early in May the regiment moved with Sherman's army toward Atlanta and participated in the marches, skirmishes and engagements of that eventful campaign. On the 13th of August, 1864, when near Atlanta, in pursuance of the orders of Gen. Thomas, the non-veterans left for Indianapolis, where they were mustered out of service. The few remaining veterans and recruits were then organized into a residuary battalion of one company, with Capt. John P. Swisher as Captain. This company, after the occupation of Atlanta, marched northward, with the 4th Corps, in pursuit of Hood's army into Northern Alabama, and then moved to Nashville, where, on the 15th of December, it engaged the enemy, after which it followed the retreating rebels as far as Huntsville, Alabama. From thence it marched to Chattanooga, where it remained until June, 1865, when it was transferred to New Orleans. On the 12th of July, 1865, it was transferred, by order of Gen. Sheridan, to the Residuary Battalion of the Thirtieth regiment, and made Company "H" thereof. Moving soon after into Texas, with the old 4th Corps, it marched into the interior of that State, where, in October, 1865, it was still stationed, serving with the Residuary Battalion of the Thirtieth Regiment.

In August, 1864, Col. Grose (who had, for nearly two years, commanded a Brigade) was appointed a Brigadier General, whereupon Lieut. Col. Oliver H. P. Carey was commissioned his successor.

THIRTY-SEVENTH REGIMENT INDIANA VOLUNTEERS.

The Thirty-Seventh Regiment was organized at Lawrenceburg, on the 18th of September, 1861, with George W. Hazzard as Colonel, and in October was ordered to the mouth of Salt river, Kentucky, where it remained a few weeks. It then marched along the line of the Louisville and Nashville railroad to Bowling Green, and thence to Nashville. During the month of March, 1862, it moved to Murfreesboro, and from thence to Fayetteville, Tennessee, and Huntsville, Tusculumbia and Athens, Alabama, reaching the latter place in May, and moving thence to Chattanooga and Stevenson. Most of this time it was engaged in guarding the bridges of the Nashville and Chattanooga railroad. When Bragg commenced his invasion, the regiment fell back to Nashville, where it remained during the Buell and Bragg campaign in Kentucky.

In December it moved toward Murfreesboro with Rosecrans' army, and was engaged in the battle of Stone River on the 31st of December, 1862, and January 1st and 2d, 1863, losing 25 killed and 106 wounded—total loss 131. After this engagement it encamped near Murfreesboro, and remained there until the army moved toward Chattanooga in June, when it participated in that campaign. Prior to the battle of Chickamauga it engaged the enemy at Dug Gap, Georgia, on the 11th of September, and had several wounded. It participated in the battle of Chickamauga that followed, on the 19th and 20th of September, losing eight men in wounded. Falling back to Chattanooga with the army, it remained there until the spring of 1864. During the winter five companies (A, B, C, D and I,) re-enlisted, and visited Indiana on veteran furlough, rejoining the regiment at Graysville, Georgia.

In the Atlanta campaign it marched with Sherman's army, participating in the battle at Resaca on the 15th of May, 1864, and having a few men wounded; and at Dallas on the 27th, losing heavily. It also took part in the battle of Kennesaw Mountain, Chattahoochee river and Peach Tree Creek, losing a number in killed and wounded. After the occupation of Atlanta the non-veterans were ordered to Indianapolis, where they were mustered out in the month of October, 1864.

The five veteran companies and the remaining recruits were consolidated into two maximum companies, known as "A" and "B," Detachment of Thirty-Seventh Regiment, in pursuance of orders, and marched with Sherman's army through Georgia to Savannah, and through the Carolinas to Goldsboro. On the surrender of Johnston's army, the detachment moved with the army to Washington City, and was afterward transferred to Louisville, Kentucky, where it was mustered out on the 25th of July, 1865, the two companies having, altogether, 150 men. Returning home, the detachment was present at a reception given to returned troops in the Capitol grounds, at Indianapolis, on the 30th of July, 1865, on which occasion it was addressed by Lieut. Gov. Conrad Baker. Gen. Hovey and others. In a few days afterward it was finally discharged.

THIRTY-EIGHTH REGIMENT INDIANA VOLUNTEERS.

The Thirty-Eighth Regiment was organized and mustered into service, for three years, at New Albany, on the 18th of September, 1861, and on the 21st of the same month started for Elizabethtown, Kentucky. The fall and winter was passed in camp at Camp Nevin, on Nolin's Fork of Barren river, and at Camp Wood on Green river, near Munfordsville. In February, 1862, it moved with Buell's army in its campaign against Bowling Green and Nashville, reaching the latter place on the 6th of March. On the 25th it moved to Franklin, and from thence to Columbia, and thence to Shelbyville, remaining there until the 11th of May. During its stay in this vicinity, it made frequent and rapid marches to intercept Morgan's cavalry. On the 13th of May the Regiment had a skirmish with the enemy near Rogersville. On the 29th of May it moved toward Chattanooga and arrived opposite that place on the 7th of June, after which it returned to Shelbyville and then moved to Stevenson. It then moved to Decherd, where it remained from the 17th of August until Bragg crossed the Tennessee river, when the regiment fell back to Nashville, and from there marched, with Buell's army, to Louisville.

The regiment engaged in the campaign through Kentucky, and took part in the battle of Perryville, losing twenty-seven killed, one hundred and twenty-three wounded and seven prisoners. Returning from this campaign, the regiment reached Bowling Green on the 2d of November, where it was placed in the First Division of the Fourteenth Army Corps. Early in the following month it moved to Nashville, and from there to the vicinity of Murfreesboro, where, on the 31st of December, 1862, and 1st and 2d of January, 1863, it participated in the battle of Stone River, losing fourteen killed and eighty-six wounded. After the battle the regiment went into camp at Murfreesboro and remained there until the campaign against Chattanooga was commenced. During its stay there it marched out to Hoover's Gap and took part in a severe skirmish, losing one killed and fifteen wounded.

Moving with its corps to Chattanooga, it was engaged on the 19th and 20th of September in the battle of Chickamauga, losing nine killed, fifty-nine wounded and forty-two missing—making a total loss of one hundred and ten. Returning to Chattanooga the regiment remained inactive until the 23d and 25th of November, when it took part in the engagements at Lookout Mountain and Mission Ridge. The following winter was passed at Rossville, Georgia, and Chattanooga. While at the former place the regiment re-enlisted on the 28th of December, 1863, and, on the 3d of January, 1864, started home on Veteran furlough, reaching Indianapolis on the 9th, with three hundred and sixty men and officers.

On the 26th of February the regiment returned to Chattanooga, and moved to Tynes's Station in March and Graysville, Georgia, in April. On the 7th of May it marched with Sherman's army in the campaign against Atlanta, engaging in all the skirmishes and battles, including the engagement at Jonesboro, in which the Thirty-Eighth carried the rebel works in a charge. In this charge, the color-bearer being killed as he planted the colors inside the works, First Lieutenant Joseph W. Redding seized the colors and carried them throughout the day. In the Atlanta campaign the regiment lost one hundred and three killed, wounded and missing.

On the 4th of October it marched in pursuit of Hood's retreating army as far as Gaylesville, Alabama, and then returned to Atlanta, from whence it marched, in November, with the Army of Georgia in its campaign through Georgia. After the occupation of Savannah, the regiment remained there until the 5th of February, when it again moved, passing through the Carolinas to Goldsboro, taking part in all the battles and skirmishes worthy of note during the campaign, among which was the battle of Bentonville. From Goldsboro it proceeded to Raleigh, and, after Johnson's surrender, marched, via Richmond and Alexandria, to Washington—a distance of one hundred and ninety-two miles—making the entire distance in six days, an average of thirty-two miles a day. From Washington the regiment was transferred to Louisville, Kentucky, and after remaining at that place for some time was, on the 15th of July, 1865, mustered out of service. Leaving for home, it reached Indianapolis on the 18th of July, with about six hundred men and officers, and on the same day was present at a public reception given to over three thousand returned soldiers in the Capitol grounds, and was addressed by Gov. Morton and others. In a few days after the regiment was finally discharged from service.

EIGHTH CAVALRY (39th) REGIMENT INDIANA VOLUNTEERS.

The Thirty-Ninth Regiment was organized as an infantry regiment, at Indianapolis, on the 29th of August, 1861, and early in September left for Kentucky. After encamping first on Muldraugh's Hill, near Elizabethtown, and next at Camp Nevin, on Nolin Creek, and Camp Wood, on Green River, it marched with Buell's army to Nashville. From Nashville it moved to the Tennessee River, and was engaged in the battle of Shiloh on the 7th of April, 1862, losing two killed and thirty-four wounded—total loss thirty-six.

After the engagement at Shiloh, it encamped on the field until the army marched toward Corinth, when it moved with it, participating in the siege of that place. When the siege was raised it marched, with Buell's army, through Northern Alabama to Bridgeport, and from thence to Nashville. It then moved, with the same army, into Kentucky as far as Louisville, and then through the State in pursuit of Bragg. Returning to Nashville in November, it marched, with Rosecrans' army, in the direction of Murfreesboro, participating in the battle of Stone River on the 31st of December, 1862, and 1st and 2d of January, 1863. In this engagement the regiment suffered severely, especially in missing—the loss being thirty-one killed, one hundred and eighteen wounded and two hundred and thirty-one missing; total three hundred and eighty.

The Thirty-Ninth remained in Camp near Murfreesboro for some months after the battle, and in April, 1863, was mounted, and served as mounted infantry through the campaign of that year. On the 6th of June it reinforced the 2d Indiana Cavalry on the Shelbyville road near Murfreesboro, and had a sharp fight with Wheeler's Cavalry. Subsequently it took part in skirmishes at Middleton and Liberty Gap, and during the forward movement upon Chattanooga engaged the enemy at Winchester. On the 19th and 20th of September it participated in the battle of Chickamauga, and, also, took part in an expedition into East Tennessee after Champ Ferguson. Authority being given to change the organization from Infantry

A detachment of the regiment, left behind in Tennessee, fought Wheeler at Franklin and at several other places, and, also, had a severe engagement with Forrest at Pulaski, Tennessee.

While at Savannah, in pursuance of the orders of Gen. Sherman, the remaining veterans and recruits of the Third Indiana Cavalry were, on the 20th of February, 1865, transferred to and consolidated with the Eighth Cavalry—the consolidated force bearing the designation of the latter regiment.

After the occupation of a portion of North Carolina by Sherman's army, and just before the negotiations were opened between Johnson and Sherman, the Eighth Cavalry whipped Hampton's entire force at Morrisville, and thus had the honor of fighting the last battle with the enemy in that State. The regiment remained on duty in North Carolina until the 20th of July, 1865, when it was mustered out of service, and soon after started for home. Reaching Indianapolis during the last week of July, it was present at a public reception given to returned troops in the Capitol grounds on the 31st of July, at which speeches were made by Lieutenant Governor Conrad Baker and General Hovey, and, in a few days afterward, the regiment was finally discharged.

The regiment, during its term of service, has borne on its rolls 2,500 men, and has had nine officers killed in battle. It has lost about three hundred in prisoners, and captured from the enemy over fifteen hundred men, one thousand stand of arms, three railroad trains, fourteen hundred horses and mules, many wagons, fourteen pieces of artillery, four battle flags and destroyed many miles of railroad.

to Cavalry, Companies "L" and "M" were organized in September, 1863, and on joining the command in the field, the regiment was, on the 15th of October, 1863, reorganized as the Eighth Cavalry. In December the regiment was placed on courier duty between Chattanooga and Ringold, and on the 22d of February, 1864, it re-enlisted as a Veteran organization. In April the regiment visited Indiana on a Veteran furlough, and on returning to the field participated in the Rousseau raid into Alabama. One battalion of the regiment fought and routed a rebel brigade on the Coosa river, taking many prisoners, and again routed the enemy at Chehaw Bridge, Alabama. It took part in the McCook raid around Atlanta, and was the only regiment that preserved its organization, and made a charge on the enemy, routing him and opening the way for the escape of twelve hundred men of McCook's command. The regiment was next engaged in the Kilpatrick raid in Georgia, and at the battle of Lovejoy Station led the charge of the left wing, riding over Ross' division of rebel cavalry, capturing all of his artillery and four battle flags. It was subsequently engaged in the battles of Jonesboro and Flint river, and in several skirmishes that followed the capture of Atlanta.

In the campaign against Savannah and through the Carolinas, it marched with Kilpatrick's command to Savannah and thence to Goldsboro. In this campaign it participated in the battles and skirmishes at Waynesboro, Buckhead Church, Brown's Cross Roads, Reynolds' Farm, Aiken, Bentonville, Averbysboro and Raleigh. In the engagement at Averbysboro this regiment, under Col. Jones, charged and routed Rhett's South Carolina brigade of infantry, which outnumbered it ten to one. The Eighth Cavalry lost fourteen killed and fifty-nine wounded.

FORTIETH REGIMENT INDIANA VOLUNTEERS.

The Fortieth Regiment was organized at Lafayette on the 30th of December, 1861, and at once proceeded to Kentucky, going into a camp of instruction near Bardstown. In February, 1862, it moved with Buell's army to Bowling Green and Nashville, and from thence it marched into Northern Alabama. When Bragg crossed the Tennessee river and marched northward, the Fortieth was stationed in Southern Tennessee, near the line of the Chattanooga railroad, and when Buell's army marched into Kentucky the regiment moved to Nashville, and marched with the army to Louisville. From thence it moved through Kentucky in pursuit of Bragg, and returned to Nashville in November, where it was assigned to the 6th Division of the 14th Army Corps. In December it marched toward Murfreesboro, and participated in the engagement at Stone River on the 31st of December, 1862, and 1st and 2d of January, 1863, losing nine killed, sixty-three wounded and thirteen missing—making a total of eighty-five. After this battle the regiment remained in the vicinity of Murfreesboro for some time, and, when the army was reorganized, it was assigned to the Second Brigade of the First Division of the Twenty-First Army Corps, commanded by Maj. Gen. Crittenden.

The regiment participated in the march to Chattanooga and in the battle of Chickamauga on the 19th and 20th of September. Returning to Chattanooga, it was engaged in the battles of Lookout Mountain and Mission Ridge in November, and then marched into East Tennessee, where it remained during the winter. In January, 1864, the regiment re-enlisted as a Veteran organization at Blain's Cross Roads, Tennessee, and soon after visited Indiana on Veteran furlough.

When the Atlanta campaign opened the Fortieth was at Cleveland, Tennessee, from whence, on the 8th of May, it moved as part of the Second Brigade, Second Division of the Fourth Army Corps, commanded by Maj. Gen. O. O. Howard. In all the marches, movements, engagements and skirmishes of the campaign, the regiment took an active part. In the battles at Dallas, Kennesaw Mountain, Chattahoochie River and Peach Tree Creek it bore a conspicuous part. In the latter engagement it engaged the enemy while in position in the portion of our lines most furiously attacked, at the time Hood made his desperate attempt to break through Sherman's lines. After the occupation of Atlanta the Fourth Corps, to which the Fortieth was attached, was sent back to Chattanooga to observe the movements of the rebel army under Gen. Hood.

On reaching Chattanooga the Fortieth was placed on duty there until November, when it moved toward Nashville, and on the 15th of December it participated in the battle at that place. After the route of Hood's army it joined in the pursuit, going as far as Huntsville, Alabama. Returning to Nashville, the regiment remained there during the spring of 1865, and in June marched to Johnsonville, and there took transports for New Orleans, joining the Fourth Corps at that place.

From New Orleans it was transferred with the 4th Corps to Texas, where it became part of Sheridan's Army of Occupation. At the closing of this sketch (November, 1865,) the Fortieth was still in service, and stationed at Port Lavaca, Texas.

The Second Cavalry, Forty First Regiment, was the first complete Cavalry Regiment raised in Indiana. It was organized in Indianapolis in September, 1861, with JOHN A. BRIDGELAND as Colonel. On the 16th of December it broke camp and moved across the country to Louisville, Kentucky, and from thence to Camp Wickliffe.

In February, 1862, it marched with Buell's army toward Nashville, and from that point moved to the Tennessee river, reaching the Field of Shiloh after the battle. On the 9th of April it had a skirmish with the enemy on the road to Corinth, and on the 15th of April engaged the rebels at Pea Ridge, Tennessee, losing a number in killed and wounded. On the 22d it participated in a reconnaissance in force, driving the enemy three miles. During the siege of Corinth it was actively engaged, and immediately after the evacuation marched with Buell's army into Northern Alabama, and on the 31st of May had a skirmish with the enemy at Tusculumbia, losing a few men in killed and wounded.

Moving into Tennessee the regiment fought the enemy at McMinnville on the 9th of August and at Gallatin on the 21st, and 27th of August, losing several in killed, wounded and missing. In September it marched into Kentucky, participating in the Bragg and Buell campaign, engaging the enemy at Vinegar Hill on the 22d of September, and at Perryville on the 8th of October. On the 30th of November, while the regiment was at Nashville, a detachment under command of Major Samuel Hill was highly complimented by Gen'l Rosecrans, in Special Field Orders, for having recaptured a government train, defeating rebel cavalry, killing twenty and capturing two hundred prisoners.

During the winter of 1862 it was on duty near Nashville, and from there proceeded to Kentucky where it remained a few months, and then returned to Tennessee. On the 11th of June 1863, it fought the enemy at Triune, Tennessee, losing a number in killed and wounded. In the fall of 1863 it was on duty along the line of the Nashville and Chattanooga railroad, and then moved into East Tennessee. On the 29th of November several men of the regiment were drowned in Caney Fork while on duty ferrying. On the 29th of December it participated in a sharp fight at Talbott's Station. While at Mossy Creek, Tennessee, the regiment re-enlisted on the 10th of January, 1864, and during the winter and spring was engaged in numerous scouts and skirmishes, losing several men.

In May, 1864, the Regiment moved with Sherman's army in its campaign against Atlanta, engaging in many skirmishes and battles, among which were the following: May 9th, at Varnell's Station, near Resacca; July 1st, near Aeworth; July 28th and 30th, near Newnan; August 30th, near Atlanta. After the occupation of Atlanta the non-veterans were ordered to be mustered out, and on the 14th of September, 1864, the remaining veterans and recruits were consolidated into a battalion of four companies and placed in command of Major Roswell S. Hill. In November and December, 1864, the battalion was on duty in Kentucky, and in January, 1865, was transferred to the vicinity of Eastport, Alabama. Joining the army of Gen. Wilson it participated in the raid through Alabama, engaging the enemy near Scottsville on the 2d of April, and at West Point, Georgia, on the 16th of April. In the latter battle the Regiment suffered severely, Major Hill having one of his legs shot off while leading a charge. Returning from this raid it proceeded to Nashville, and was there mustered out on the 22d of July, 1865. Shortly after it moved to Indianapolis, where it was finally discharged.

FORTY-SECOND REGIMENT INDIANA VOLUNTEERS.

The Forty Second Regiment was organized at Evansville on the 9th of October, 1861, with JAMES G. JONES as Colonel. Soon after it marched to Henderson and thence to Calhoun and Owensboro, Kentucky, from which place it went to Nashville, Tennessee, where it arrived on the 25th of February. It then moved into the interior of the State and then to Huntsville, Alabama, and from thence retraced its steps to Nashville. Moving from there with Rousseau's division of Buell's army to Louisville, it took part in the pursuit of Bragg through Kentucky, participating in the battle of Perryville on the 8th of October, losing one hundred and sixty-six in killed, wounded and missing.

Returning to Nashville the regiment marched with Rosecrans' army toward Murfreesboro, and then took part in the battle of Stone River on the 31st of December, 1862, and 1st and 2d of January, 1863, losing seventeen killed and eighty-seven wounded. After this engagement the Forty Second went into camp near Murfreesboro, where it remained until the 24th of June, and then marched with the first brigade of Gen'l Negley's division to Chattanooga. On the 19th and 20th of September the regiment was engaged in the battle of Chicamauga, losing eight killed, fifty-three wounded and thirty-two missing, making a total of ninety-three. Subsequently it participated in the storming of Lookout Mountain and the battle of Mission Ridge in November, losing forty-three in killed and wounded.

On the 1st of January, 1864, the regiment re-enlisted as a Veteran organization at Chattanooga, and soon after returned to Indiana, on veteran furlough, reaching Indianapolis on the 28th of January, where it was publicly received and addressed by Governor Morton and others. On its return to the field in March it joined Sherman's army near Chattanooga, and on the 7th of May it marched from Ringold on the campaign against Atlanta, participating in all the principal battles of that campaign, losing one hundred and three officers and men, killed and wounded. During this campaign, while in Six Mile Range near Alatoona, the regiment was on picket duty seven days and nights within fifty yards of the rebel skirmish line, without being relieved. After the capture of Atlanta, the Forty Second marched to Kingston, Rome, Resacca and, through Snake Creek Gap, to the Chatuga Valley, and from thence to Gaylesville, Alabama, in pursuit of Hood's army, and then back again to Rome and Atlanta.

In November it moved with Sherman's army from Atlanta to Savannah, participating in the skirmishing on the route and the siege of Savannah. From Savannah it moved through the Carolinas to Goldsboro, North Carolina, taking part in the battles of Averysboro and Bentonville, losing ten men and officers killed and wounded. After the close of active operations the regiment marched to Washington via Richmond, leaving Goldsboro, on the 16th of April, 1865. From Washington it proceeded to Louisville, Kentucky, where, on the 21st of July, 1865, it was mustered out, and left for Indianapolis, reaching that place on the following day. On the 25th of July it was present at a public reception given to several regiments of returned soldiers, in the Cap-tol grounds, on which occasion Major Gen'l Sherman was present. strength at the time of its muster-out was eight hundred and Addresses were made by Governor Morton and Gen'l Sherman. forty-six, officers and men.

In a few days after the regiment was finally discharged from service. The regiment has participated in battles and skirmishes as follows: Watrace, Perryville, Stone River, Elk River, Chicamauga, Lookout Mountain, Mission Ridge, Ringold, Rocky Face Ridge, Resaca, Alatoona Mountains, Kenesaw, Chattahoochee River, Peach Tree Creek, Atlanta, Janesboro, Savannah, Charleston, Black River and Bentonville.

FORTY-THIRD REGIMENT INDIANA VOLUNTEERS.

The Forty-Third Regiment was organized at Terre Haute on the 27th of September, 1861, with GEORGE K. STEELE as Colonel, capturing a full rebel regiment larger in point of numbers than its own strength.

Soon after its muster into service it moved to Spottsville, Kentucky, and from thence to Calhoun, where it remained in camp until the latter part of February, 1862. It was then transferred to Missouri and attached to Gen'l Pope's army, engaging in the siege of New Madrid and Island No. 10. It was afterwards detailed on duty with Commodore Foote's gunboat fleet in the reduction of Fort Pillow, serving sixty-nine days in that campaign. The Forty-Third was the first Union regiment to land in the city of Memphis, and with the Forty-Sixth Indiana, constituted the entire garrison, holding that place for two weeks until reinforced.

In July, 1862, the Forty-Third was ordered up White river, Arkansas, and subsequently to Helena. In December it marched to Grenada, Mississippi, with Hovey's expedition, and on its return to Helena accompanied the expedition to Yazoo Pass. At the battle of Helena, on the 4th of July, 1863, the regiment was especially distinguished, alone supporting a battery that was three times charged by the enemy, repulsing each attack, and, finally,

After its return to Little Rock the regiment proceeded to Indianiana, on veteran furlough, reaching Indianapolis on the 10th of June. Upon its arrival the regiment volunteered to go to Frank-den to Pine Bluffs, was furiously attacked by about six thousand of Marmaduke's Cavalry. The Forty-Third lost nearly two hundred in killed, wounded and missing in this engagement. Among the captured were one hundred and four of the re-enlisted veterans.

fort, Kentucky, then threatened by Morgan's Cavalry, and remained there until the rebel forces left Central Kentucky. On its return the regiment had a skirmish with Jesse's guerrillas near Eminence, Kentucky.

Upon the expiration of its veteran furlough the regiment was not returned to the field but placed on duty at Indianapolis, and for nearly a year was engaged in guarding the rebel prisoners at Camp Morton. After the war was over it was one among the first regiments mustered out, being mustered out at Indianapolis on the 14th of June, 1865.

Of the one hundred and sixty-four men captured from this regiment in Arkansas, and taken to the rebel prison at Tyler, Texas, ten or twelve died, and the others returning to Indianapolis in March, 1865, were subsequently discharged with the regiment.

FORTY-FOURTH REGIMENT INDIANA VOLUNTEERS.

The Companies composing the Forty-Fourth Regiment were raised in the Tenth Congressional District and rendezvoused at Fort Wayne, where the organization of the regiment was completed on the 24th of October, 1861, with HUGH B. REED as Colonel. In December it was transported to Indianapolis and from thence to Henderson, Kentucky. Reporting to Gen'l Thomas L. Crittenden, it was assigned to Gen'l Cruik's brigade, and went into Camp at Calhoun, on Green river. Here it remained until February, 1862, when it was transferred to Fort Henry and from thence to Fort Donelson, where it participated in the siege and battle at that place, suffering considerable loss in killed and wounded.

After the capitulation the regiment marched to Fort Henry, and from thence it was transported on steamers to Pittsburg Landing. It was engaged on both days at the battle of Shiloh losing thirty-three killed and one hundred and seventy-seven wounded, making a total of two hundred and ten. After this it marched on Corinth, taking part in several skirmishes before Corinth, and upon the evacuation of that place, joined in the pursuit of the enemy, going as far as Boonville. Returning from this expedition it moved with Buell's army into Northern Alabama and Southern Tennessee, and when Bragg marched his army northward, it moved across the Cumberland Mountains to Nashville and thence to Louisville, Kentucky, reaching there on the 26th of September. In the campaign through Kentucky it was actively engaged, participating in the battle of Perryville and going as far as Wildcat in pursuit of Bragg.

Returning to the vicinity of Nashville, it participated in a skirmish on Russell Hill, at Silver Springs. About the 1st of December it went into camp near Nashville. From the 20th of August to the 1st of December the regiment had marched over seven hundred and twenty-five miles, being an average march of ten miles a day, and the whole performed without tents or shelter of any kind.

The Forty-Fourth moved with the army of the Cumberland toward Murfreesboro, where it participated in the battle of Stone River on the 31st of December, 1862, and the 1st and 2d of January, 1863, sustaining losses as follows: eight killed, fifty-two wounded and twenty-five missing, making a total loss of eighty-five.

After remaining in camp near Murfreesboro for some months, it moved with Van Cleve's division of Rosecrans' army across the Cumberland Mountains to Chattanooga, going by way of McMinnville, Dunlap, Jasper, Bridgeport, Shell Mound and Whiteside. It participated in the engagement at Chichamauga on the 19th and 20th of September, and on the 22d, in connection with the Thirty-Ninth Indiana, fought the enemy again at Mission Ridge. In these engagements the regiment lost three killed, fifty-nine wounded and twenty missing, making a total of eighty-two. About the middle of October it was assigned to provost duty at Chattanooga, and while here the regiment re-enlisted in January, 1864, and returned to Indiana, on veteran furlough, reaching Indianapolis on the 26th of January. Returning to the field the regiment was again placed on provost duty at Chattanooga, on which duty it continued until the 14th of September, 1865, when it was mustered out of service. It then returned home reaching Indianapolis on the 17th of September, in command of Colonel Curtiss, with thirty officers and six hundred and seventy men. Of these one hundred and ninety-three were original enlisted men, of whom thirty-three returned as commissioned officers, eighty-nine as non-commissioned officers, and seventy one as privates. The regiment, during its term of service, lost three hundred and fifty in killed and wounded, and by death from disease fifty-eight. In July, 1865, three hundred and sixty remaining recruits of the Sixty-Eighth and Seventy-Second Indiana were transferred to the Forty-Fourth and these continued in service with the latter regiment until its muster out. Just before its final discharge the Forty-Fourth was present at a public reception given to returned troops in the Capitol grounds at Indianapolis, on which occasion it was addressed by Governor Morton, Generals Grose and Washburn and others.

THIRD CAVALRY (45TH) REGIMENT INDIANA VOLUNTEERS.

The Third Cavalry, Forty-Fifth Regiment, was organized as follows:

Six Companies that had been originally organized for the First Cavalry, (Twenty-Eighth Regiment,) at Madison on the 22d of August, 1861, and sent to the Army of the Potomac, under the command of Lieut-Colonel SCOTT CARTER, were, on the 22d of October, 1861, by General Orders of the Adjutant General of the State, united with four Companies that had been accepted in September and October, 1861, and sent to Kentucky, the ten companies bearing the designation of the Third Cavalry (Forty-Fifth Regiment.) In December, 1862, two new companies were organized and added to the organization. The companies with the Army of the Potomac were designated as companies "A," "B," "C," "D," "E" and "F." Of this right wing of the regiment Colonel SCOTT CARTER was the commanding officer. The companies serving in Kentucky were designated as companies "G," "H," "I" and "K." The two companies organized in December, 1862, were designated as companies "L" and "M."

THE RIGHT WING.

The right wing of the Third Cavalry joined Hooker's division of the Army of the Potomac at its camp near Budd's Ferry, south of Washington, on the Maryland side of the Potomac. In December, 1861, a detachment composed of Companies "A," "B" and

Late in the month of October the Army of the Potomac began an advance movement, crossing the river at Berlin and moving along the eastern base of the Blue Ridge to Warrenton. Pleasanton's cavalry division formed the advance of the army, and on the 1st of November encountered the enemy's cavalry at Phila<sup>a</sup>mont, on the 2d at Union, on the 3d at Upperville, and on the 4th at Barber's Cross Roads. The enemy contested the ground with much stubbornness, but were compelled to give way before our cavalry. In all these engagements the battalion bore an active part. It moved with the army about the middle of November from Warrenton to Falmouth, and was present at the battle of Fredericksburg in December, 1862, but was not brought into action. On the 29th of April, 1863, it crossed the Rappahannock with a brigade of Pleasanton's division of Averill's column of Stoneman's raiding expedition, and proceeded to Rapidan Ford, where a skirmish was had with rebel cavalry without accomplishing any result. In obedience to orders from Gen. Hooker, the command returned, entering our lines on the day succeeding the battle of Chancellorsville, and before the army had re-crossed the river.

When Lee commenced his second invasion of Maryland, the cavalry corps of Pleasanton took up its line of march for the purpose of heading Lee's cavalry, then preparing to start on a raid at Culpepper Court House. Marching with Gen. Buford's division, the battalion was engaged in a severe cavalry battle on the south side of the Rappahannock, near Beverly Ford. A few days subsequent to the battle of Beverly Ford there was a re-organization of the cavalry corps, in which the battalion of Third Cavalry was assigned to Gen. John Buford's division, and

"F," proceeded into St. Mary's county, Maryland, for the purpose of breaking up the contraband travel and trade between Baltimore and Virginia. This detachment was kept on this duty for four months. Company "E" was also detached for similar duty, during the same period, along the river in the vicinity of Maryland Point and Port Tobacco. When Hooker's division embarked for the Peninsula the Third Cavalry was left behind, and did duty in lower Maryland until early in May, 1862, when it moved to the vicinity of Washington, remaining there until the 25th of May. It then marched rapidly to Thoroughfare Gap, reaching there next day, and joined the command of Gen. Geary, with which it continued for three weeks. After this it joined Gen. Shield's forces at Luray, in time to participate in the movement back to Front Royal. From there it moved to Bristow Station, where it remained until the 7th of July, when it was ordered to report to Gen. King at Falmouth.

The battalion remained at Falmouth until its evacuation on the last of August, during which time it was engaged in scouting the country south of Fredericksburg, and had several skirmishes with the enemy's cavalry. In one of these expeditions it went to Anderson Turnout, on the Virginia Central railroad, within about twenty miles of Richmond, and, after a brief engagement, dispersed a squadron of rebel cavalry and captured several prisoners. After the evacuation of Fredericksburg, the battalion proceeded to Washington and then northward, taking part in the Maryland campaign, as part of Gen. Pleasanton's command, and engaging in a number of cavalry skirmishes, commencing with Poolsville and ending with Martinsburg, and, also, in the battles of South Mountain and Antietam.

remained attached to his command until his death. On the 21st of June it participated in the cavalry battle at Upperville, between the cavalry corps of the Army of the Potomac and Stuart's rebel cavalry, in which it met a rebel brigade at close quarters, and aided in driving it back with heavy loss. A few days afterward it crossed the Potomac and marched to Gettysburg, entering that place on the morning of the 30th of June, and encamping a mile from the town on the Chambersburg pike. The next morning the enemy advanced in force, and for two hours, until the arrival of the First Corps, Buford's division of cavalry held the enemy in check. So soon as the infantry came up the cavalry were withdrawn from the immediate front, but still remained on the field.

About the close of the first day's fighting, and whilst our troops were falling back through the town, hard pressed by the enemy, the battalion, with the Eighth New York Cavalry, was sent forward to check a heavy flanking force of rebel infantry, until our troops could get into position on the hills behind the town. The movement, though a hazardous one, was successful. After this the battalion was not actively engaged until Lee's army began its retreat, when the battalion moved with the cavalry force in pursuit, engaging the enemy at Williamsport, Boonsboro, Beaver Creek, Funkstown, Falling Waters, Chester Gap, Brandy Station, and on the Rappahannock—the last named fight being on the 4th of August.

The battalion remained in the vicinity of Culpepper Court House during the winter of 1863, engaged in performing picket and outpost duty, and taking part in several reconnaissances. On the 27th of February, 1864, it was detailed, under command of Major Patton, to take part in Gen. Kilpatrick's Richmond raid, and did not rejoin the army until the 15th of March. About the middle of April Col. Chapman's brigade, to which the battalion belonged, was transferred from the 1st cavalry division of the Army of the Potomac to the 3d cavalry division, then commanded by Gen. J. H. Wilson, to which division it remained attached until ordered home to be mustered out of service. It attached at midnight on the night of the 3d of May from camp near Stephensburg, and crossed the Rapidan at Germania Ford at daybreak on the morning of the 4th, driving off the enemy's pickets. It participated in the cavalry engagement at Craig's Meeting House on the 5th, and at Spottsylvania C. H. on the 8th. On the morning of the 9th of May Gen. Sheridan started with his entire cavalry corps upon his great raid upon Richmond, passing to the rear of Lee's army and cutting off communication between him and that city. The battalion formed a part of this force, participating in the important engagements of Yellow Tavern on the 11th, and Meadow Bridge on the 12th. The cavalry column proceeded from the front of Richmond to Haxall's Landing on the Potomac, and communicated with the force then operating under Gen. Butler in front of Bermuda Hundred. After a halt of three days, the command being supplied with rations and forage, marched to White House. It then repaired the railroad bridge, upon which the command was crossed over the Pamunkey river, and rejoined the army near Chesterfield, on the 27th of May. It participated in the engagement of Wilson's division with the rebel cavalry at Hanover C. H. on the 30th and 31st of May, and at Salem Church on the 3d of June.

On the night of Sunday, June 12th, the army of the Potomac, leaving its position at Cold Harbor, began the movement across the Chickahominy and James Rivers. The Battalion of the 3d Cavalry at the advance of Wilson's Division, being dismounted, forced a passage over the Chickahominy, at "Long Bridge, in the face of great natural obstructions, driving off the enemy's pickets. Pontoon bridges were speedily laid and the passage of one column of the army secured. The Division was then moved rapidly to the right in order to cover the movement of the army toward the James, supported by a Division of the 5th Corps, and engaged the enemy on the 13th at White Oak Swamp and Riddle's Shop. In the latter part of June it took part in Wilson's raid upon the Southside and Danville railroads, participating in the engagement at Nottoway Court House, Roanoke Station and Stony Creek.

On the 21st of July, 1864, Colonel George H. Chapman, who had had the immediate command of the Battalion, or of the Brigade to which it was attached, was promoted Brigadier General. In August the non-veterans were mustered out, leaving in the Battalion but one hundred and eighty-nine veterans and recruits. These were organized into two companies "A" and "B" and sent to the Shenandoah valley. Joining General Sheridan's army it participated in the battle of Opequan Creek on the 19th of September, and, also, in the battle of Cedar Creek on the 19th of October. In the latter engagement it captured two pieces of artillery and four stand of colors. On the opening of the campaign of 1865, it accompanied Sheridan on his raid down the James River Canal and again joined the army of the Potomac at Petersburg, participating in the battle of Five Forks and Sailor's Creek. At the latter place it captured five stand of colors. It was, also, engaged at the battle of Appomattox Court House, capturing two pieces of Artillery. At the close of the war it was transferred to Louisville, Kentucky, where it remained until ordered to proceed to Indianapolis for muster-out. Arriving at Indianapolis the two companies were mustered out of service on the 7th of August, 1865.

This battalion participated in over seventy battles, cavalry engagements and stated skirmishes, always bearing itself in a gallant manner, and winning an honorable name throughout the army with which it served.

Up to July, 1864, the casualties in the battalion were as follows, to wit:

Officers and enlisted men killed in action, or who died of wounds received, -----	41
Died in hospital of disease, -----	40
Wounded in action, -----	232
Taken prisoners, or missing in action, -----	107
Deserted, -----	7
Officers discharged on account of disability from disease or wounds, -----	10
Enlisted men discharged for like causes, -----	168
Total, -----	605

No reports have been furnished of the casualties subsequent to July, 1864.

LEFT WING.

Companies "G," "H," "I," and "K," constituting the left wing of the Third Cavalry, were organized at Madison and transferred to Kentucky in October, 1861. For over a year, the companies were separated and did duty with different commands. On reaching Kentucky the companies went into camp at Camp Wickliffe where they remained until the movement toward Nashville commenced, in which the companies joined. After the battle of Shiloh they marched to Corinth and thence into Northern Alabama and Southern Tennessee. The companies marched with different Divisions of the army in the Buell and Bragg campaign, returning to Nashville in November and going into camp near Edgefield Junction.

Companies "L" and "M" were organized in December, 1862, and remained at Indianapolis for near a year. When they moved they marched with General Willcox's command of six months' troops and joined the Left Wing in East Tennessee.

The Battalion marched with Rosecrans' army toward Murfreesboro, and was engaged in the campaigns of the winter of 1862 and those of the spring, summer and fall of 1863, terminating with the battle of Mission Ridge. It then moved into East Tennessee under command of Lieut. Colonel Robert Klein, where it was actively engaged in scouting and skirmishing until the campaign against Atlanta commenced. Joining Sherman's army it moved with it to Atlanta, engaging in all the Cavalry operations of that campaign. In the march through Georgia the Battalion accompanied Sherman's Cavalry and while at Savannah, in pursuance of the orders of General Sherman, the remaining veterans and recruits were transferred to and consolidated with the Eighth Indiana Cavalry, the consolidation bearing the name of the Eighth Cavalry. After the consolidation the detachment participated in all of the marches, engagements and skirmishes of the Eighth Cavalry, and continued to serve with that organization until its muster out at Lexington, North Carolina, on the 20th of July, 1865, and then returned home with that regiment and was finally discharged with it at Indianapolis.

FORTY-SIXTH REGIMENT INDIANA VOLUNTEERS.

The Forty-Sixth Regiment was organized at Logansport on the 4th of October, 1861, with Graham N. Fitch as Colonel, and was mustered into service on the 11th of December, 1861. It then marched to Camp Wickliffe, Kentucky, where it remained until the 16th of February, 1862, when it marched to the mouth of the Salt river, and thence to Paducah. It was then sent to Missouri and joined Gen. Pope's army at Commerce. From thence it moved with a column to the rear of New Madrid and Island No. 10, participating in the attack on New Madrid. With the 24th, 43d and 47th Indiana, it went to Riddle's Point, under General Palmer, to cut off the rebel communication with Island No. 10, and while there put up a battery at night, and sustained itself against an attack by five rebel gunboats for over an hour without being dislodged. After the surrender of Island No. 10 it started, on the 13th of April, 1862, with a large force under Gen. Pope for Fort Pillow, and laid beyond Osceola for five weeks, endeavoring to get below the rebel fort. On the 5th of June the flags of the Forty-Sixth and Forty-Third regiments were raised over Fort Pillow, and on the same day the Forty-Sixth moved down the river on the gunboat fleet.

On the 6th of June, after the gunboat fight, the regiment landed and occupied Memphis. On the 14th of June it left Memphis and went up White river with gunboats to meet Gen. Curtis. At St. Charles, on the 17th, it charged the rebel works, drove the enemy out, capturing his guns and a number of prisoners. It then moved up the river above Clarendon, and was there re-inforced by the Twenty-Fourth, Thirty-Fourth and Forty-Third Indiana. The whole force then moved up the river to Crockett's Bluff, where it landed and marched across the country, meeting the enemy and driving him back, after which it joined the fleet at Clarendon, and returned to Helena. At Helena the Forty-Sixth was assigned to Gen. Hovey's division, and on the 4th of August marched across to Clarendon on an expedition, returning on the 16th.

On the 16th of November it went on an expedition against Arkansas Post, and on the 26th moved with the expedition down the Tallahatchie and Cold Water rivers in Mississippi. Returning to Helena it went on an expedition, on the 10th of January, 1863, under Gen. Gorman to Duvall's Bluff, on White river, and captured some cannon. In February it assisted in clearing Yazoo Pass of obstructions, and then went on the Yazoo river expedition under Gen. Ross, participating in the engagements at Fort Pemberton. Returning to Helena on the 8th of April, it started for Milliken's Bend on the 12th, and took part in the movement to the rear of Vicksburg under Gen. Grant, serving in McGinnis' Brigade of Hovey's Division of the Thirteenth Army Corps.

During this campaign it was in the principal part of the engagement at Port Gibson, and was in the advance brigade at Champion Hills, suffering severely in the latter engagement, losing in killed and wounded one-fourth of the number engaged. It was at the siege of Vicksburg, and was in the trenches there for forty-four days. On the 5th of July the regiment started, under Gen. Sherman, after Gen. Joe Johnston's forces at Jackson. After defeating the enemy and driving him away, the regiment returned to Vicksburg, from whence, on the 10th of August, it was transported first to Natchez and next to New Orleans. Here it was transferred to the Department of the Gulf, under Gen. Banks, and on the 12th of September started on the Teche expedition through Louisiana toward Sabine river. The regiment was in the advance at Grand Coteau, and rendered material assistance to Gen. Burbridge at that point.

In December the Forty-Sixth returned to New Orleans, and on the 2d of January, 1864, the regiment re-enlisted as veterans. On the 4th of March it moved with Gen. Banks' army on the Red river expedition, and marched three hundred and two miles to Sabine Cross Roads. Here it engaged in the battle of Mansfield on the 8th of April, 1864, in the 1st Brigade, 3d Division, 13th Army Corps, losing ten killed, twelve wounded and seventy-seven captured. Of this disastrous blunder an intelligent officer of the Forty-Sixth gives the following account: "This fight was brought on by the cavalry, under orders to push on, when the detachment of the 13th Corps was four miles in the rear, the 19th Corps ten miles and the 16th Corps thirty miles in the rear. The 4th division of the 13th Corps, about twenty-two hundred men, was thrown in and destroyed or broken up; then the 3d division, eighteen hundred strong, with the same result. The cavalry wagons were in front, causing a heavy loss of artillery. The scattered men retreated until the 19th Corps was met, near dark, when the rebels were brought to a stand. The next day the 16th Corps was met, and the battle of Pleasant Hill fought." The prisoners captured at Mansfield were tortured eight months in stockade prisons at Camp Ford and Camp Groce, Texas. In the battle of Pleasant Hill the Forty-Sixth was actively engaged, and marched with Banks' army in its retreat to the Mississippi, and, with the other portion of the 13th Corps, held the rebels back from Alexandria while the dam was being built.

The Regiment arrived at Morganza, on the Mississippi, on the 22d of May, and from thence moved to New Orleans, which place it left on the 12th of June, for Indiana, on veteran furlough. When about to return to the field, after the expiration of its furlough, the regiment was sent out, first down the Ohio, towards Shawneetown, then through Kentucky to Lexington, to resist the invasion of that State by a rebel force. It marched, under General Burbridge, on an expedition to Saltville, and garrisoned Prestonsburg and Callettsburg, Kentucky. Returning from this expedition, the Regiment went into garrison at Lexington where it remained until September, 1865, and then proceeded to Louisville, Kentucky, where it was mustered out of service on the 4th of September, 1865. Proceeding to Indianapolis it was present at a public reception given to returned soldiers in the Capitol grounds on the 6th of September, and, in a few days afterward, the regiment was finally discharged.

FORTY-SEVENTH REGIMENT INDIANA VOLUNTEERS.

The Forty-Seventh Regiment was organized at Anderson, on the 10th of October, 1862, with James R. Slack as Colonel, the regiment being composed of companies raised in the Eleventh Congressional District. On the 13th of December it left Indianapolis for Kentucky and reached Bardstown on the 21st, where it was assigned to Gen. Wood's brigade of Buell's army. From thence it moved to Camp Wickliffe, arriving there on the 31st of December, and remained there until the 14th of February, 1862, when it marched to West Point, at the mouth of Salt river, and there took transports for Commerce, Missouri. Arriving there on the 24th of February, it was assigned to Gen. Pope's army, and marched at once to New Madrid, and there engaged the enemy, the 9th of February, 1864, for home on veterinary furlough, reaching Indianapolis on the 18th, with four hundred and sixteen veterans. On the 19th it was present at a public reception given to the veterans of the Twenty-First and Forty-Seventh regiments at Metropolitan Hall in that city; on which occasion addresses were made by Gov. Morton, Col. Slack and others.

Upon its return to the field the regiment moved with Banks' army up Red river in the spring of 1864, engaging in the marches, battles and retreats of that unfortunate campaign. On the 28th of July it engaged the enemy at Atchafalaya Bayou, Louisiana, losing several wounded. The regiment was then stationed at Morganza, at which post it remained on duty for some time. On the 31st of December, 1864, Col. James R. Slack was commissioned a Brigadier General, whereupon John A. McLaughlin was promoted Colonel of the regiment. In February, 1865, it was transported to Dauphin Island, Alabama, near Mobile, and in Canby's campaign against that city the Forty-Seventh took an active part. After the fall of Mobile it moved to Shreveport, Louisiana, with Gen. Herron to receive the surrender of Gen. Price and the army of the Trans-Mississippi Department. At this place the regiment remained until the 23d of October, 1865, when it was mustered out of service. Reaching Indianapolis with five hundred and thirty men and thirty-two officers, it was present on the 1st of November at a reception given to the regiment in the Capitol grounds, and was addressed by Gov. Morton, Gen. Slack, and Col. Milton S. Robinson and John A. McLaughlin. The next day the regiment was finally discharged.

being the first regiment to enter Fort Thompson. Moving to Riddle's Point it participated in the engagement at that place between the shore batteries and rebel gunboats. From thence it moved to Tiptonville, Tennessee, where it remained for nearly two months.

After the capture of Fort Pillow the regiment was transported to Memphis, reaching that place on the 30th of June, and remaining there during the following month, Colonel Slack being in command of the post. On the 11th of August it had a skirmish with the enemy at Brown's plantation, Mississippi, losing a few men in killed and wounded. Moving to Helena, Arkansas, the regiment remained there until March, 1863, when it took part in Gen. Quinby's expedition to Yazoo Pass. Returning from this expedition it joined Grant's army and moved with it to the rear of Vicksburg, engaging in the battles and skirmishes of that campaign. In the battle of Champion Hills on the 16th of May, it lost one hundred and forty-three in killed and wounded. Going into the trenches near the enemy's works at Vicksburg, it remained in them until the surrender on the 4th of July, being almost constantly engaged in the siege. After this it marched to Jackson with Sherman's expedition, and took part in the engagement at that place.

Returning to Vicksburg it took transports for New Orleans in August, from whence it moved to Berwick Bay. While in this position of Louisiana the Forty-Seventh participated in Banks' expedition through the Teche country, engaging the enemy at Grand Coteau. It then moved to New Iberia, and while there in December, 1863, the regiment re-enlisted and left Algiers on

The Forty-Eighth Regiment was organized at Goshen on the 6th of December, 1861, with Norman Eddy as Colonel, and left for Fort Donelson via Cairo, on the 1st of February, 1862, where it arrived the day after the surrender. It then moved to Paducah, where it remained until May, when it moved up the Tennessee river and engaged in the siege of Corinth. After the evacuation of Corinth it was assigned to the First Brigade, Second Division of the Army of the Mississippi, and took part in the marches and counter-marches in pursuit of Gen. Price. On the 19th of September it participated in the battle of Iuka, losing one hundred and sixteen men in killed and wounded out of four hundred and twenty engaged. On the 3d and 4th of October, it was engaged in the second battle at Corinth, (under Rosecrans,) and lost twenty-six killed and wounded. The regiment next moved down the Mississippi Central railroad as far as Oxford, Mississippi, and on its return marched to Memphis, where, in January, 1863, it was assigned to the First Brigade, Seventh Division of the Seventeenth Army Corps. After remaining here two months it was transported down the Mississippi, and joining the army of Gen. Grant, marched with it to the rear of Vicksburg. During this campaign the regiment participated in the skirmish of Forty Hills, on the 3d of May; the battle of Raymond, on the 13th of May; the battle of Jackson, on the 14th of May, and the engagement at Champion Hills, on the 16th of May, losing in the latter battle thirty-three killed and wounded. It was actively engaged in the trenches during the long siege of the rebel works at Vicksburg, and took part in the assault on the 22d of May, losing thirty-eight in killed and wounded.

After the surrender of Vicksburg it remained in that vicinity until August, and then moved up the river to Memphis, and from thence marched across the country to Chattanooga, and while in that vicinity engaged the enemy at Tunnel Hill. From the latter place it marched back to Huntsville, Alabama, and while stationed there, in January, 1864, the regiment re-enlisted as a veteran organization, and returned home on veteran furlough, reaching Indianapolis on the 6th of February, with three hundred and sixty-nine veterans, and on the 8th were publicly received in welcoming speeches by Governor Morton and others. After the expiration of its furlough it proceeded to Huntsville, Alabama, where it remained until June.

The Forty-Eighth then moved to Cartersville, Georgia, and was kept on duty in that vicinity, looking after guerrillas and protecting Gen. Sherman's railroad communications during the campaign against Atlanta. It was continued on this duty until Hood's invasion, when it joined Sherman's army, and marched with the First Brigade, Third Division of the Fifteenth Army Corps in its campaign from Atlanta to Savannah. From Savannah it first moved to Beaufort, and then on the campaign through the Carolinas, going through Columbia, Cheraw, Fayetteville and Goldsboro to Raleigh.

From Raleigh it moved northward, after the surrender of Johnson's army, making the distance from Raleigh to Petersburg, one hundred and sixty-five miles, in six days. From Petersburg it marched to Washington, and soon after its arrival there was transferred to Louisville, Kentucky, where it was mustered out of service on the 15th of July, 1865. Returning to Indianapolis it was present at a public reception given to a large number of returned troops, in the Capitol grounds, on the 18th of July, on which occasion addresses were made by Governor Morton, General Hovey and others.

While at Washington about two hundred and fifty men were transferred to the Forty-Eighth from the Twelfth, Eighty Third, Ninety-Seventh and Ninety-Ninth regiments, being retained recruits whose organizations had been mustered out. These transferred men served with the Forty-Eighth until its final muster-out, and were discharged with it. During its term of service the regiment lost in battle two hundred and thirteen men, in killed and wounded.

The Forty-Ninth Regiment was organized at Jeffersonville on the 18th of October, 1861, and mustered into service at the same place on the 21st of November, 1861, with John W. Ray as Colonel. Crossing the river on the 11th of December it marched into the interior of Kentucky, reaching Bardstown on the 13th, where it went into a camp of instruction. On the 12th of January, 1862, it started on the march for Cumberland Ford, arriving there on the 15th of February, where it remained until June. While at that place the regiment was severely scourged by disease, losing by death a large number of its members. On the 14th of March a part of the regiment was engaged in a skirmish at Big Creek Gap, Tennessee, and on the 23d of March, in an ineffectual attempt to take Cumberland Gap. On the 12th of June it marched with Gen. Morgan's forces toward Cumberland Gap, and on the 18th it occupied the Gap, the rebels having evacuated it the same day.

The regiment remained at Cumberland Gap until the night of the 17th of September, when the works were abandoned, the enemy having cut off communication with the rear, preventing the garrison from obtaining its supplies. The Forty-Ninth marched with Gen. Morgan's army on its retreat to the Ohio river through Eastern Kentucky. During the march the troops subsisted mostly upon green corn. After a march of sixteen days the regiment reached Greenupsburg, Kentucky, on the 3d of October, from whence it moved to Oak Hill, Ohio. Here it was refitted, and in a few days started for Western Virginia, going up the Kanawha as far as Coal Mouth. Returning from this expedition it embarked on transports at Point Pleasant on the 17th of November for Memphis, arriving there on the 30th of that month.

On the 19th of December it embarked, with Sherman's army, on the expedition to Vicksburg, landing at Chickasaw Bayou on the evening of December 26th, and engaging in the five days battle that followed. It lost fifty-six in killed and wounded. The attempt to storm the rebel works being unsuccessful, the regiment re-embarked on transports and left Chickasaw Bayou on the 2d of January, 1863, and proceeded to Milliken's Bend. From this place it started in steamers on the expedition against Arkansas Post, in the reduction of which place, on the 11th of January, the Forty-Ninth performed its part.

Returning to Young's Point, it assisted in digging the canal across the point, remaining in that vicinity until the 2d of April. It then moved with Grant's army in its march to the rear of Vicksburg, and on the 1st of May participated in the battle of Port Gibson; the battle of Champion Hills, on the 16th of May; that at Black River Bridge, on the 17th, and the siege of Vicksburg, including the assault on the enemy's works on the 22d of May. After the fall of Vicksburg the regiment marched to Jackson, taking part in the seven days' fighting at that place and vicinity. Returning to Vicksburg, the Forty-Ninth embarked on the 10th of August for Port Hudson, and from there proceeded to New Orleans, where it was assigned to the Department of the Gulf. Moving to Berwick's Bay it took part in the expedition up the Teche, going as far as Opelousas.

Returning to New Orleans, the regiment left in transports for Texas on the 10th of December, reaching Decroe's Point on Matagorda Peninsula on the 14th. From there it moved to Indianola, where, on the 3d of February, 1864, one hundred and sixty-seven men and four officers re-enlisted. In March the regiment moved to Matagorda Island, and remained there until April 19th, when it embarked for Alexandria, Louisiana, to reinforce Banks' army. Here it skirmished with the enemy until the 13th of May, when the army retreated to the Mississippi river. Returning to New Orleans, the regiment proceeded to Indiana on veteran furlough, reaching Indianapolis on the 9th of July. At the expiration of its veteran furlough, it was ordered to Lexington, Kentucky, where it remained until the 7th of September, 1865. Leaving there on that day it proceeded to Louisville, where, on the 13th of September, 1865, the regiment was mustered out of service. The following day it reached Indianapolis with two hundred and sixty-one men and seventeen officers, where it was finally discharged from service. The whole distance marched by the regiment during its term of service was eight thousand miles.

FIFTIETH REGIMENT INDIANA VOLUNTEERS.

The Fiftieth Regiment was organized at Seymour on the 12th of September, 1861, with Cyrus L. Dunham as Colonel. On the 25th of October it left Seymour and marched through Jackson, Lawrence, Washington, Orange and Floyd counties to New Albany, stopping at several places on the route to obtain recruits. Leaving New Albany on the 25th of December for Kentucky, it marched to Bardstown, where it went into a camp of instruction. From there it proceeded to Bowling Green and after the occupation of Nashville the Regiment was distributed along the line of the Louisville and Nashville railroad, remaining on that duty until September, 1862. While on this duty, a detachment of twenty men under command of Capt. Atkisson while in a stockade, near Edgefield Junction, were attacked by one thousand of John Morgan's cavalry, on the 20th of August. The rebels were repulsed three times by the gallant little band and finally, after three hours fighting, driven from the field, leaving behind the dead bodies of Morgan's Adjutant and seven privates. Eighteen others were wounded.

In September the regiment moved to the relief of Munfordsville, and was surrendered with the forces at that place to General Bragg, on the 14th of September. On being paroled, the regiment proceeded to Indianapolis, where it remained in parole camp until exchanged. On the 1st of November it left for the field, arriving at Jackson, Tennessee, on the 10th of November, where it was attached to Gen. Jere Sullivan's Division, of the 16th Corps. On the 31st of December, it engaged the enemy under

Gen. Forrest during the whole day, at Parker's Cross-roads, Tenn., capturing five hundred prisoners and seven pieces of artillery. During the winter of 1863, the regiment remained in the vicinity of Jackson, and in the spring following it moved to Collierville, and thence to Memphis.

From Memphis the Fiftieth was transferred to Arkansas, engaging the enemy at Little Rock. Moving from Little Rock on the 10th of September, 1863, to Lewisburg, Arkansas, it remained there on garrison duty until May 17th, 1864. On the 2d of March, 1864, three hundred and fifty men of the regiment re-enlisted as veterans.

Joining Steele's command it marched with it on the Camden expedition, engaging in the following battles: Terre Noir, April 2d; Prairie Leon, April 10th; Red Mound, April 17th; Camden, April 17th, and Saline River April 30th. Returning from this expedition to Little Rock on the 5th of May, the regiment remained there until the latter part of July, when it left for Indiana on veteran furlough, reaching Indianapolis on the 6th of August. On the 25th of September it returned to Little Rock, where it remained on garrison duty for some months. On the 31st of December the non-veterans were mustered out and the veterans and recruits (numbering four hundred and fifty,) consolidated into a battalion of five companies. On the 5th of January, 1865, it marched with Gen. Carr's expedition to Saline river and return, which march occupied ten days.

In February the battalion left Arkansas on transports, and on the 23d of February it joined Canby's besieging army near Mobile. During the operations in that quarter it participated in the siege of Spanish Fort from March 27th to April 8th, and was present at the capture of Mobile on the 10th of April. It was also engaged in a skirmish with the enemy at Whistler's Station on the 11th of April. After this it was transferred to the Third Brigade, Second Division of the Sixteenth Army Corps, and on the 26th of May, 1865, the battalion was consolidated with the Fifty-Second regiment, the new organization bearing the designation of Fifty-Second Regiment. In this organization the transferred men continued to serve until the 10th of September, 1865, when the Fifty-Second was mustered out at Montgomery, Alabama. Returning to Indiana with that regiment, they were finally discharged at Indianapolis, in the month of September.

The Fifty-First Regiment was organized at Indianapolis on the 14th of October, 1861, and mustered in on the 14th of December, 1861, with Abel D. Streight, as Colonel. From Indianapolis it proceeded to Kentucky, going into a camp of instruction at Bardonia. In February, 1862, it marched with Buell's army toward Nashville, where it encamped for awhile and then moved to the Tennessee river, reaching the field of Shiloh too late to participate in the battle at that place. In the movement upon and siege of Corinth it took an active part, and after the evacuation it marched with Wood's division of the Army of the Ohio through Northern Alabama to Stevenson. When Buell's army fell back from Nashville to Louisville, the regiment marched with it, and after the campaign in Kentucky it returned to Nashville, from whence it marched with Rosecrans's army toward Murfreesboro in December.

The regiment was engaged in the battle of Stone River, on the 31st of December, 1862, and 1st and 2d of January, 1863, losing five killed, thirty-six wounded and eight missing—making a total of forty-nine. After this engagement it remained in the vicinity of Murfreesboro until the month of April, when it left on the Streight expedition. The forces engaged in this expedition had been organized as a provisional brigade by Col. Streight, at his own solicitation, and by command of Gen. Rosecrans, and consisted of the Fifty-first and Seventy-third Indiana, Third Ohio and Eightieth Illinois, with two companies of cavalry and two pieces of artillery. The brigade, numbering about seventeen hundred men and eight hundred animals, left Nashville under command of Col. Streight, on the 11th of April, and proceeded to Palmyra, on the Cumberland river, by transports, and then marched through the country to Fort Henry, on the Tennessee river, picking up on the route all the serviceable horses and mules that could be found. From thence it proceeded on transports to Eastport, Mississippi, which place it left on the 21st of April, (about two thirds of the command being mounted,) and marched in the direction of Rome, Georgia, for the purpose of making a raid in the rear of Bragg's army, then at Tullahoma. The expedition reached the base of Sand Mountains on the evening of the 29th, and on the 30th were overtaken by the rebel cavalry under Forrest, when a battle ensued, resulting in the defeat of the enemy. This was the battle of Day's Gap, in which the Fifty-first lost thirty-one killed and wounded. Among the latter was Lieut. Col. Sheets, who fell mortally wounded. On the 1st of May another fight took place on Crooked Creek, in which the enemy were again repulsed. On the 2d of May another engagement was fought on Blunt's farm, near Gadsden, Alabama, the enemy being again defeated. In this fight Col. Hadaway, of the Seventy-third Indiana, was killed. The command pushed forward in hopes of capturing Rome, Georgia, but on the 3d of May it was overtaken near Gaylesville, Alabama, by the command of Gen. Forrest, and compelled to surrender. The whole force was consigned to rebel prisons, and the officers were treated with great severity. After being kept prisoners for some time the enlisted men were paroled for exchange, and went into parole camp at Indianapolis, until their exchange was effected. On the 9th of February, 1864, Col. Streight escaped from Libby Prison, by means of a tunnel, after ten months imprisonment.

In November, 1863, the regiment was exchanged, and at once returned to the field, joining the army at Nashville. During the Fall of 1863 the regiment was engaged in guarding the communications of the army between Nashville and Chattanooga. It was afterwards sent into East Tennessee, and in the months of January and February, 1864, a portion of the regiment re-enlisted as veterans. On the 29th of February, the veterans reached Indianapolis on veteran furlough, and about the 1st of April returned to the field. During the campaign of 1864, the regiment did duty at Chattanooga, and, after the occupation of Atlanta, moved to that place, where it remained until the Fourth Corps marched northward, when it moved with the first brigade, third division of that corps, reaching Pulaski, Tennessee, in November, and, upon the advance of Hood's army on Nashville, it fell back toward that place. On the 14th of December, the non-veterans were mustered out of service, and proceeded home. On the 15th of December, the regiment participated in the battle of Nashville, and afterward joined in the pursuit of the routed rebels, going as far as Huntsville, Alabama. At this place it remained until March, 1865, when it moved with the Fourth Corps into East Tennessee. About the 1st of May it returned to Nashville, where a number of recruits that remained in service after the muster-out of the Seventy-ninth Regiment, were transferred to the Fifty-first.

In June the regiment moved on transports to New Orleans with the Fourth Corps, and from thence was transported to Texas, and, landing on the coast, marched into the interior of Western Texas, as far as San Antonio, where the regiment was still stationed when this sketch was closed—in November, 1865.

FIFTY-SECOND REGIMENT INDIANA VOLUNTEERS.

The Fifty-Second Regiment was partially organized at Rushville and marched to Indianapolis, where it was consolidated with the Fifty-Sixth, or Railroad Regiment, and the regimental organization perfected in February, 1862. On the 7th of February it left Indianapolis for the field, and arrived at Fort Henry on the 9th, which place it left on the 12th, and marched toward Fort Donelson. On the 14th and 15th it participated in the siege of Fort Donelson, serving in Cook's Brigade of Smith's Division of the Army of the Tennessee. After the capitulation it remained at Fort Donelson until the 3d of March, when it moved to Fort Henry. It then did garrison duty at Forts Henry and Heiman until April 18th, when it moved to Pittsburg Landing, where it was assigned to Lauman's Brigade of Hurlbut's Division of the Army of the Tennessee, and took part in the siege of Corinth.

From Corinth it marched to Memphis, arriving there on the 20th of July, and remaining on duty at that place until the 9th of September. It then moved to Fort Pillow, and from thence to Columbus, Kentucky, and then back again to Fort Pillow. On the 17th of September it fought Faulkner's guerrillas near Derhamville, Tennessee. On the 30th of September the regiment went on garrison duty at Fort Pillow, and remained there until January 18th, 1864, during which time it made several marches, and was almost constantly engaged in hunting and fighting guerrillas in Tennessee and Arkansas.

On the 23d of January the regiment left Fort Pillow and proceeded to Vicksburg with the Third Brigade of the Second Division of the Sixteenth Army Corps, and on the 3d of February it marched with Sherman's army on the raid to Meridian. On the 5th it fought the enemy at Jackson, and on the 14th it reached Meridian. Leaving there, on the return march, on the 16th of February, it arrived at Canton, Mississippi, on the 26th, and while there, on the 27th of February, the regiment re-enlisted as a veteran organization. Moving from Canton on the 29th it reached Vicksburg on the 4th of March, when the veterans proceeded to Indiana on veteran furlough. One hundred and twenty-six non-veterans and recruits were temporarily assigned to the Eighty-Ninth Indiana, and marched with that regiment to the relief of Banks' army on Red river, and were in the following named battles: Fort De Russey, March 14th; Pleasant Hill, April 9th; Moore's Plantation, May 3d, and Yellow Bayou, May 18th.

The veterans arrived at Indianapolis on the 17th of March, and, upon the expiration of their furlough, left for the field on the 23d of April. Reaching Columbus, Kentucky, on the 26th, they remained there until the 17th of May, when they left for Vicksburg, where the whole command was reunited. On the 3d of June the regiment left Vicksburg with Gen. A. J. Smith's expedition into Arkansas after the rebel General Marmaduke, and on the 5th of June overtook him at Lake Chicot and gave him battle. After this it moved to Memphis, from which place it started, on the 23d of June, with Gen. A. J. Smith's expedition after Forrest. On the 14th of June it participated in the engagement with Forrest's forces at Tupelo, Mississippi, after which it returned to Memphis.

The regiment remained at Memphis until the 3d of August, when it marched on an expedition against Forrest, and participated in the battle of Hurricane Creek, Mississippi, on the 13th of August. Returning to Memphis, it marched with Gen. A. J. Smith's command, on the 6th of September, for Missouri. Meeting Price's forces at Franklin, Missouri, on the 1st of October, it participated in a battle at that place, defeating him. From Franklin the regiment marched rapidly in pursuit of Price's army, driving it out of the State. Giving up the chase at the Kansas line, near Harrisonville, Missouri, on the 27th of October, after a march of three hundred and fifty miles, the Fifty-Second returned to St. Louis, arriving there on the 19th of November. The whole number of miles marched in this campaign was seven hundred and twenty, and this was done within fifty days.

From St. Louis the regiment proceeded to Nashville, reaching there on the 36th of November. On the 15th and 16th of December it participated in the battle of Nashville, and then the Fiftyeth Regiment—the new organization being designated the Fifty-Second Regiment. On the 14th of July the regiment left Montgomery for Tuskegee, Alabama, in which vicinity it remained on garrison duty until the 28th of August, when it left for Montgomery, where it was mustered out of service on the 10th of September, 1865. Proceeding homeward by way of West Point, Atlanta, Chattanooga and Nashville, it reached Indianapolis on the 16th of September, and was present at a public reception given to returned troops in the Capitol grounds, at which the regiment was addressed by Governor Morton and others. Shortly afterward the Fifty-Second was finally discharged.

On the 26th of May it was consolidated with the Battalion of joined in the pursuit of Hood's army, going to Clifton, on the Tennessee river. It afterward moved to Eastport, from which place it proceeded, on transports, on the 9th of February, 1865, for New Orleans, arriving there on the 22d and joining Canby's army, then preparing for its campaign against Mobile. On the 6th of March it left for Dauphin Island, Alabama, from whence it moved, on the 19th of March, to the rear of Spanish Fort, in the reduction of which the regiment took an active part. On the 9th of April it participated in the battle of Blakely, and on the 13th moved toward Montgomery, Alabama, arriving there on the 27th of April.

FIFTY-THIRD REGIMENT INDIANA VOLUNTEERS.

The Fifty-Third Regiment was partially organized at New Albany in January, 1862, and on the 26th of February, the organization was perfected by the consolidation with the Fifty-Third of the recruits raised for the Sixty-Second Regiment, then organizing at Rockport. Of the organization thus completed Walter Q. Gresham was made Colonel, and William Jones (of the Sixty-Second.) Lieutenant (colonel. From New Albany the regiment moved to Indianapolis, where it was engaged in guarding prisoners at Camp Morton until the 15th of March, when it left for the field.

It was first transported to St. Louis, and next to Savannah, Tennessee, where it remained until the 15th of April, when it joined the army then moving toward Corinth. After the evacuation of the latter place the regiment moved to Lagrange, and from that point made expeditions to Holly Springs, and other places south of the Memphis and Charleston railroad. Moving to Memphis, it remained there until September, when it marched to Bolivar, and thence in the direction of Corinth, and on the 5th of October participated in the battle of Hatchie, where it crossed the bridge, while on fire, and charged the rebel lines.

The regiment next marched with Grant's army into North Mississippi and then returned to Moscow, Tennessee, and from thence moved to Memphis. Remaining there until April 1863, it moved with the Third Brigade of the Fourth Division of the Sixteenth Corps to Young's Point, and thence to Grand Gulf. In a few days afterward it returned to Young's Point and Chickasaw Bluffs and joined the army besieging Vicksburg. During the siege of Vicksburg it bore an honorable part, and after the capitulation it moved to Jackson with the army that compelled the evacuation of that place on the 16th of July. Returning to Vicksburg, the regiment moved to Natchez, where it remained nearly three months. On the 11th of August Col. Gresham was appointed a Brigadier General, whereupon Lieut. Col. Wm. Jones was commissioned his successor. In September it was attached to the division of the Seventeenth Corps to which it was attached upon an expedition into Louisiana, capturing an important fort, and otherwise injuring the enemy. Returning to Vicksburg it remained there until February, 1864, when it marched with Sherman's army in the campaign to Meridian and return. While returning, three hundred and eighty-three of the regiment re-enlisted as veterans at Hebron, Mississippi, in February. It

March the veterans returned home on furlough, upon the expiration of which they joined the regiment in the field.

From Vicksburg the regiment was transferred to Tennessee, and on the 6th of June it joined Sherman's army at Acworth, Georgia, participating in all the subsequent battles and skirmishes of the Atlanta campaign. In the assault on the rebel works on Kennesaw Mountain, on the 27th of June; the battle of Nickajack Creek, on the 5th of July; the battle of Peach Tree Creek, on the 20th of July, and in the engagements before Atlanta on the 22d of July, it bore a conspicuous part. In the latter named battle the regiment suffered severely, Col. Jones being among the killed. After the fall of Atlanta it moved in the pursuit of Hood, returning to Atlanta in time to join in the march to Savannah in November. From Savannah it marched through the Carolinas, halting at Goldsboro, North Carolina. After the surrender of Johnson's army, it moved to Washington by way of Raleigh, Petersburg and Richmond. Remaining there for a few weeks, it was transferred to Louisville, Kentucky, where it was mustered out with the Army of the Tennessee, on the 21st of July, 1865. Going thence to Indianapolis, it was present at a public reception of returned regiments in the Capitol grounds, on the 25th of July, on which occasion Major General Sherman was present and addressed the soldiers after a welcoming speech had been made by Governor Morton. In a few days afterward the regiment was finally discharged.

FIFTY-FOURTH (ONE YEAR) REGIMENT INDIANA VOLUNTEERS.

The War Department having given special authority for the organization, from the nine months' drafted men, then at the Draft Rendezvous at Indianapolis, of a regiment of volunteers for twelve months' service, the Fifty-Fourth Regiment was organized in October, 1862. With but few exceptions the regiment was composed of drafted men or their substitutes. The organization was mustered into service on the 16th of November, with Fielding Mansfield as Colonel.

On the 9th of December the regiment left Indianapolis for Memphis, reaching that place on the 12th of December. On arrival it was assigned to Col. John De Courcey's Brigade of Gen. G. W. Morgan's Division of the Thirteenth Army Corps. On the 20th of December it embarked with Sherman's expedition to Vicksburg, and on the 26th of December the brigade to which it was attached moved up the Yazoo river, felt the enemy, drew his fire and fell back under cover of the gunboats. On the three following days the regiment was exposed in the front all the time, participating in the two charges made on the rebel works at Chickasaw Bluffs, near Vicksburg, losing two hundred and sixty-four killed, wounded and missing.

Withdrawing from the Yazoo river, it engaged in the expedition to Arkansas Post in January, 1863, and after the reduction of that place returned to Young's Point. Here, after a sickly season and a short change to Milliken's Bend, the regiment became a part of the division commanded by Gen. Osterhaus, which led the advance, opening the way for Grant's army in the Vicksburg campaign. During this campaign the regiment participated in the battle of Thompson's Hill, commonly known as Port Gibson. Afterward it garrisoned Raymond, from whence it moved as escort of prisoners, and in company with three other regiments brought them to the Yazoo river, where they were placed on transports and taken to Memphis. Returning from this duty, the regiment entered the trenches and participated in the siege of the enemy's works at Vicksburg. During the siege the regiment moved with its brigade to the Big Black river, and after the surrender of Vicksburg, it moved with the advance on Jackson, and participated in the engagements that followed, and in the capture of Jackson.

On the 22d of July it returned to Vicksburg, and soon after it was transported to New Orleans, joining the army of the Gulf, from whence it moved, on the 6th of September, with the expedition up the Teche, going as far as Opelousas and Vermillionville. Returning to New Orleans on the 1st of November, the regiment was mustered out of service on the 8th of December, 1863, after which it returned home.

FIFTY-FIFTH REGIMENT INDIANA VOLUNTEERS—THREE MONTHS' SERVICE.

The Fifty-Fifth Regiment was organized at Indianapolis, under special orders, and mustered into service for three months, on the 16th of June, 1862, with John R. Mahan as Lieut. Colonel, who continued to command it until its final discharge. It was assigned to the duty of guarding the Fort Donelson prisoners at Camp Morton, where it remained until August and then proceeded to Kentucky, with other troops sent there to resist the invasion of General Kirby Smith. The Regiment remained on duty in Central Kentucky until the expiration of its term of service when it returned to Indianapolis, where it was mustered out.

FIFTY-SIXTH REGIMENT INDIANA VOLUNTEERS.

The Fifty-Sixth Regiment was authorized to be raised under special orders issued to James M. Smith as Colonel, Silas M. Avery as Lieutenant Colonel, and Frank B. Lord as Major. The design was to recruit the regiment mainly from railroad operatives, and it was originally designated as the "Railroad Regiment." Failing to enlist the requisite number of men, the attempt to complete the regiment was abandoned, and on the 29th of January, 1862, the men enlisted were ordered to be consolidated with the Fifty-Second Regiment, and the combination thus organized was designated the Fifty-Second (or Railroad) Regiment.

FIFTY-SEVENTH REGIMENT INDIANA VOLUNTEERS.

The Fifty-Seventh Regiment was recruited in the 5th and 11th Congressional Districts, mainly through the efforts of Rev. J. W. T. McMullen and Rev. F. A. Hardin, and was mustered into the service on the 18th of November, 1861, at Richmond, Indiana. On the 10th of December the regiment moved to Indianapolis, where it remained until December 23d, when, its organization having been completed, it went to Louisville, Kentucky, and reported to Gen. Buell. Here it was assigned to the Sixth Division of the Army of the Ohio, then organizing at Bardstown, Kentucky, to which place the regiment marched. Soon afterward it moved to Lebanon, Kentucky, and on the 12th of February, 1862 it was sent by rail to Munfordsville, Kentucky, and from thence marched to Nashville, Tennessee, arriving there early in March. Although participating in no engagements, the winter campaign in Kentucky had been very severe, and the regiment suffered a great depletion.

After remaining at Nashville for some time, resting, refitting, and drilling, the regiment started for Pittsburg Landing, Tenn., on the 21st of March, 1862; the Army of the Ohio being ordered to join Gen. Grant. It was within hearing of the battle of Shiloh, on the 6th of April, but did not arrive on the field until the afternoon of the 7th. It soon became actively engaged, but suffered only a slight loss. During the "siege" of Corinth the regiment was actively employed. After the evacuation of that place, it marched into North Alabama, where it remained until about the middle of July, 1862, when it marched again into Middle Tennessee. Until the retreat to Louisville, which began about the 1st of September, 1862, the regiment remained on duty in Middle Tennessee, near Tullahoma and McMinnville, suffering but few casualties, but making many arduous marches, and undergoing severe hardships. During the campaign against Bragg, in Kentucky, it took an active part, engaging in the battle of Chaplin Hills, or Perryville, suffering only a slight loss. After the pursuit of Bragg was discontinued, the regiment marched for Nashville again, which place it reached about the 1st of December, 1862.

It remained at Nashville during the month of December, being frequently engaged in skirmishes with the enemy while guarding foraging trains. At the battle of Stone River the Fifty-seventh suffered severely, losing 75 men out of about 350 engaged. In this battle the regiment greatly distinguished itself. It was attached to the Left Wing of the Army which withstood the rebel assaults on the first day of the battle. Col. Hines and Lieut. Col. Lennard were severely wounded, and the regiment lost some of its best men among the killed. During the remainder of the winter and the spring of 1863, it remained in camp near Murfreesboro, drilling constantly, and doing very severe picket duty. It took part in the "eleven days' scout" of Major General Reynolds, to McMinnville, in the month of April, but was not in any engagement. On the 24th of June the regiment broke camp and participated in the campaign against Tullahoma. After the rebels evacuated Middle Tennessee, the regiment remained in camp near Pelham, in the Elk river valley, until the 16th of August. During the campaign which resulted in the capture of Chattanooga and the battle of Chickamauga, General Wagner's Brigade, to which the Fifty-seventh was attached, operated on the north side of the Tennessee, opposite Chattanooga. On the evacuation of that place, Wagner's Brigade crossed the river and took possession. On the 5th of September Col. Lennard was assigned as Provost Marshal of the town, and the regiment was placed on duty as Provost Guard. From this duty it was relieved a few days before the battle of Mission Ridge, in which action it bore a conspicuous part.

At the re-organization of the Army of the Cumberland, subsequent to the battle of Chickamauga, the Fifty-Seventh was assigned to Sheridan's (Second) Division of the Fourth Corps, in which division it has served ever since. Sheridan's division formed a part of the column sent to the relief of Gen. Burnside at Knoxville immediately after the battle of Mission Ridge. The campaign in East Tennessee during the winter of 1863 and 1864, was probably unequaled during the whole war for hardships and privations; of these the Fifty-Seventh suffered a full share.

On the 1st of January, 1864, the regiment almost unanimously re-enlisted as a veteran organization, but did not return to Indiana on veteran furlough until March. Upon the expiration of its veteran furlough the regiment rejoined the Fourth Corps on the 5th of May, and took part in the initial operations of the campaign against Atlanta.

It was severely engaged in an assault upon the enemy's works on Rocky Face Ridge, near Dalton, Georgia, May 9th, and suffered some loss. At Resacca Col. Lenard, a most brave and accomplished officer, was mortally wounded. In this battle the Fifty-Seventh took an active part, also in the action near Adairsville, on the evening of the 17th of May. In the engagement which took place May 25th, near New Hope Church on the Alabama Mountains, the regiment took position in front of the enemy in the evening, but was not engaged until May 27th when it lost severely. It was under fire every day from this time until June 3d, losing many men. In the terrible struggles around Kennesaw, and especially in the deadly skirmishing, it bore a full part. Lieutenant Beitzell was killed on the 18th, and Captain Stidham and Lieutenant Callaway on the 23d of June. In the assault of the 27th of June the regiment, then commanded by Col. Willis Blanch, formed the skirmish line in front of the assaulting column of the Fourth Corps; its loss was heavy. At the battle of Peach Tree Creek, on the 20th of July, the regiment was again on the skirmish line, but suffered only a slight loss. From this time until the 25th of August, the regiment lay in the trenches in front of Atlanta. It was slightly engaged in the battle of Jonesboro, August 31st; Lieutenant Minesinger was here mortally wounded.

Soon after the occupation of Atlanta, our communications being threatened, the division to which the Fifty-Seventh belonged was sent to Chattanooga. It took part in the operations which resulted in driving Hood into Alabama, and afterward formed a part of the army commanded by Gen. Thomas, which resisted the rebel invasion of Tennessee. The regiment was engaged at Franklin on the 30th of November, 1864, where it sustained a very severe loss, especially in prisoners; Captain Dunn was killed in this fight. It also participated in the battle of Nashville, on the 15th and 16th of December. Col. Blanch was wounded here, but the losses of the regiment were not very severe. After the pursuit of Hood's army the regiment lay in camp at Huntsville, Alabama, some months, moving into East Tennessee as far as Bull's Gap in April, 1865. It then went to Nashville, where it remained until July, and then was transferred to Texas. It has remained in service in the latter State until the present date, (November, 1865,) and is now stationed at Port Lavacca.

The Fifty-Seventh has seen much arduous service, its losses in battle have been heavy and its marches have been especially severe, having crossed the entire breadth of the State of Kentucky three times, and of Tennessee six times. It has behaved with great gallantry on every occasion, and has achieved an enviable record and an honorable fame. It has been peculiarly fortunate in its commanding officers. Col. McMullen remained with the regiment but a short time, but Col. Hines, his successor, who principally formed its character, was an officer of great and acknowledged ability. Colonels Lennard and Blanch were also soldiers of distinguished merit. It is at present commanded by Col. John S. McGraw, an experienced officer.

The Fifty-Eighth Regiment was organized at Princeton in October, 1861, with Henry M. Carr as Colonel, and left for the field in December, crossing the Ohio river at Louisville. It was assigned to Wood's division of Buell's army, and during the winter of 1861 and 1862 marched through Central Kentucky, stopping a few weeks at Bardstown, Lebanon, Spring Garden and Bowling Green. On the 1st of March it reached Nashville, and remained there until the 1st of April, when it started for Pittsburg Landing, which place was reached on the evening of the second day's battle of Shiloh. The regiment rested here for awhile and then engaged in the siege of Corinth. After the evacuation it marched into Northern Alabama, and thence to Shelbyville, Tennessee. From Shelbyville it moved to Decherd, where it lay for a few weeks and then marched with Buell's army to Nashville, and thence to Louisville, reaching the last named city on the 1st of October. It immediately started back in pursuit of Bragg's army, reaching Nashville in the latter part of November.

On the 26th of December the regiment marched toward Murfreesboro, and on the day following it charged the rebels at Lavergne. On the 31st of December, 1862, and 1st and 2d of January, 1863, it participated in the battle of Stone river, being attached to Hascall's Brigade of Wood's Division of the Twenty-First Corps, and losing eighteen killed, eighty-seven wounded and five missing—making a total loss of one hundred and ten.

After this engagement the regiment remained in the vicinity of Murfreesboro until the movement against Tullahoma was commenced, when it moved with the army in that direction. It was in the brigade that was the first to enter Chattanooga, and was engaged in the battle of Chicamauga from its commencement to its close, losing in killed, wounded and missing, one hundred and seventy-one out of an aggregate of four hundred engaged.

Falling back with the army to Chattanooga the regiment remained there, and was engaged in the battle of Chattanooga on the 23d of November, and was in Wagner's Brigade of Sheridan's Division in the charge on Mission Ridge on the 25th of November, losing five killed and sixty-one wounded. Immediately after it made a forced march to Knoxville, which place was then besieged by Longstreet's army. During the winter of 1863 and 1864, the regiment was encamped among the hills of East Tennessee without tents, and only such rations as could be gathered from a poor and scanty country. On the 24th of January, 1864, the regiment re-enlisted as a veteran organization, and on the 4th of March arrived at Indianapolis on veteran furlough.

Upon its return to Chattanooga in April, it was assigned to the Engineer Department, and immediately took charge of the pontoon trains of Sherman's army. The regiment did all the bridging for Sherman's army from Chattanooga to Atlanta, bridging some of the rivers as many as sixteen times, and often under the fire of the enemy. In October, 1864, one hundred and seventy veterans and returned recruits of the Tenth Indiana were transferred to this regiment, and continued to serve with the Fifty-Eighth until its final discharge.

When General Sherman's army was divided at Atlanta, in November, the Fifty-eighth was assigned to duty with the Army of Georgia, which was composed of the Fourteenth and Twentieth Corps, and was commanded by Major General Slocum. This regiment did all the bridging and repairing of roads for that army during the campaign from Atlanta to Savannah, including a bridge across the Savannah river, opposite the city, this bridge being over three thousand feet in length. On the 31st of December, 1864, the non-veterans of the regiment were mustered out at Savannah and returned home.

On the campaign through South Carolina to Goldsboro, North Carolina, the Fifty-eighth did all the bridging for the Army of Georgia, including a second bridge over the Savannah, at Sister's Ferry, where the men had to work, for six days, in water from two to four feet deep, in clearing out and repairing the road. In this campaign the regiment made over sixteen thousand feet of bridges. While attached to the Engineer Department, though not in any heavy engagements, the regiment was not free from exposure, being the first on the banks of streams and the last to leave, and the greater part of the time its work was done after night, with the enemy on the opposite bank.

After the surrender of Johnson's army the regiment marched from Goldsboro to Washington City, by the way of Richmond, bridging all the streams on the route except the James river. After remaining at Washington for a brief period, it was transferred to Louisville, Kentucky, where, on the 25th of July, 1865, it was mustered out of service. Proceeding to Indianapolis, with five hundred and fifty men, it was present at a reception given to returned troops, in the Capitol grounds, on the 27th of July, on which occasion the regiment was addressed by Lieutenant Governor Conrad Baker and others. In a few days afterwards it was finally discharged from service. In July, 1865, ninety men were transferred to the regiment from the One Hundred and First Indiana, being the recruits remaining in service after the muster out of that organization. These were mustered out with the Fifty-eighth. During its term of service the regiment lost in battle and by disease two hundred and sixty-five men.

FIFTY-NINTH REGIMENT INDIANA VOLUNTEERS.

Governor Morton authorized the raising of the Fifty-Ninth a regiment in each Congressional District, and as Col. Alexander's Regiment in October, 1861, and commissioned Jesse I. Alexander instructions were "not to interfere with the filling up of other der. of troop. Colonel. At that time there was being recruited regiments," recruiting for the Fifty-Ninth progressed but slowly.

But the Colonel, with energy and perseverance, succeeded in getting the organization completed and mustered into the service on the 11th of February, 1862. On the 13th of February the regiment was ordered to New Albany, where it was armed with Enfield Rifles. On the 18th it left on transports for Cairo, arriving there on the 20th, and on the following day it embarked for Commerce, Missouri, reaching there on the 22d, and was the first regiment to report to General Pope for duty with the "Army of the Mississippi."

On the 25th of February it moved to Benton, where it was first brigaded with the 34th, 43d, 46th and 47th Indiana regiments—Colonel Slack commanding—and afterwards transferred to Colonel Worthington's brigade. On the 1st of March the regiment marched in the direction of New Madrid, arriving there on the 3d, and participating in the siege of that place, and upon the evacuation was one of the first regiments that entered the town and took possession of Fort Thompson. Crossing the Mississippi on the 7th of April, it marched down to Tiptonville, assisting in the capture of over five thousand prisoners. Returning to New Madrid on the 10th of April, it embarked on transports on the 12th, and proceeded, with the fleet, to Fort Pillow, from which expedition it returned on the 17th. It then proceeded from New Madrid to Cairo, and thence to Hamburg, Tennessee, where it disembarked on the 22d of April, and went into camp. At this place Gen. N. B. Buford was assigned to the command of the Brigade to which the Fifty-Ninth was attached, and during the month of May the Forty-Eighth Indiana was placed in the same Brigade, and from that time until the final muster-out of both organizations, the two regiments remained together.

From the 24th of April until the 29th of May, the regiment was engaged in most of the skirmishes and reconnoissances, and in the building of forts, &c., during the march to and siege of Corinth, and after the evacuation marched with the pursuing column that followed the enemy to Boonville, returning to the vicinity of Corinth on the 12th of June. On the 13th it moved its camp to Clear Creek, where it remained until the 6th of August. While at this place it marched on an expedition to Ripley and back, being absent twelve days. Moving from Clear Creek to Jacinto, it remained there until the 7th of September, when it proceeded to Rienzi, at which place it received two hundred and fifty recruits from Indiana. On the 1st of October it went to Corinth, and was there engaged, on the 3d and 4th of October, in the battle of Corinth. After defeating the enemy, it joined in the pursuit of Price to the Hatchie, and then returned to Corinth, arriving there on the 10th of October.

On the 2d of November, the regiment marched with General Quimby's division to Grand Junction, and thence to Davis' Mills and Moscow. On the 29th of November it again broke camp and proceeded, by the way of Cold Water, Holly Springs, and Oxford, to Yocana river, where it remained a few days, and then returned to Oxford, from whence it moved to Lumpkins' Mill.

On the 26th of December it started to Memphis, with the escort of the Commissary train, arriving there on the 28th, and on the 31st started back with the train, going through Collierville to Lafayette, and arriving there on the 1st of January, 1863. Returning to Memphis on the 3d, it went into camp about three miles east of the city, where it remained until the 1st of March, doing guard duty. It then proceeded down the Mississippi, on transports, to Helena, Arkansas, stopping a few days at Woolfolk's Landing. On the 12th of March it embarked with the Yazoo River expedition, arriving at the encampment, near Fort Pemberton, on the 25th of March. Re-embarking on the 6th of April, the regiment returned to Helena on the 10th, from which place it proceeded, on the 13th of April, to Milliken's Bend, arriving there on the 15th of April.

On the 24th of April it commenced, with other troops, the march for Vicksburg, going down the west side of the Mississippi to Grand Gulf, arriving there on the 1st of May, and at once crossing over to the east side, near Bayou Piere, from whence it marched to the battle ground of Port Gibson, reaching there just as the battle closed. Marching with Grant's army, in the First Brigade of the Seventh Division of the Seventeenth Army Corps, it was engaged at Forty Hills, Raymond and Champion Hills. At Jackson its skirmishers, under Captain John E. Simpson, were the first to enter the city, and it had the gratification of seeing its tattered flag waving from the dome of the Capitol, in that city. At the Big Black river it formed the rear-guard for the Seventeenth Corps, and was the last regiment to cross, destroying the bridges behind it. It then moved up and took its position, in line of battle, in front of the rebel fortifications at Vicksburg. In the assault on the enemy's works on the 22d of May the regiment participated, suffering heavy losses. In this assault Lieut. Tripp was killed, and Capt. Buck, Lieuts. Riley and Maxwell wounded. Of the enlisted men one hundred and twenty-six were killed and wounded. During the siege of Vicksburg, the Fifty-Ninth formed part of Gen. Blair's command, and with it went up the Yazoo river to Satarlia, returning to its old position in the trenches on the 4th of June, where it remained until the surrender. On the 4th of July it marched into Vicksburg and on the same day Gen. McPherson issued a congratulatory order in which he complimented in the highest terms of praise the soldiers of the Seventeenth Corps. On the 5th of August, Gen. Sanborn, who had long commanded the brigade and division to which the Fifty-Ninth was attached, issued his farewell order to the soldiers of the First Brigade, announcing his intention to leave the military service, and recounting their deeds on the battle-field from Corinth to Vicksburg, and complimenting them for the glorious record they had made.

The regiment remained at Vicksburg until the 13th of September, when it embarked on transports and proceeded up the river to Helena, where it remained until the 28th of September, and then embarked for Memphis. Remaining there until the 5th of October, it proceeded by rail to Corinth, and from thence moved to Glendale, where it remained until the 17th of October, when the remainder of the division arrived from Memphis. On the 19th of October, it commenced the march for Chattanooga, arriving there in time to take part in the victory of Mission Ridge.

On the 17th of December it began its return march, reaching Bridgeport, Alabama, on the 18th, where it went into camp. While there the regiment was transferred to the Fifteenth Army Corps and assigned to the Third Division thereof. Starting for Huntsville on the 23d of December, it reached there on the 26th and went into camp. While there the regiment re-enlisted as a Veteran organization on the 1st of January, 1864, for which the Fifty-Ninth was complimented by Brig. Gen'l John E. Smith, in orders, on the 3d of February. It left for home on the 3d of March in company with the Forty-Eighth, reaching Indianapolis on the 8th, where, on the 10th, the two regiments partook of an excellent dinner prepared by the ladies of the city, and in the afternoon had a public reception in the State House Grounds, where they were warmly greeted by Governor Morton and others.

Returning to the field by the way of New Albany, Louisville, and Nashville, the Fifty-Ninth arrived at Huntsville on the 3d of April, and went into camp, remaining there until the 22d of June. Starting for Kingston, Georgia, and reaching there on the 1st of July, it joined Sherman's army, then on its march to Atlanta. On the 13th of July it moved to Etowah river, and guarded the bridge over that stream until the 26th of August, when it was ordered to report to General Steadman, at Chattanooga. On arriving there, on the 27th, it marched into East Tennessee after Wheeler's Cavalry, returning to Chattanooga after an absence of four days. Moving from thence to Tullahoma, it reported to Gen. Milroy, and remained on duty there until the 21st of September. Returning to Chattanooga, it marched with a wagon train as far as Cartersville, Georgia, arriving there on the 28th of September, after which it took up its old position on Etowah river.

On the 12th of November it moved towards Atlanta, and on the 15th it commenced the grand "march to the sea," following the fortunes of General Sherman through Georgia to Savannah. General Smith, on the 25th of December, issued a highly complimentary order, in which he stated that General Sherman had complimented the Division for its soldierly bearing, and made special mention of the Fifty-Ninth for its good marching. From Savannah the regiment marched through the Carolinas to Raleigh, and from thence to Washington City, where it participated in the grand review. From Washington it was transferred to Louisville, Kentucky, where, on the 17th of July, 1865, it was mustered out of service. Arriving at Indianapolis, it was present at a public reception in the Capitol grounds on the 18th of July, on which occasion the regiment was addressed by Governor Morton and others. In a few days afterward it was finally discharged from service. The regiment, during its term of service, received in recruits, drafted men, &c., seven hundred and seventy-seven and lost, in killed, wounded and missing, and by disease, seven hundred and ninety-three men. It has traveled by rail, three thousand seven hundred and fifty-six miles, by water four thousand six hundred and eighteen miles, and by land five thousand three hundred and five miles; making in all, thirteen thousand six hundred and seventy-nine miles.

SIXTIETH REGIMENT INDIANA VOLUNTEERS.

The Sixtieth Regiment was raised under orders authorizing Lieut. Col. RICHARD OWEN, of the Fifteenth Regiment, to recruit a regiment and rendezvous it at Evansville. A partial organization was made at that place in November, 1861, and during the progress of enlisting, the regiment was ordered to Camp Morton, Indianapolis, on the 22d of February, 1862, to guard rebel prisoners, and, while on duty there, the organization was perfected—the last companies being mustered in in the month of March. On the 26th of June it left Indianapolis for Louisville, Kentucky, from whence it proceeded to Lebanon. After remaining there for a time it moved to Munfordsville, where, on the 14th of September, the advance of Bragg's army surrounded the place and its works, and compelled the garrison to surrender after a gallant resistance. Among the captured were a number of Indiana regiments and seven companies of the Sixtieth, under command of Col. OWEN. The other companies were, at the time of the capture, guarding a railroad bridge over Rolling Fork, near Lebanon Junction, under command of Major COX, and were not captured. The captured companies were paroled, and proceeded to Indianapolis, where they went into parole camp, and were there joined by the other portion of the regiment. Upon being exchanged in November, the regiment proceeded to Memphis, joining the Army of the Mississippi, and participated in the movements of that army during the winter of 1862. On the 10th of January, 1863, it took part in the battle of Arkansas Post, losing a number in killed and wounded.

In the campaign against Vicksburg it moved with the First Brigade (Burbridge's), Tenth Division, Thirteenth Army Corps, from Millikens' Bend on the 14th of April, making rapid and fatiguing marching through swamps, bayous and streams, under scorching suns, drenching rains, and engaging in five desperate and hard-fought battles. At Port Gibson, on the 1st of May, it was among the first to enter the town; at Champion Hills, on the 16th of May, it was in the advance; and at Black river, on the 17th of May, it behaved with gallantry. In the siege of Vicksburg it took an active part, remaining in the trenches until the surrender on the 4th of July.

After the capitulation, the Sixtieth marched with its brigade to Jackson, participating in the skirmishes on the route and the siege of Jackson, losing several in killed and wounded. Returning to Vicksburg, it remained there until August, when it was transported to New Orleans, where it was assigned to Banks' army. From New Orleans it moved to Berwick City, and from thence moved up the Teche, engaging in the battle of Grand Courteau Plains on the 3d of November, losing a few in killed and wounded. Returning to the vicinity of New Iberia, it remained there a short time, and then proceeded to Algiers, near

New Orleans, where it embarked on steamship for Texas. Landing in that State, it was stationed at Pass Cavallo for a brief period, and then returned to New Orleans, where it joined Banks' unfortunate expedition up Red River.

This expedition was organized early in March, and proceeded with but little opposition to Alexandria, reaching there on the 19th of March. The rebels began to concentrate at Shreveport. On the 28th Gen. Mower's Division defeated the rebel General Dick Taylor at Cane river, thirty-five miles above Alexandria. The main army marched westward. After passing Grand Ecore, the Cavalry, supported by the Fourth Division of the Thirteenth Army Corps, encountered the enemy, in force, at Sabine Cross Roads, on the 8th of April. After skirmishing across an open field, from the woods on either side, the rebels charged on our forces, who were routed and fell back in great disorder. In this battle the Sixtieth lost heavily in killed, wounded and prisoners. The Third Division came up and were also overwhelmed. The command of Gen. A. J. Smith, of the Sixteenth Corps, which had left Vicksburg on the 8th, as a co-operating force, and capturing Fort De Russey on its march, reached the field just after the battle at Sabine Cross Roads, and held the rebels in check, and the next day fought and defeated the rebels at Pleasant Hill. The shattered army fell back to Grand Ecore, the Sixteenth Corps covering the retreat and saving Bank's army. The latter army then fell back to the Mississippi river, and General Smith's command proceeded to Vicksburg.

in killed, wounded and prisoners. After this the regiment was stationed at Algiers, near New Orleans, remaining there until February 24th, 1865, when the remaining recruits were transferred to the Twenty-Sixth Indiana, and the balance of the regiment proceeded to Indianapolis, where it was mustered out on the 21st of March, 1865. The transferred men are still serving with the Twenty-Sixth Regiment.

SIXTY-FIRST (SECOND IRISH) REGIMENT INDIANA VOLUNTEERS.

Authority was given BERNARD F. MULLEN to organize the Sixty-First (Second Irish) Regiment during the winter of 1861. The men recruited for it were first rendezvoused at Madison, but were afterward transferred to Terre Haute and Indianapolis to guard the Fort Donelson prisoners. The attempt to raise the regiment having failed, on the 22d of May, 1862, the enlisted men and a few of the officers, including Col. Mullen, were transferred to the Thirty-Fifth Indiana, and served with that regiment during its term of service.

SIXTY-SECOND REGIMENT INDIANA VOLUNTEERS.

In the fall of 1861, authority was given WILLIAM JONES, of Rockport, to enlist and organize the Sixty-Second Regiment in the First Congressional District, and rendezvous it at Rockport. The attempt to raise the regiment being unsuccessful, the companies and detachments of recruits were, on the 26th of February, 1862, consolidated with the Fifty-Third Regiment, then organizing. Col. Jones was made Lieut. Colonel of the Fifty-Third. The men thus transferred served with that organization until the expiration of its term of service.

SIXTY-THIRD REGIMENT INDIANA VOLUNTEERS.

The Sixty-Third Regiment was authorized to be raised on the 31st of December, 1861, and its place of rendezvous fixed at Covington, with James McManomy as Commandant of the camp, and John S. Williams as Adjutant. A detachment of rebel prisoners having been quartered at Lafayette, the enlisted men at Covington were ordered there to guard them, and on the 21st of February, 1862, Companies "A," "B," "C" and "D" were organized as a battalion, with John S. Williams as Lieut. Colonel. Soon after this the battalion was transferred to Indianapolis and placed on duty at Camp Morton guarding prisoners. On the 27th of May the battalion was ordered East, and on the 30th of August was engaged in the battle of Manassas Plains (or Second Bull Run.) Returning to Indianapolis on the 3d of October, the regimental organization was completed by the addition of Companies "E," "F," "G," "H," "I" and "K," raised under the call of July, 1862, and Lieut. Col. Williams promoted to the Colonelcy of the Regiment.

The regiment remained at Indianapolis, on duty, until December 25th, and during that time Companies "E," "F," "G" and "I" were detached for duty as Provost Guards. On the 25th of December, 1863, the other six companies left Indianapolis, under the command of Lieut. Col. James McManomy, and proceeded to Shepherdsville, Kentucky, arriving there on the 28th. From that time until January, 1864, these companies were engaged in guarding the line of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad, and the Lebanon branch thereof. While engaged in this duty detachments of the command had several skirmishes with the enemy. About the middle of January, 1864, the several companies were concentrated at Camp Nelson, Kentucky, under command of Col. Israel N. Stiles, and, on the 25th of February, marched towards Knoxville, Tennessee. That place was reached on the 15th of March, after a march of one hundred and eighty-five miles, over almost impassable roads. After a day of rest, the regiment moved on to Mossy Creek, from whence, on the 1st of April, it marched to Bull's Gap, and was assigned to the Second Brigade, Third Division, of the Twenty-Third Army Corps. On the 23d of April, it moved in the direction of Jonesboro, marching one hundred miles in four days, and burning the bridges and destroying the tracks of the Tennessee and Virginia railroad for many miles. Returning to Bull's Gap on the morning of the 28th of April, the regiment, on the same afternoon, commenced its march towards Georgia, to join the army of Gen. Sherman, then about to enter upon the Atlanta campaign.

The Twenty-Third Corps effected a junction with that army at Red Clay, Georgia, on the 4th of May, and on the 9th and 10th the Sixty-Third occupied a position on the left of the line during the action of Rocky Face Ridge, losing two killed and four wounded. After this battle, it moved through Snake Creek Gap to Resacca, and in the engagement at that place on the 14th, the brigade to which the regiment was attached, with the Sixty-Third in the front line, charged across an open field, more than half a mile, under a terrific fire from the enemy, taking a portion of the rebel works. Its loss was eighteen killed and ninety-four wounded; total one hundred and twelve. On the 16th, the regiment moved from Resacca, wading the Ostanaula river and crossing the Coosawattee, overtaking the enemy at Cassville on the 18th. It drove the enemy during all the next day, and on the 20th reached Cartersville, remaining there until the 23d. Crossing the Etowah river and Pumpkin Vine Creek, it moved forward and went into an entrenched position on the Dallas line on the 26th, behind which the Sixty-Third lay, under fire of three batteries, (the skirmish line being constantly and hotly engaged,) until relieved on the 1st of June. Its loss at this place was sixteen wounded.

After this it lay in line of battle from June 3d to June 6th, behind works of its own construction, losing one killed and one wounded. It was then held in reserve until the 15th, when it was again placed in the front line near Lost Mountain, losing six killed and eight wounded. On the 17th it moved forward to the Kenesaw line, under a brisk fire, but without loss. It crossed Noses Creek on the 20th, under a heavy fire, losing two in missing. On the 27th it made a flank movement on the left of the enemy's line at Kenesaw, losing two killed and one captured. The regiment then remained in its entrenchments until the 1st of July, losing two wounded, and on the 3d made a reconnoissance, discovering a long line of rebel works along Nickajack Creek. On the 6th it crossed this creek, passed through the abandoned rebel line, and crossed the railroad below Marietta. On the 8th of July it forded the Chattahoochee river, wading the stream neck deep, with a rapid current, without losing a man, and beginning the first troops across. Moving forward toward Atlanta on the 17th, it came in sight of that city on the 20th, and on the 22d, in the engagement in which the lamented McPherson fell, the Division to which it was attached moved to the left in support of the Army of the Tennessee. On the 23d it went into position on the right of the Seventeenth Corps, in the front line, and fell back on the contraction of our lines on the 26th of July. On the 28th it made a reconnoissance, losing one killed and one wounded, and on the night of the 1st of August moved to Uttoy Creek. On the 6th it supported Reilley's Brigade of the Third Division of the Twenty-Third Corps, losing three wounded. On the 9th the regiment was transferred to the Third Brigade, Third Division, of the same Army Corps, Col. Stiles taking command of the Brigade, and from that time until the 18th of August, was in various positions along the Sandtown road. From the 18th till the 28th it was on duty along the Campbelltown road, making daily reconnoissances to the Newnan road.

On the 28th of August it moved out towards the Atlanta and Macon railroad, striking the West Point road on the 30th and the Atlanta and Macon railroad on the 31st at Rough and Ready Station. The next morning the regiment engaged in destroying the railroad, and in the afternoon marched toward Jonesboro. On the 2d of September, it marched to Lovejoys, and was held in reserve on the 3d and 4th. On the night of the 5th the regiment started back to Decatur, reaching that place on the 8th, where it made an entrenched and well-fortified camp, in which it rested from the labors of the Atlanta campaign.

The Sixty-Third remained in this camp until the 4th of Octoto turn Hoke's position, and on the 16th crossed to Smithfield. The next day it moved up to Fort Anderson, and engaged the enemy on the 18th, losing one man wounded. On the 19th it pursued the retreating army—having one man wounded on the march—and overtook it at sunset at Town Creek. On the 20th it fought the rebels, losing one man killed and one wounded, and on the 21st advanced to within sight of Wilmington. Marching into Wilmington on the 23d, it remained in camp until the 6th of March, when it moved towards Kingston, reaching that place on the 12th, after a severe march of one hundred miles, through swamps and mud, the men wading Trent river before daylight on the morning of the 11th.

On the 20th of March the regiment started for Goldsboro, reaching there the next day. Here the regiment remained until the 10th of April, when it moved to Raleigh, where it remained until the 5th of May, when it moved by rail, to Greensboro. At the latter place the regiment remained until the 21st of June, 1865, when the companies still in service were mustered out—the battalion of four companies, "A," "B," "C," and "D," having been mustered out on the 20th of May, 1865, at Indianapolis. On returning to Indiana, the regiment was present at a public reception given it in the Capitol grounds, at Indianapolis, and soon after was finally discharged from service.

SIXTY-FOURTH REGIMENT INDIANA VOLUNTEERS.

ber, when its corps moved with the other forces under Sherman to meet Hood's attempt upon our communications, and from that time until the 7th of November, it marched rapidly and constantly almost every day. It then left Dalton for Nashville, by rail, and on reaching that place moved to Pulaski, arriving there on the 15th. On the 22d it fell back before Hood's advancing army, reaching Franklin on the morning of Nov. 30, skirmishing with the enemy on the march, and losing at Columbia three killed and three wounded. On the 30th it participated in the battle of Franklin, its position being on the left of the line, behind well-constructed intrenchments. The regiment, though repeatedly assaulted, lost but one killed and one wounded. At midnight it crossed the Harpeth river, and reached Nashville the next morning, where it remained in position until the 15th of December. On that and the following day it participated in the operations on the right of our lines, without loss, the forces on its left and right having compelled the enemy to retire before its brigade was ordered to advance. On the 17th the regiment joined in the pursuit of Hood, going as far as Clifton, on the Tennessee river, from whence it started for Alexandria, Virginia, on the 16th of January, 1865. Sailing from Alexandria on the 3d of February, it arrived near Fort Fisher, North Carolina, on the 7th, and landed on the 9th. On the 12th and 14th of February, it participated in the difficult but unsuccessful attempt

The Sixty-Fourth Regiment was intended to be an artillery organization, composed of the light batteries, numbered from one to twelve, inclusive, but orders from the War Department against consolidating the independent batteries, prevented the organization of the regiment. A second artillery regiment was, likewise, intended to be similarly organized, except that new batteries were to be accepted to make the organization a maximum one, and this was to be designated as the Sixty-Fifth Regiment. For the reason before given, this regiment was not organized. An infantry regiment was, however, afterward organized, bearing the same number.

SIXTY-FIFTH REGIMENT INDIANA VOLUNTEERS.

The Sixty-Fifth Regiment was organized under the call of arriving at Knoxville on the 1st of September, the brigade to July, 1862, at Princeton, and was mustered in at Evansville, (with which it was attached being the first Union troops to arrive at that point. During this march Col. Foster assumed the command of the brigade. Several companies of the regiment were sent out on a raiding expedition, returning to Knoxville after an absence of two days. On the 5th of September the regiment marched up the valley, and taking possession of a captured train of cars, moved up the valley one hundred and ten miles above Knoxville, capturing on the way another train and two locomotives, besides other property. Returning from this expedition on the night of the 6th, it moved the next day with its brigade up the same valley, and on the 20th engaged the enemy near Zollicoffer. On the 22d a severe fight was had with the enemy at Blountsville, in which the regiment lost fifteen in killed and wounded. The Sixty-Fifth was engaged in another fight at Rheatown, on the 11th of October, in which Company "A" had one man wounded. On the 14th of October the regiment fought the enemy at Blountsville without loss, and on the 15th at Bristol, losing one man captured.

On the 17th of November the regiment moved with the division across to Tazewell, and on the 1st of December it had a severe fight at Walker's Ford, Tennessee, assisted by the Fifth Indiana Cavalry, in which both regiments fought all day against great odds, the Sixty-Fifth losing two killed, eight wounded and two missing. Company "K" at this time was at Mulberry Gap, numbering forty-five men, from whence it expelled a whole rebel

The Sixty-Fifth Regiment was organized under the call of July, 1862, at Princeton, and was mustered in at Evansville, (with the exception of Company "K," on the 18th and 20th of August, 1862, with Joux W. Foster as Colonel. The nine companies were at once moved to Henderson, Kentucky, where it went into camp to protect the place from guerrillas. On the 27th of August, the regiment embarked on transports, and went up Green river to Ashleysburg, landing at 9 o'clock in the night. Marching all night, it attacked Adam Johnson's rebel regiment the next morning, and after a severe skirmish, and some loss to the enemy, the regiment took possession of the town of Madisonville. Company "K" was mustered in on the 10th of September, and joined the regiment in the field. After the engagement at Madisonville, the companies were distributed in different counties in that portion of Kentucky west of the Nashville railroad, and there remained on duty until the 18th of August, 1863, when they all reported at Glasgow. Here the regiment joined Col. Graham's brigade of cavalry, the regiment having been mounted in April, 1863, by order of Gen. Burnside. The companies, while on the local duty above mentioned, engaged the enemy as follows: Company "D" in a skirmish near Vanderburg, on the 12th of September, 1862, losing one killed and six wounded, and on the 13th it had another skirmish, in which three were wounded. Company "E" had a skirmish at Dixon, on the 29th of July, 1863, losing one man wounded.

The regiment was moved to the field in East Tennessee, ar-regiment by a night attack. After Longstreet's retreat the regiment and all the cavalry had a battle with Longstreet's infantry at Bean Station, on the 14th of December, in which the regiment lost two killed, ten wounded and five missing. On the following day it fought at Powder Spring Gap, losing ten wounded and four missing, and on the same day again engaged the enemy at Skaggs' Mills, losing one killed and two captured. On the 17th of January, 1864, the regiment had a fight at Dandridge in which one man was mortally wounded.

On the 21st of April, 1864, the regiment was dismounted and assigned to the Second Brigade, Third Division, Twenty-Third Army Corps, and on the 30th of April it joined Sherman's army, then about moving on its Atlanta campaign. It was in the battle of Resaca on the 14th of May, and in all the skirmishes and battles of this campaign, up to the capture of Atlanta, sustaining a loss of eleven killed, twenty-three wounded and five prisoners; total, thirty-nine. The regiment participated in the march in pursuit of Hood into Alabama and Tennessee, engaging the enemy at Columbia, Tennessee, and at Franklin on the 30th of November, '64. In the battle of Nashville, on the 15th and 16th of December, it bore a conspicuous part. After this it moved to the Tennessee river in pursuit of Hood's retreating army.

In January, 1865, the regiment was transferred to Alexandria, Virginia, and from thence sailed to the vicinity of Fort Fisher, near Wilmington, North Carolina, and after landing bore the brunt of the attack on Fort Anderson, on the 18th of February, 1865, and did the skirmishing for the troops at Town Creek on the 20th. The regiment was not afterwards engaged, but moved to Greensboro, with the Twenty-Third Corps, after the surrender of Johnson's army, where on the 22d of June, '65 it was mustered out of service, and proceeded to Indiana, and was finally discharged at Indianapolis, soon afterwards.

The regiment, during its term of service, has lost as follows: Killed, twenty-six; wounded, eighty-six; captured, sixty-one; total, one hundred and seventy-three.

SIXTY-SIXTH REGIMENT INDIANA VOLUNTEERS.

The Sixty-Sixth Regiment was recruited in the Second Congressional District, and organized at Camp Noble, New Albany, under the direction of Roger Martin, the commandant of the camp of rendezvous. The invasion of Kentucky by Kirby Smith rendered it necessary that this regiment, with others, should march to that State before its organization was entirely completed. Accordingly, Major Gen. Lew. Wallace, then at home on leave, was temporarily assigned to the command of the regiment and commissioned Provisional Colonel. The regiment was hurriedly mustered into service, by Gen. Wallace, on the 19th of August, 1862, and on the same night it marched for Lexington, Kentucky. Lieut. Colonel Roger Martin was second in rank, and on arriving at Lexington he assumed the command, Gen. Wallace being assigned to the command of the troops concentrating at Covington and Cincinnati. On the 23d of August the regiment marched toward Richmond, Kentucky, and was engaged in the battle near that place on the 30th. In this engagement the major part of the regiment was captured and paroled, and after arriving at Indianapolis, was ordered to report at the rendezvous at New Albany. The remainder of the regiment was marched to New Albany by way of Frankfort and Louisville, arriving there on the 10th of September. On the 18th of November the regiment was transferred to Indianapolis, and after being declared duly exchanged, was re-equipped and re-armed, and started for the field on the 10th of December, in command of Col. DeWitt C. Anthony, who had been commissioned its Colonel. Arriving at Corinth, Mississippi, it was assigned to the First Brigade of Dodge's Division, commanded by Colonel Sweeney, and remained at that place as part of the garrison, until August the 18th, 1863. It then moved to Collierville, Tennessee, at which place six companies, ("B," "C," "D," "E," "F," and "I,") were engaged in the battle of Collierville, on the 11th of October, 1863. On the 29th of October the regiment moved for Pulaski, Tennessee, where it arrived on the 11th of November, and remained there until the following spring. With the Second Division, of the Sixteenth Army Corps, on the 29th of April, 1864, the entire regiment moved to Chattanooga, preparatory to taking the field against the rebel army then at Dalton, Georgia. Moving with Sherman's Army, it participated in the campaign resulting in the capture of Atlanta, and was engaged in the battles of Resaca, Lay's Ferry, Rome Cross Roads, Dallas, Kennesaw, before Atlanta, (on the 22d of July,) and Jonesboro. At Eastport, near Atlanta, the division to which the Sixty-Sixth was attached, was transferred to the Fifteenth Army Corps.

On the 26th of September the division took the cars for Rome, Georgia, where it arrived on the following day, and after resting from its labors, it again started to join the army at Atlanta, then preparing to march through Georgia. On the 15th of November it left Atlanta with Sherman's army, and reached Savannah on the 21st of December. From that place it marched with the army through the Carolinas, and Virginia, to Washington City, where it arrived on the 24th of May, 1865. At Washington the regiment was mustered out of the service on the 3d of June, 1865, and proceeded to Indianapolis, where it was publicly welcomed home, in addresses by Gov. Morton, Gen. Hovey and others, delivered in the Capitol grounds on the 12th of June. The remaining recruits were transferred to the Fifty-Ninth Indiana, and served with that regiment up to the date of its muster-out at Louisville, Kentucky, on the 17th of July, 1865.

SIXTY-SEVENTH REGIMENT INDIANA VOLUNTEERS.

The Sixty-Seventh Regiment was organized in the Third Congressional District, and mustered into service at Madison on the 20th of August, 1862, with Frank Emerson as Colonel, and was ordered to Louisville, Kentucky. Arriving there it marched to Munfordsville, and at that place participated in the engagement with the advance of Bragg's army on the 14th of September, and was, subsequently, compelled to surrender with the other troops at that place; the regiment lost forty-three men killed and wounded in the engagement. Being paroled by the enemy, the regiment returned home and remained until December, when, after being exchanged and refitted, it proceeded to Memphis, where it joined Sherman's expedition against Vicksburg. On the 11th of January, 1863, it participated in the assault on Arkansas Post, and in the charge that resulted in the capture of the place it bore a conspicuous part, suffering a heavy loss. After this it proceeded to Young's Point, where it remained until Gen.

Grant started on his campaign against Vicksburg. The regiment was placed in the Thirteenth Corps, and participated in the battles of Port Gibson, Champion Hills, Black River Bridge, and in the investment and capture of Vicksburg. It was next engaged in the expedition against Jackson, and took a prominent part in the capture of that city.

Upon returning to Vicksburg the regiment was sent down the Mississippi to New Orleans, and transferred to the Department of the Gulf. Moving into Western Louisiana, it marched with Banks' army through the Teche country, and on the 3d of November, 1863, participated in the battle of Grand Coteau, in which engagement two hundred of the regiment were captured. In January, 1864, it was sent to Texas, where it remained until March, when it joined Gen. Banks' Red river expedition, and was engaged in the battle of Sabine Cross Roads, or Mansfield. Cane River and Alexandria, losing heavily. During this expedition Col. Emerson received a second severe wound, which compelled him to resign.

Soon after the Red river campaign the Sixty-Seventh joined the expedition against the rebel forts at the mouth of Mobile Bay, and participated in the twenty days' siege, which resulted in the capture of Forts Gaines and Morgan by Farragut's naval fleet and the co-operating land forces.

After this the regiment returned to Morganza, Louisiana, where it remained until December, 1864, with the exception of two brief expeditions into Western Louisiana and up the Mississippi to the mouth of White river. On the 21st of December, 1864, the Sixty-Seventh was consolidated with the Twenty-Fourth Regiment Indiana Volunteers, the consolidated organization bearing the designation of Twenty-Fourth Regiment. From that time the men of the Sixty-Seventh thus transferred served with the Twenty-Fourth Regiment, engaging in the campaign against Mobile, and afterward moving to Galveston, Texas. At this place, on the 19th of July, 1865, all of the men formerly of the Sixty-Seventh, with the exception of a few recruits, were mustered out of service, under the orders of the War Department for the discharge of all organizations raised under the call of July, 1862. These proceeded to Indianapolis, where, before final discharge, they were publicly received with other returned troops in the Capitol grove, on the 4th of August, and were addressed by Lieut. Governor Conrad Baker, Gen. Hovey and others. The remaining recruits are at this date (November, 1865,) still serving with the Twenty-Fourth, which is stationed at Galveston, Texas. During its term of service the Sixty-Seventh has participated in eighteen regular engagements, besides skirmishes: has been under fire one hundred and forty-seven days; has traveled an aggregate distance of seventeen thousand miles; and at the end of the first year of its service had been under fire seventy days.

SIXTY-EIGHTH REGIMENT INDIANA VOLUNTEERS.

The Sixty-Eighth Regiment was raised in the Fourth Congressional District, and organized at Greensburg, under the superintendence of Benjamin C. Shaw, formerly Major of the Seventh Indiana, and who was made Lieut. Colonel of the regiment. On the 19th of August, 1862, it was mustered into service at Indianapolis, with Edward A. King (Lieut. Col. of the Nineteenth Regulars,) as Col., and at midnight of the same day started for Louisville, Kentucky. On the 25th of August it left Louisville and reported to Gen. Dumont, at Lebanon, on the 1st of September. From thence it moved to Munfordsville, where, after fighting a portion of Bragg's forces for two days, it was compelled to surrender, with other troops, at that place. Being paroled, the regiment proceeded to Indianapolis to await exchange.

On the 26th of December a detachment of the regiment proceeded to Louisville, where, on the 31st, it was joined by the main body, and from thence proceeded to Munfreesboro, Tennessee, where it was assigned to the Second Brigade, Fourth Division, Fourteenth Army Corps. On the 24th, 25th, and 26th of June, 1863, it engaged the enemy at Hoover's Gap, losing one killed and six wounded. About the 1st of September it crossed the Tennessee River at Shell Mound, and marched over Lookout Mountain on the 11th. In the valley beyond it skirmished with the enemy at Pond Springs, and remained in that vicinity until the 18th of September. On the 19th and 20th the regiment was engaged in the battle of Chicamagua, losing one hundred and thirty-five killed, wounded and missing, out of a force engaged of three hundred and fifty-six men and officers. Among the killed was Col. King. The Sixty-Eighth was one of the last regiments to leave the field, late on the evening of the 20th, and on the 21st and 22d repelled an attack of the rebels near Chattanooga.

On the 11th of October the regiment was transferred to the First Brigade, Third Division, Fourth Army Corps, and on the 25th of November, took part in the battle of Mission Ridge, losing five officers and seventy-seven men killed and wounded. On the 28th it marched to the relief of Burnside at Knoxville, and about the 1st of January, 1864, moved towards Dandridge, but soon afterward returned to Knoxville, and from thence moved to Marysville. In the latter part of February it again marched toward Knoxville, and from that place moved to Strawberry Plains, Newmarket and Morristown, and thence back to Knoxville, Cleveland and McDonald's Station. On the 28th of April it arrived at Chattanooga, where it remained until the 14th of August, doing garrison duty. It was then ordered to the relief of Dalton, Georgia, and on the 15th participated in a skirmish with Wheeler's cavalry, which was driven through the town, the regiment losing Capt. Wheeler, mortally wounded, and five enlisted men wounded.

Returning to Chattanooga on the 18th of August, it marched to Cleveland, Charleston, Athens and Madisonville, returning to Chattanooga on the 20th. On the 1st of September the regiment left for Tullahoma, and from thence again returned to Chattanooga. It next marched to several points on the Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad, returning to Chattanooga on the 27th of October, from whence it moved to Decatur, Alabama, arriving there on the 29th of October. At that place it aided the garrison in fighting Hood's army until the 31st, losing five wounded. Again returning to Chattanooga, it was sent on the 13th of November to Resaca to guard the men engaged in tearing up railroad tracks, and was on the 29th of November ordered to Nashville. At this place the regiment took part in the battle of the 15th and 16th of December, losing one killed and four wounded. After the engagement it joined in the pursuit of Hood's retreating army, going by way of Murfreesboro and Decatur as far as Leighton, where it remained two days and then proceeded to Chattanooga, reaching there on the 11th of January, 1865. From that time until June, 1865, it remained at that place, engaged in guarding the military bridge. Proceeding to Nashville it was there mustered out of service on the 20th of June, 1865, and at once returned to Indiana. On the 30th of June it was present at a public reception given to returned troops at the Tabernacle in Indianapolis, on which occasion the soldiers were addressed by Lieut. Governor Conrad Baker. The remaining recruits were transferred to the Forty-Fourth Regiment, and served with it until its muster out of service on the 14th of September, 1865.

SIXTY-NINTH REGIMENT INDIANA VOLUNTEERS.

The Sixty-Ninth Regiment was organized at Richmond on the 19th of August, 1862, with William A. Bickle as Colonel. On the 20th of August it left for Kentucky, and on reaching Lexington moved in the direction of Richmond, Kentucky. Near this place, on the 30th of August, it participated in the battle with Kirby Smith's rebel forces, losing two hundred and eighteen men and officers killed and wounded. Though the men fought bravely, the disciplined troops of the enemy overpowered the regiment and captured it almost en masse. The captured men were immediately paroled and sent to parole camp at Indianapolis.

Upon being exchanged the regiment was re-organized at Indianapolis, and left that place on the 27th of November, 1862, for Memphis, Tennessee, in command of Col. Thomas W. Bennett. On the 20th of December it proceeded down the Mississippi river with Sheldon's brigade of Morgan's division of Sherman's wing of Grant's army, on the expedition to Vicksburg. In the assault upon the enemy's works at Chickasaw

Bluffs the Sixty-Ninth took part, suffering but a slight loss. After the repulse at this place the regiment moved to Arkansas Post, where it was engaged on the 11th of January, 1863, and after the capture of the post it proceeded to Young's Point, and while stationed there over one hundred men died from disease. In the latter part of February it moved to Milliken's Bend, and on the morning of the 30th of March marched as the advance regiment of Grant's army in the movement against Vicksburg. On reaching Roundaway Bayou, opposite Richmond, Louisiana, in the afternoon, a rebel force was found and dislodged. Crossing over to Richmond in boats, the regiment assisted in building bridges for the passage of the main army. It was during this movement that two thousand feet of bridging was constructed in three days. Thus was a military road completed across the Peninsula from the river above Vicksburg to the river forty miles below that city, over which the whole army rapidly moved. On the 30th of April the advance crossed the Mississippi at Hard Times Landing, and disembarked at D'Schroon's on the opposite bank, from whence it marched to Port Gibson, where, on the 1st of May, the battle of Thompson's Hill was fought. In this engagement the Sixty-Ninth lost seventy-one killed and wounded. On the 16th of May it was engaged at Champion Hills, and on the 17th of May took part in the assault on the enemy's works at Black River Bridge. It then moved to the rear of the rebel works at Vicksburg, participating in the siege up to and including the assault on the 22d of May. On the 23d of May it moved with Osterhaus' division to the Black River Bridge, where it was stationed during the remainder of the siege of Vicksburg, holding Johnson in check. During all of these operations on the east side of the Mississippi river, the regiment served in Osterhaus' division, which opened every engagement prior to the investment of Vicksburg.

On the 6th of July the regiment moved toward Jackson with the same division, which, being in the advance, did all of the skirmishing. At Jackson the Sixty-Ninth was actively engaged during the six days' siege of that place. Returning to Vicksburg on the 3d of August, it was sent with the Thirteenth Army Corps to Port Hudson, and was afterwards transferred to the Department of the Gulf and sent to New Orleans. In September it moved to Berwick City, and there joined Gen. Franklin's Teche expedition, and on its return the regiment was sent to Algiers, reaching there in November. It then embarked on steamship for Texas, as part of Gen. Banks' coast expedition, landing at Decrow's Point, Matagorda Bay, on the 1st of December. On the 13th of February, 1864, it sailed for Indianola, and on the 13th of March evacuated that place and started for Matagorda Island. During the progress of this movement, while crossing from Bynio's Island to Matagorda Island, a boatswamped and two officers (Assistant Surgeon Witt and Lieutenant Temor) and twenty men were drowned.

In April the regiment left Matagorda Island for New Orleans, and on arriving there was sent to Alexandria, which place was reached on the 27th of April. Here it met Bank's retreating army and was engaged in the fight near Alexandria, and, in the retreat from that place to the Mississippi river, supported Col. Lucas' Cavalry Brigade, which covered the retreat. The regiment then went into camp at Morganza, and remained there until December, 1864, during which time it participated in different expeditions sent out from that place. On the 7th of December it was sent to Dauphin Island, in Mobile Bay, and on the 14th of December joined Gen. Granger's Pascagoula expedition—a movement toward Mobile, intended to divert the attention of the rebels from other columns moving through the country. In this expedition the regiment moved to Grand Bay and within twenty-two miles of Mobile. On the 1st of January, 1865, it returned to Pascagoula.

On the 23d of January, 1865, the regiment was consolidated into a battalion of four companies, of which Lieut. Col. Oran Perry was made the commanding officer. On the 31st of January the battalion embarked on steamship for Barrancas, Florida, from whence, on the 14th of March, it moved with a division to Pensacola. On the 20th of March it moved with Steele's expedition through Florida and Southern Alabama, arriving in the rear of Blakely on the 1st of April. In the assault on Blakely on the 9th of April the regiment was engaged, after which it guarded rebel prisoners from Blakely to Ship Island. Returning to Blakely it moved with the division to Selma, Alabama, where it remained until the 3d of May, and then left for Mobile en route for Texas. On reaching Mobile, the orders for Texas were countermanded, and the regiment assigned to duty in Mobile. On the 5th of July, 1865, the battalion was mustered out of service, Ala., which caused the surrender of Mobile.

This regiment has left its dead in eleven States, and participated in the battles of Richmond, Kentucky; Chickasaw Bluffs, Arkansas Post, Thompson's Hill, Champion Hill, Black River Bridge, the Sieges of Vicksburg and Jackson, and the capture of Blakely; Ala., which caused the surrender of Mobile.

SEVENTIETH REGIMENT INDIANA VOLUNTEERS.

The Seventieth Regiment rendezvoused at Indianapolis and was fully organized between the 14th of July and the 12th of August, 1862—in less than one month—and was mustered into service at the last named date, with Benjamin Harrison as Colonel. It left Indianapolis on the morning of the 13th of August and reached Louisville in the evening of the same day. On the following July, it encountered several hundred rebel cavalry, killing and wounding many and capturing forty horses and a large lot of small arms, saddles, and other property.

On the 10th of November, the regiment moved with Ward's brigade, Dumont's division, Fourteenth Army Corps, to Scottsville, Kentucky, and thence to Gallatin, Tennessee on the 24th of November. On the 10th of December as part of the 8th brigade, 8th division, (Gen'l Payne's) 14th Army Corps, it was posted along the Louisville and Nashville Railroad from Gallatin to Nashville to defend the road and bridges, on which duty it was engaged until the 9th of February, 1863. It then went into camp at Gallatin, doing provost and picket duty at that place until June 1st, 1863, when it was moved to Laverne, Tennessee. Remaining at that point until the 30th of June, it then marched to Murfreesboro, camping in Fortress Rosecrans. At that place it was assigned to the 2d brigade, 3d division of Gen'l Granger's Reserve Corps.

On the 19th of August it moved with its brigade to Nashville and while there it was engaged in guarding trains to Stevenson, Chattanooga and other points, and picket and fatigue duty within the city. On the 2d of January, 1864, the regiment was transferred to the 1st brigade, 1st division, 11th Army Corps, and Col. Harrison assigned to the command of the brigade. On the 24th of February, the Seventieth left Nashville and marched with its division to Wauhatchie, Tennessee, in Lookout Valley. On the organization of the 20th Army Corps it was assigned to the 1st brigade, 3d division, with which it continued to serve during its term of service.

From Wauhatchie it marched on the 2d of May and entered upon the Atlanta campaign, during which the regiment took an active part, being engaged in the following actions: Resacca, Cassville, New Hope Church, Lost Mountain, Kenesaw Mountain, Marietta, Peach Tree Creek and the Siege of Atlanta. At Resacca the regiment led the assault made on the enemy's right, capturing a fort and four Napoleon guns, the only pieces of artillery lost by the enemy between Chattanooga and Atlanta. Its casualties in this campaign were forty-one killed in action, forty-three died of wounds and one hundred and ninety-one wounded; total two hundred and seventy-five.

On the 5th of November, 1864, the Veterans and remaining recruits of the Twenty-Seventh Indiana were consolidated with the Seventieth, by special order of the War Department, dated October 12th, 1864. The regiment participated in Sherman's march through Georgia to Savannah, and on the 31st of December it crossed the Savannah river with the first brigade of western troops that entered South Carolina. Marching through the Carolinas with Sherman's army it rested at Raleigh, North Carolina, where it was on the announcement of Lee's surrender. It afterwards marched with the Army of Georgia to Richmond and then to Washington City, where it was mustered out of service on the 8th of June, 1865. The remaining recruits whose terms had not expired under the then existing regulations of the War Department were transferred to the Thirty-Third regiment, in which organization they continued to serve until its muster out at Louisville on the 21st of July, 1865. On returning to Indianapolis the Seventieth was publicly welcomed home by the citizens, and at the reception given in the Capitol grounds on the 15th of two—total, three hundred and eighty-seven. The regiment entered service with one thousand and twenty-one men and officers, and Harrison.

The casualties of the regiment have been, in all, as follows: Killed in action, forty-three; died of wounds received in action, forty-three; wounded in action, one hundred and ninety-four; that have served with the organization thirteen hundred and wounded accidentally, five; died of disease, one hundred and forty-eight.

SIXTH CAVALRY (71st) REGIMENT INDIANA VOLUNTEERS.

The Seventy-First Regiment was organized at Terre Haute in July and August, 1862, and mustered into service as an infantry organization at Indianapolis on the 18th of August, 1862, with Melville D. Topping as Lieutenant Colonel. It was sent immediately to the field in Kentucky, to assist in repelling the invasion of Kirby Smith. On the 30th of August it was engaged in the battle of Richmond, Kentucky, in which action Lieut. Col. Topping and Major Conklin were killed. The loss to the regiment was two hundred and fifteen officers and men killed and wounded, and three hundred and forty-seven prisoners. Two hundred and twenty-five of the regiment escaped capture. The captured officers and men were paroled, and the regiment returned to Terre Haute, where it was reorganized and refitted for service. Captain James Biddle, of the Fifteenth Infantry U. S. A., was commissioned Colonel of the regiment, and after the paroled prisoners were declared exchanged, the regiment again left for Kentucky. On the 27th of December four hundred men and officers of the regiment were sent to Muldraugh's Hill to guard trestle-work, and on the following day they were attacked by a force of four thousand rebels, under command of Gen. John H. Morgan, and after an engagement of an hour and a half were surrounded and captured. The regiment then returned to Indianapolis, where it remained until the 26th of August, 1863.

On the 23d of February, 1863, an order was issued by the Secretary of war authorizing the Seventy-First to be mounted and changed into a cavalry organization. The two additional companies ("L" and "M") were organized and mustered into service as follows: Company "L" September 1st, 1863, and Company "M" October 12th, 1863. The Regiment was then sent into East Tennessee, and was engaged in the siege of Knoxville, and in the active operations against Gen. Longstreet, on the Holston and Clinch rivers, losing many men in killed and wounded. In the spring of 1864 it was ordered to Mount Sterling, Kentucky, to be remounted, and afterward was stationed at Nicholasville, Kentucky.

On the 29th of April, 1864, it left Nicholasville for Georgia, marched over the Cumberland Mountains and joined Gen. Sherman's army, then in front of Dalton, on the 11th of May. It was at once assigned to the Cavalry Corps of the Army of the Ohio, commanded by Gen. Stoneman, serving in the Second Brigade, under command of Colonel Biddle. The Sixth Cavalry, during the Atlanta campaign, participated in all the cavalry operations, and was engaged in the battles of Resacca, Cassville, Kennesaw Mountain and other engagements. It aided in the capture of Alatoona Pass, and was the first to take possession of and raise the flag upon Lost Mountain. On the 27th of July the regiment started with Gen. Stoneman on his raid to Macon, Georgia, and in that expedition it lost one hundred and sixty-six men and officers in killed, wounded and captured.

On the 28th of August the regiment left Marietta, Georgia, and returned to Nashville to be remounted and equipped. Early in September a part of the regiment was sent in pursuit of Gen. Wheeler. On the 24th of September it left Nashville with Croxton's cavalry division to assist in repelling the invasion of Middle Tennessee by Forrest. The expedition was commanded by Gen. Rousseau, and was absent from Nashville twenty-one days, having fought and defeated Forrest at Pulaski, Tennessee, on the 27th of September, and pursued him to Florence and Waterloo, Alabama. In the engagement at Pulaski the Sixth Cavalry lost twenty-three men in killed and wounded.

On the 1st of November the regiment started by railroad to Dalton, Georgia, where it remained until the 26th of that month, when it returned to Nashville. On the 15th and 16th of December it participated in the battle in front of Nashville, and after the repulse of Hood's army immediately followed in pursuit of the retreating enemy. Returning to Nashville, it remained there until the 1st of April, 1865, when it moved to Pulaski with the Second Brigade, Sixth Division of the Cavalry Corps of the Military Division of the Mississippi.

On the 17th of June, 1865, the portion of the regiment whose terms of service would expire prior to October 1st, 1865, were mustered out of service at Pulaski, Tennessee. On the 27th of June, 1865, the remaining recruits of the Sixth Cavalry were consolidated with the remaining recruits of the Fifth Cavalry, and the new organization thus formed (consisting of nine companies,) was designated the Sixth Indiana Cavalry. The regiment left Pulaski for Indianapolis, with four hundred and twenty-five men for discharge. On reaching the State Capitol it was publicly welcomed home, on the 21st of June, with other regiments, and addressed by Gov. Morton, Gen. Hovey and others, from the reception stand in the State House Grove.

The reorganized regiment remained in service in Middle Tennesses, under command of Col. Courtland C. Matson, until the 15th of September, 1865, when it was mustered out of service at Marfreesboro, and returned home with six hundred and thirty-one men and thirty-two officers. On reaching Indianapolis it was introduced and briefly addressed the soldiers and citizens.

SEVENTY-SECOND REGIMENT INDIANA VOLUNTEERS.

The Seventy-Second Regiment was raised in the Eighth Congressional District, and organized at Lafayette. It was mustered into service on the 16th of August, 1862, and left on the following day for Kentucky, arriving at Lebanon a few days after. Here it remained until Bragg's invasion, when it moved with Buell's army, and was continually engaged in marching and skirmishing with the enemy. In November it moved into Tennessee, stopping for awhile at Castillion Springs, and other places in that portion of the State. On the 8th of January, 1863, it arrived at Murfreesboro, and upon the reorganization of the Army of the Cumberland the regiment was ordered to be mounted, and to serve as mounted infantry. It made several scouts from Murfreesboro, and captured horses enough to mount the entire regiment. The men were armed with Spencer Rifles, and were a part of what was known as the Wilder Lightning Brigade.

In the campaign against Tullahoma and Chattanooga it was in the advance of Thomas' command, and moved from Murfreesboro through Hoover's Gap on the 24th of June, where it aided in defeating the enemy and driving him from his position, the regiment sustaining considerable loss, including Chaplain John R. Eddy, who was killed by a cannon shot. In all the movements of this campaign the brigade to which it was attached bore a conspicuous part. On the 12th of September the regiment met a brigade of Gen. Pegram's command at Rock Springs, Georgia, and routed it, losing one officer and ten men killed, and a number wounded. It was engaged at the battle of Chickamauga, fighting the enemy for three days, and sustaining a severe loss. After this engagement it was sent in pursuit of Wheeler, and aided in driving him out of Middle Tennessee. At Mooresville, Alabama, on the 31st of November, it engaged the enemy, losing a number in killed and wounded.

On the 31st of December it was sent to Memphis, where it was attached to the cavalry command of Gen. Sherman's army, and moved with it through Mississippi on the Meridian raid. During this expedition it covered the retreat of Gen. Smith from Okaloosa. It then returned to Memphis, and from thence moved to Nashville. On the 26th of March, 1864, it joined the Third Brigade, Second Cavalry Division. It next moved to Columbia, from whence it started on the Atlanta campaign on the 30th of April. From that time until the last of August the regiment was continually engaged with the rebels, and after the capture of Atlanta it was engaged in a great number of skirmishes. When Sherman commenced his march through Georgia, the horses of the Seventy-Second were turned over to Kilpatrick's division, and the regiment ordered to Louisville to be remounted. On the 28th of December it moved to Gravelly Springs, Alabama, from whence it marched with Gen. Wilson's cavalry expedition, which resulted in the capture of Selma and Montgomery, Alabama, and Columbus and Macon, Georgia, with over eight thousand prisoners, a number of pieces of artillery and an immense quantity of supplies. At the battle of Selma on the 2d of April, 1865, Col. Miller, of the Seventy-Second, commanding the brigade, was severely wounded. After the capture of Richmond and the surrender of Lee, the regiment was sent out by detachments to intercept the flight of Jeff. Davis, one detachment being in close pursuit of him when captured.

On the 23d of May the regiment left Macon for Nashville, and on the 26th of June, 1865, it was mustered out of service at that place. On the 29th of June it reached Indianapolis, with five hundred and ten men and thirty-six officers, and on the next day, after partaking of a fine dinner at the Soldiers' Home, it marched to the Tabernacle, where welcoming speeches were made by Lieut. Governor Baker, Gen. Hovey and others. The Seventy-Second left the State with an aggregate of nine hundred and seventy-eight men, and lost, during its term of service, four hundred and thirty-one.

The Seventy-Third Regiment was organized and mustered into service on the 16th of August, 1862, at South Bend, with Gilbert Hathaway as Colonel. The regiment was recruited entirely from the Ninth Congressional district, and entered the service one thousand and ten strong, in less than three weeks from the date recruiting commenced. It was ordered at once to Lexington, by way of Louisville, Kentucky. The defeat of the Union forces at Richmond, Kentucky, on the 30th of August, necessitated the evacuation of Lexington and the regiment made a long and weary march to Louisville, distant ninety miles. On the 1st of October the Seventy-Third was assigned to the Twentieth Brigade (Harker's) of the Sixth Division (Wood's) of Buell's army, and commenced the pursuit of Bragg. On the 8th of October it was deployed in line in reserve and witnessed the battle of Chaplin Hills, losing one man killed. It then pursued Bragg as far as Wild Cat, with slight skirmishing. Returning, it marched to Glasgow, Kentucky, and from thence to Gallatin, Tennessee, where on the 7th of November, it surprised the enemy, driving him out of the place, capturing nineteen prisoners.

On the 26th of November the regiment marched into Nashville, having previously encamped for several days at Silver Springs and engaged in an expedition to Lebanon. While foraging, on the 1st and 25th of December, it skirmished with the enemy, and on the 26th of December marched with the army, under Gen. Rosecrans, to engage the enemy. Pressing him back with skirmishing the army reached Stone River on the 29th, and on the evening of that day the Seventy-Third, with the Fifty-First Indiana, was the first of the whole army to cross Stone River, under the fire of the enemy. The Twentieth Brigade encountering Breckenridge's whole division was compelled to re-cross, which was effected after dark without serious loss. On the 30th the day was passed in artillery firing and sharp skirmishing. On the 31st most terrific fighting occurred. The right wing of our army was driven back two miles, and the Twentieth Brigade was double-quickened a mile and a half to reinforce it, and taking position on the extreme right of the whole army, immediately engaged two rebel brigades. The Seventy-Third fought for twenty minutes at very close range, losing more than one-third of the number engaged; and then, charging, drove the force in its front from the field, and in turn was compelled to fall back a short distance by a rebel brigade on its flank. But the enemy's advance was checked and the right wing and army saved by the desperate fighting made at this point. Gen. Rosecrans complimented the regiment, in person, immediately after the battle and recognized these facts. More or less fighting, with some loss to the regiment, occurred on the 1st and 2d of January, 1863. During these operations the regiment was at the front and under fire for six days, and on the 3d of January, being completely exhausted, it was placed in reserve. The enemy retreated the same day. During this battle the regiment occupied, at different times, the following important positions: the extreme right of the whole army, the extreme left and the centre. Every member of the color guard, except the color bearer, was either killed or wounded. The regiment lost twenty-two killed, forty-six wounded and thirty-six missing.

On the 10th of April, the regiment was assigned to Col. A. D. Streight's "Independent Provisional Brigade," organized and mounted for the purpose of penetrating into the enemy's country and cutting his communications. Embarking at Nashville on steamers it moved down the Cumberland and up the Tennessee river, disembarking at Eastport, Mississippi. The brigade was mounted by impressments from the country and moved by land to Tusculumbia, Alabama, in company with Gen. Dodge's Division of the Sixteenth Army Corps. On the 28th of April, the "Independent Provisional Brigade" left Tusculumbia on its perilous expedition. Gen. Dodge's division was to have co-operated by a movement eastward, but failed of success. On the morning of the 30th of April, at Day's Gap, Alabama, the Provisional Brigade, numbering fifteen hundred, was attacked by four thousand cavalry, under Generals Forrest and Roddy. The Seventy-Third occupied the left flank of the line formed and gallantly repulsed a fierce charge made by the enemy, some of whom charged within twenty feet of its colors. The whole brigade then charged the enemy's line and drove him from the field, capturing two fine pieces of artillery. The brigade at once pushed southward to execute its mission, but the enemy, having collected his scattered cavalry, overtook and attacked the brigade late in the afternoon, at Crooked Creek, Alabama. A spirited engagement was kept up until night closed the battle, with a loss to the Seventy-Third during the day of twenty-three killed and wounded. The enemy, however, was repulsed with a heavy loss.

On the 2d of May the brigade was again attacked at Blount's Farm, Alabama. The Seventy-Third bore the brunt of this fight, and here the gallant Colonel Gilbert Hathaway fell mortally wounded while at the head of and cheering on his men. On the 3d of May, Colonel Streight, being nearly out of ammunition and exhausted by five days incessant traveling and skirmishing, and surrounded by superior forces, surrendered his brigade to the enemy, at Cedar Bluffs, Alabama, on most honorable conditions, which, after surrender, were barely violated by the enemy. The men were soon forwarded north and exchanged. The officers were kept in close confinement nearly two years, with the exception of a few who were specially exchanged or escaped.

The men of the regiment were kept in parole camp for several months and then sent to Tennessee, where, on the 28th of March, 1864, Major Wade, being released from rebel prison, assumed the command of the regiment. During the spring of 1864 the regiment was engaged in guarding the Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad, and during the summer it was placed on duty picketing the Tennessee river from Draper's Ferry to Limestone Point, with headquarters at Triana. While performing this duty many encounters occurred between parties of the enemy and detachments from the regiment, in nearly all of which success attended the union arms. For its bravery and efficiency in this line of duty, the regiment was several times complimented by Gen. Granger. During this time and until April, 1865, the regiment was attached to the First Brigade, Fourth Division, Twentieth Army Corps.

In the latter part of September, 1864, the regiment, after having been engaged in defending Prospect, Tennessee, during Wheeler's raid, was ordered to Decatur, Alabama, and from there to Athens, Alabama, which place Forrest had captured a few days before with a garrison of six hundred. The enemy abandoning the place, Lieut. Col. Wade was ordered to hold it, and at once went to work to put it in condition for defense, constructing a bomb-proof in the fort, &c. At three o'clock in the afternoon of the 1st of October the pickets of the Seventy-Third were driven in by the enemy, who numbered four thousand cavalry and four pieces of artillery, under command of General Buford. The garrison numbered five hundred men and two pieces of artillery. Skirmishing continued during the rest of the day. At six o'clock next morning the enemy opened with a fierce artillery fire, which was kept up without intermission for two hours. The rebel firing was extremely accurate. Our artillery spiritedly replied, inflicting much loss on the enemy, while the bomb-proof affording ample protection to our forces, no loss was sustained by the garrison. At eight o'clock A. M., General Buford sent in a flag of truce and demanded the surrender of the place, which was promptly refused. So soon as the flag of truce disappeared the fire upon the enemy was resumed. The enemy, repulsed at every point, retired in haste.

On the 26th of October Gen. Hood appeared before and invested Decatur, Alabama, with an army of thirty-five thousand men. The Seventy-Third had previously been ordered to that place to assist in its defense. The Union garrison numbered five thousand and so stubborn was the resistance they made to the large army investing the place, that after four day's fighting, Hood raised the siege and withdrew his army, saying that "it would cost more to take the place than it was worth." In the engagement the Seventy-Third bore an honorable part, losing one killed and six wounded.

Part of the winter of 1864 was passed in Stevenson, Alabama, and in January, 1865, it was moved to Huntsville and then placed on duty along the line of the Mobile and Charleston Railroad, with headquarters at Larkinsville, Alabama. While upon this line, skirmishing with the enemy was of almost daily occurrence. On the 16th of February a detachment of twenty men repulsed an attacking party of rebel cavalry, killing and wounding five and taking one wounded prisoner. On the 30th of April, fifteen men from company "D" attacked thirty rebel cavalry, killing two and wounding two, without loss to themselves. Other skirmishes occurred in which the regiment lost four killed and two wounded. The regiment remained on this duty until the summer of 1865, when it proceeded to Nashville, where on the 1st of July, 1865, it was mustered out of service. Returning home the Seventy-Third was publicly received in the State-House grove at Indianapolis and addressed by Governor Morton and Gen. Hovey.

The remaining recruits were transferred to the Twenty-Ninth Indiana, with which regiment they still continue to serve, it being stationed at Marietta, Georgia, at the close of this sketch—November, 1865.

SEVENTY-FOURTH REGIMENT INDIANA VOLUNTEERS.

The Seventy-Fourth Regiment was raised in the Tenth Congressional District and was partially organized at Fort Wayne. Proceeding to Indianapolis eight companies were mustered into service at that place, on the 21st of August, 1862, and at once moved to Louisville, Kentucky, under command of Col. Charles W. Chapman. The command was then sent to Bowling Green where it remained until the 5th of September and then returned to Louisville. On the 1st of October it marched from that place with the Second Brigade of the First Division (Schoepf's) of the Army of the Ohio, in pursuit of Bragg, and participated in that campaign. It reached Gallatin, Tennessee, on the 10th of November, and afterwards moved to Castillian Springs, Tennessee, where, on the 4th of December, Companies "C" and "K" joined the regiment, making the organization complete.
